PLANE IS INVOLVED

Mower Accident Fatal To Youth Outside Tallulah

TALLULAH (Special) — Carl Bruce Gaumnitz was killed on his twelfth birthday Saturday when a plane taking off at his father's airport knocked him into the blades of a mowing machine.

Deputies said the youth was mowing the runway when a crop - dusting plane's left wheel hit him in the back, knocking him from his tractor and into a triple rotor "bush hog" implement, slashing him to death.

John Earl Martin of Tallulah was identified as the pilot. Deputies said Martin could not see the boy until after the mishap. No charges have been filed.

DUSTING PLANES

Gaumnitz Airport is just outside Tallulah on the east. It is used primarily by crop - dusting aircraft.

Carl was a Tallulah seventh-grader and member of the Methodist Church here.

Funeral services will be held today at 4 p.m. at Tallulah Methodist Church with Rev. Wilson Watson officiating. Burial will follow in Silver Cross Cemetery in Tallulah under direction of Crothers Funeral Home.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Gaumnitz, a brother, Freddy Gaumnitz and a sister, Cathy Gaumnitz, all of Tallulah; maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Manfred Gustafson, Tallulah; and paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gaumnitz, Merced, Calif.

Pallbearers will be Tommy Wixon, Bobby Lee Arneson, Dick Brown, Bruce Clark, T. A. Smith and Bill Eaker.

British Act To Deport Soviet Spy

LONDON (UPI) — The British government Saturday night ordered fugitive Soviet spy Dr. Robert A. Soblen deported but said the order could not be enforced for at least "a few days."

The British Home Office did not explain the delay. But its action lent support to statements by Soblen's attorneys that the government would not enforce the deportation order until its validity can be tested in court.

Soblen's chief British attorney, Solomon Kaufman, announced he would challenge the deportation order shortly after it was issued. He said the Soblen legal team already has made preliminary moves to bring the appeal before a judge.

Kaufman said the 61-year-old psychiatrist, who faces a life sentence in the United States for wartime espionage, has asked the Home Office to investigate this "alleged offense;" indicating that Soblen may attempt to have his entire case reviewed in the British courts—a time-consuming process.

The government issued the deportation order after Israel balked at flying Soblen back to the United States on one of its El Al airliners.

Kaufman said Soblen still insists he is innocent of spy charges.

The government's order at least ended one phase of the Soblen case—the diplomatic tug-of-war staged between Britain and Israel over the convicted spy that has strained relations between the two countries.

Britain had insisted that the Israeli airlines, El Al, continue Soblen on his flight to the U. S. The airline, with the backing of the Israeli cabinet, has been just as insistent that somebody else do the job.

Attack By Bees Fatal For Man

SOMERVILLE, N.J. (AP) — A 52-year-old man collapsed and died on the porch of a doctor's home Saturday after being attacked by a swarm of bees while on a fishing trip.

The victim was Walter Pruden of Newark. His fishing companion, Carl Rizzolo, 40, of Kearny, gave police this account of the incident:

The two men were fishing about 15 miles from here. Pruden was siting on a decaying log beside the pond. The log broke and bees erupted from their nest in the log, swarming over Pruden as he pitched forward into the pond.

Rizzolo drove to the home of Dr. A. W. Culberson here and helped Pruden to the porch of the house where the victim collapsed.

JFK Names Bohlen New Paris Envoy

Career Diplomat Is Selected To Succeed Gavin

BOOTHBAY HARBOR, Maine (AP) — President Kennedy appointed a new ambassador to France Saturday, naming career diplomat Charles E. (Chip) Bohlen to replace Gen. James A. Gavin in Paris.

And he went to sea again in a PT boat—numbered PT109, the number of his World War II command which was rammed and sunk in the South Pacific by a Japanese destroyer.

LONG CAREER

Bohlen, 57, has been with the State Department since 1929, two years after his graduation from Harvard College.

He has held a variety of assignments, including those of ambassador to the Soviet Union and to the Philippines.

Currently he is a special assistant to the secretary of state for Soviet affairs. He is fluent in the Russian language.

He participated in a number of international meetings during the World War II years, including the conferences at Moscow and Tehran in 1943, the Dumbarton Oaks conference of 1944, and the Crimea, San Francisco, London and Moscow conferences of 1945.

The PT boat on which President Kennedy and his group sailed was brought to Maine as a communications vessel, according to White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger.

The President boarded the PT boat along with a group of old friends, a couple of them old PT men themselves, who are spending the rest and work weekend with the President on isolated John's Island, a few miles from Boothbay Harbor.

PIONEER SATELLITE

Echo Begins Third Year Orbits Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Echo I, the 10-story-tall pioneer communications satellite, observes its second anniversary in orbit Sunday.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administrations said that at 4:39 a.m. EST, exactly two years from the moment of launching, the big balloon would have orbited the earth 9,000 times and traveled 277,257,677 miles.

"Is it any wonder that she's a little misshapen and wrinkled?" The agency asked in a news release.

NASA added that there were no plans to bounce messages off the satellite's thin plastic surface.

"Scientists feel she's getting a little old, and no real scientific purpose would be served by birthday experimentation," NASA said.

Initially a sphere, the satellite has gradually assumed a kidney shape.

Its diameter has shrunk from 100 to about 70 feet. Scientists said the result has been that the satellite's reflecting ability has been reduced by about 40 per cent.

Its last useful function was in the experimental coast-to-coast transmission by the Air Force last March of a facsimile photograph.

Echo has been used for about 150 experiments, including the relay of a presidential message, post office transmission of a letter, the bouncing of telephone conversations coast to coast, and radio transmission between the United States and Europe.

Scientists now expect the satellite to drop back into the earth's atmosphere and be destroyed "sometime in 1963."

Leaders Act To Choke Off Filibustering

Senate Vote Set For Tuesday On Invoking Cloture

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders backing a bill to establish private ownership of U. S. space communications moved Saturday to choke off filibustering opposition by a minority which wants government ownership.

Leaders of both parties joined in presenting a petition to apply the cloture rule—unused since 1927—and the showdown will come in a roll call early Tuesday afternoon.

NEEDS TWO - THIRD

Two-thirds of those voting must approve the motion if it is to become effective and clamp a one-hour limit on the time that any senator may use thereafter to discuss the measure.

Although it is clear a top heavy majority favors the administration-backed, House-passed bill, there was no clear indication whether the Senate will by-pass its cherished tradition of unlimited debate in order to break this particular filibuster.

Cloture petitions—usually aimed at Southern filibusters against civil rights measures—have been beaten again and again since the rule was last applied 35 years ago.

If cloture is not adopted, it appears likely the bill will be laid aside until next year.

Two strong cross-currents confuse the picture this time. Usually the liberal senators of both parties lead the fights to halt filibusters. This time the Democrat liberals are the ones who are trying to block a vote by filibustering.

No Southern names appeared on the petition to invoke cloture. But Sen. Spessard L. Holland, D-Fla., told the Senate both he and his Democratic colleague, Sen. George S. Smathers, would vote for cloture although the two Floridians customarily oppose such moves.

On the other hand, Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., veteran quarterback of the Dixie filibustering teams, sarcastically told a newsman:

"I'll vote to gag the Senate when shrimp start whistling Dixie."

33 Escape Reds Daily Past Year

BONN (UPI)—More than 12,000 persons have successfully escaped from East Germany in the year since the Communists erected the Berlin wall, it was reported officially Saturday.

This meant that about 33 persons have managed to get over, through, under or around the wall every day since last Aug. 13 when it was built.

Since then, said the West German Refugee Ministry, 12,316 persons have escaped East Germany.

Before the wall went up to close the hitherto open border that ran through Berlin, 15,000 or 20,000 persons left East Germany and formally were registered as refugees in West Germany every month. In the final weeks before the wall was erected, that figure swelled radically to several thousand daily.

The night the wall went up, the ministry reported, there were 51,056 East Germans in West Germany who had just fled there but were able to register as refugees only later.

Mercury Skids To Record Lows

By The Associated Press

Weather patterns provided sunny skies for most of the country Saturday and sent temperatures dipping to record-breaking low levels over sections of the Midwest and Northeast.

Extreme heat continued to blanket the Southwest and South where some communities have had more than a month of 100-degree temperatures.

Record-breaking cool temperatures for the date were reported Saturday as far south as Louisville, Ky.

REPORT RECORDS

Louisville reported a morning low of 53.1, nearly four degrees below the previous mark of 57 set in 1922.

In Milwaukee, a reading of 47 degrees was three degrees below the previous record of 50 set Aug. 11, 1884 and equalled on that date in 1960.

Pittsburgh's 1884 record of 52 was bettered with a reading of 50.

Other cities with record lows for the date included New York 56, Buffalo, N.Y., 48, Rochester, N.Y., 49, and Philadelphia 52.

A belt of hot weather stretched from southern Mississippi into the Southwest. Warmer temperatures also were reported in the Great Lakes and Ohio Valley regions.

Showers moved across the Midwest in the upper and middle Mississippi River Valley in the wake of the cool air front moving across the northeast.

Heavy thunderstorms pelted parts of North Dakota including Devils Lake, Minot and Fargo.

Heavy rainfall occurred Friday night near Velva, N.D., causing flash floods that were blamed for two deaths. Rainfall estimates ranged up to six inches.

Scattered showers were reported Saturday in southern Florida and a heavy morning fog was reported in sections of West Virginia.

GI Killed At Bridge By Vehicle

SUMTER, S. C. (UPI) — A soldier of the 101st Airborne Division was run over and killed Saturday while guarding a bridge during operation Swift Strike II. The paratrooper's death marked the sixth fatality in the massive exercise that began last Sunday.

The death occurred when the paratropper was struck by a military vehicle at Ellerbee Mill, S. C., five miles north of here. He was part of a force representing the U. S. military aid sent to a mythical ally on the defensive thus far in the war game.

The 101st Airborne Division landed four battle groups to aid the mythical U. S. ally Renloa.

Officials said an investigation has been launched into the paratrooper's death. Name of the soldier was withheld pending notification of next of kin. The 101st Airborne Division is stationed at Ft. Campbell, Ky.

The fatality came as friendly forces of the beleaguered Renloa mounted a counter attack in the operation.

A pilot was killed Friday night when his jet fighter failed to pull out of a dive and crashed during an attack mission. Two soldiers drowned during a night exercise and two more were killed in separate jeep and automobile accidents during the exercise.

About 70,000 troops are taking part in the Army-Air Force exercise designed to test service teamwork and coordination of the U. S. Strike Command. The maneuver is the largest staged in the United States since World War II.

Compromise Ends Crisis In Argentina

Feuding Generals Okay Peron Foe As War Minister

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—Feuding army chiefs accepted a compromise choice Saturday night for war minister, apparently ending a four-day crisis that had brought Argentina close to civil war.

President Jose Maria Guido, whose five-month-old regime was nearly toppled in the upheaval, swore in retired Brig. Gen. Jose Cornejo Saravia, 53, and ordered rival troops that had ringed the capital back to their barracks.

FOE OF PERON

Saravia, long a foe of ex-dictator Juan D. Peron, was proposed by the rebel leadership. He was described as a close friend of Lt. Gen. Arturo Ossorio Arana, a previous rebel choice for the job.

The field commander of the rebel front, Maj. Gen. Federico Toranzo Montero, who sparked the latest crisis last Wednesday, said he had ordered his own forces back to their barracks and bases.

Loyalist elements in the army said they accepted the compromise war minister in the interests of the Guido government and the constitution.

Only 50 to 60 people, most of them army officers identified with the rebel cause, attended the swearing-in ceremony at the government building.

Soon afterward, police released units that had been held ready throughout the crisis, and the air force lifted a ban on private or unscheduled flights over Argentine territory.

At the height of the crisis, some rebel leaders said they were aiming for Guido's scalp and not just a Cabinet reshuffle. They defined their objective as the creation of "a democratic military dictatorship to rule the country for at least five years."

In 1945, the new war minister was one of a group of young officers who rebelled and jailed Peron, who was then a vice president and minister of war.

Peron was set free when Peronist workers from the industrial districts marched on Buenos Aires. As a result, Cornejo Saravia's career was almost ruined.

Houston Ties Heat Record

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The sizzling weather equaled another record here Saturday when the temperature soared to 100 for the sixth day in a row.

Only once before in the 30 years the Weather Bureau has operated a station at the airport, have six consecutive days of 100 degree weather been recorded. That was Aug. 10-15, 1948.

Forecaster George Duncan said the airport temperature reached 100 degrees at 1:15 p.m., but dropped to 99 minutes later.

Union Parish County Agent Woodrow A. Downs was named Saturday as one of three Louisiana men to receive the Distinguished Service Award of the National Association of County Agricultural Agents for 1962.

Downs, of Farmerville, also was elected new secretary - treasurer, of the Louisiana County Agents, as the group wound up its three-day 16th annual summer convention here Saturday.

The two other recipients of the DSA awards also were elected to official posts in the County Agents association. George R. Queen of New Orleans was named vice-president, and Murphy Veillon of Abbeville was elected a district director.

COURAGEOUS TEEN-AGER

Armless Girl, 14, Masters Writing

CHICAGO (AP) — Helen Urquhart, born 14 years ago without arms, has learned to write with an artificial hand powered by her shoulder muscles.

The courageous teen - ager took a giant step toward independence Friday when she was discharged from the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago after three weeks of fitting and training with a set of artificial limbs.

Helen, a ninth grade student in a school for handicapped children in Washington, D.C., had learned to use her right foot in performing most of the activities of daily living. She also had learned to swim.

"I want to go to college," she said, "and some day to be a teacher."

She manipulates the right arm and hand through the harnessing of muscle power in her shoulders. The left arm, for the present, is passive.

"I think it's nice," she said as she showed off her new limbs.

Colin McLaurin, project director at the institute, said Helen has a more serious handicap than most of the children born recently with deformities blamed on the drug, Thalidomide.

"Many of these children have flipper - like arms," he said, "and can use them to manipluate artificial limbs."

Helen's father, John G., a retired Navy commander, and her mother have had her in therapy since she was 4 years old. Her brother, Robert, 19, and sister, Jennifer, 1, both have normal arms.

Speculations Fly On Long Stay Aloft

MOSCOW (AP) — A third Soviet cosmonaut was hurled into orbit Saturday, ate three meals, moved about his space cabin and then turned in for his night's sleep, Moscow radio said. There was speculation he might stay aloft a week.

A Soviet broadcast said Premier Khrushchev mentioned in a message to the newest astronaut, Maj. Andrian G. Nikolayv, that he would have "quite a number of orbits."

Nikolayev went to sleep at 10 p.m. (2 p.m. EST.) and the radio said there would be no further Moscow broadcast reports on his progress until Sunday morning.

REPORT ISSUED

At 10 p.m. Moscow time, Tass announced that Nikolayev had completed seven orbits, traveling about 200,000 miles.

Moscow radio said his three meals included one of "natural" food. Previous spacemen, Soviet and American, had taken their food from tubes.

Nikolayev reported that his appetite was good, that weightlessness had caused him no qualms, and that he took over the hand controls twice, enabling him to direct orientation of the ship, Soviet reports said.

The Kremlin urged Washington to withhold high-altitude nuclear tests that might imperil their newest astronaut, a 32-year-old air force veteran who gives himself the code name of "Sokol." That is Russian for a bird of prey.

In Washington, the government promised to set off no high-altitude tests and wished Nikolayev a happy landing. Privately, U.S. officials regarded the appeal as propaganda. They said they

2 Aircraft Plummet Into River

NEW HOPE, Pa. (AP) — Two armed forces helicopters plunged into the Delaware River within 100 yards of each other Saturday. The five crewmen on one and three on the other escaped unhurt.

The first craft to go down was a U.S. Marine Corps helicopter en route from New River, N.C., to Brooklyn, N.Y., on a training mission.

It plunged into the river about a mile north of this Bucks County community after its roter blades snagged electric lines which span the river.

The lines fell on a freight train on the New Jersey side of the river, causing slight damage to the train's engine and delaying it several hours.

Power to New Hope was out for several hours until crews from the Philadelphia Electric Co. restored it.

The second helicopter, dispatched from nearby Willow Grove Naval Air Station to photograph the wreckage of the first lost power while hovering over the scene.

Like the first, it fell about 10 feet before striking the water. The five men in the Marine craft and the three in the Navy one were able to wade ashore.

A spokesman at Willow Grov said the pilot of the Marine he copter, Marine Lt. Richard (Rittenhouse, apparently was usi the river as a guide and did n see the power lines.

Mercury Skids To Record Lows

By The Associated Press

Weather patterns provided sunny skies for most of the country Saturday and sent temperatures dipping to record-breaking low levels over sections of the Midwest and Northeast.

Extreme heat continued to blanket the Southwest and South where some communities have had more than a month of 100-degree temperatures.

Record-breaking cool temperatures for the date were reported Saturday as far south as Louisville, Ky.

REPORT RECORDS

Louisville reported a morning low of 53.1, nearly four degrees below the previous mark of 57 set in 1922.

In Milwaukee, a reading of 47 degrees was three degrees below the previous record of 50 set Aug. 11, 1884 and equalled on that date in 1960.

Pittsburgh's 1884 record of 52 was bettered with a reading of 50.

Other cities with record lows for the date included New York 56, Buffalo, N.Y., 48, Rochester, N.Y., 49, and Philadelphia 52.

A belt of hot weather stretched from southern Mississippi into the Southwest. Warmer temperatures also were reported in the Great Lakes and Ohio Valley regions.

Showers moved across the Midwest in the upper and middle Mississippi River Valley in the wake of the cool air front moving across the northeast.

Heavy thunderstorms pelted parts of North Dakota including Devils Lake, Minot and Fargo.

Heavy rainfall occurred Friday night near Velva, N.D., causing flash floods that were blamed for two deaths. Rainfall estimates ranged up to six inches.

Scattered showers were reported Saturday in southern Florida and a heavy morning fog was reported in sections of West Virginia.

GI Killed At Bridge By Vehicle

SUMTER, S. C. (UPI) — A soldier of the 101st Airborne Division was run over and killed Saturday while guarding a bridge during operation Swift Strike II. The paratrooper's death marked the sixth fatality in the massive exercise that began last Sunday.

The death occurred when the paratropper was struck by a military vehicle at Ellerbee Mill, S. C., five miles north of here. He was part of a force representing the U. S. military aid sent to a mythical ally on the defensive thus far in the war game.

The 101st Airborne Division landed four battle groups to aid the mythical U. S. ally Renloa.

Officials said an investigation has been launched into the paratrooper's death. Name of the soldier was withheld pending notification of next of kin. The 101st Airborne Division is stationed at Ft. Campbell, Ky.

The fatality came as friendly forces of the beleaguered Renloa mounted a counter attack in the operation.

A pilot was killed Friday night when his jet fighter failed to pull out of a dive and crashed during an attack mission. Two soldiers drowned during a night exercise and two more were killed in separate jeep and automobile accidents during the exercise.

About 70,000 troops are taking part in the Army-Air Force exercise designed to test service teamwork and coordination of the U. S. Strike Command. The maneuver is the largest staged in the United States since World War II.

A Hot Sunday Predicted Here

Heat remains the prospect today for sweltering Monroe and vicinity. The weatherman predicts a high of 98 to follow up Saturday's 97.

Compromise Ends Crisis In Argentina

Feuding Generals Okay Peron Foe As War Minister

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—Feuding army chiefs accepted a compromise choice Saturday night for war minister, apparently ending a four-day crisis that had brought Argentina close to civil war.

President Jose Maria Guido, whose five-month-old regime was nearly toppled in the upheaval, swore in retired Brig. Gen. Jose Cornejo Saravia, 53, and ordered rival troops that had ringed the capital back to their barracks.

FOE OF PERON

Saravia, long a foe of ex-dictator Juan D. Peron, was proposed by the rebel leadership. He was described as a close friend of Lt. Gen. Arturo Ossorio Arana, a previous rebel choice for the job.

The field commander of the rebel front, Maj. Gen. Federico Toranzo Montero, who sparked the latest crisis last Wednesday, said he had ordered his own forces back to their barracks and bases.

Loyalist elements in the army said they accepted the compromise war minister in the interests of the Guido government and the constitution.

Only 50 to 60 people, most of them army officers identified with the rebel cause, attended the swearing-in ceremony at the government building.

Soon afterward, police released units that had been held ready throughout the crisis, and the air force lifted a ban on private or unscheduled flights over Argentine territory.

At the height of the crisis, some rebel leaders said they were aiming for Guido's scalp and not just a Cabinet reshuffle. They defined their objective as the creation of "a democratic military dictatorship to rule the country for at least five years."

In 1945, the new war minister was one of a group of young officers who rebelled and jailed Peron, who was then a vice president and minister of war.

Peron was set free when Peronist workers from the industrial districts marched on Buenos Aires. As a result, Cornejo Saravia's career was almost ruined.

Houston Ties Heat Record

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The sizzling weather equaled another record here Saturday when the temperature soared to 100 for the sixth day in a row.

Only once before in the 30 years the Weather Bureau has operated a station at the airport, have six consecutive days of 100 degree weather been recorded. That was Aug. 10-15, 1948.

Forecaster George Duncan said the airport temperature reached 100 degrees at 1:15 p.m., but dropped to 99 minutes later.

Downs, of Farmerville, also was elected new secretary - treasurer, of the Louisiana County Agents, as the group wound up its three-day 16th annual summer convention here Saturday.

The two other recipients of the DSA awards also were elected to official posts in the County Agents association. George R. Queen of New Orleans was named vice-president, and Murphy Veillon of Abbeville was elected a district director.

PRESENTATION SET

Downs, Queen and Veillon will be presented with the Distinguished Service Awards at the County Agents' association national convention in Las Cruces, N.M., Aug. 26-30, according to Raymond McDuff, state awards committee chairman.

Ellender stressed the urgency of passing a farm bill. The House of Representatives killed the bill submitted this year by the Kennedy administration.

COURAGEOUS TEEN-AGER

Armless Girl, 14, Masters Writing

CHICAGO (AP) — Helen Urguhart, born 14 years ago without arms, has learned to write with an artificial hand powered by her shoulder muscles.

The courageous teen - ager took a giant step toward independence Friday when she was discharged from the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago after three weeks of fitting and training with a set of artificial limbs.

Helen, a ninth grade student in a school for handicapped children in Washington, D.C., had learned to use her right foot in performing most of the activities of daily living. She also had learned to swim.

"I want to go to college," she said, "and some day to be a teacher."

She manipulates the right arm and hand through the harnessing of muscle power in her shoulders. The left arm, for the present, is passive.

"I think it's nice," she said as she showed off her new limbs.

Colin McLaurin, project director at the institute, said Helen has a more serious handicap than most of the children born recently with deformities blamed on the drug, Thalidomide.

"Many of these children have flipper - like arms," he said, "and can use them to manipluate artificial limbs."

Helen's father, John G., a retired Navy commander, and her mother have had her in therapy since she was 4 years old. Her brother, Robert, 19, and sister, Jennifer, 1, both have normal arms.

Speculations Fly On Long Stay Aloft

MOSCOW (AP) — A third Soviet cosmonaut was hurled into orbit Saturday, ate three meals, moved about his space cabin and then turned in for his night's sleep, Moscow radio said. There was speculation he might stay aloft a week.

A Soviet broadcast said Premier Khrushchev mentioned in a message to the newest astronaut, Maj. Andrian G. Nikolayv, that he would have "quite a number of orbits."

Nikolayev went to sleep at 10 p.m. (2 p.m. EST.) and the radio said there would be no further Moscow broadcast reports on his progress until Sunday morning.

REPORT ISSUED

At 10 p.m. Moscow time, Tass announced that Nikolayev had completed seven orbits, traveling about 200,000 miles.

Moscow radio said his three meals included one of "natural" food. Previous spacemen, Soviet and American, had taken their food from tubes.

Nikolayev reported that his appetite was good, that weightlessness had caused him no qualms, and that he took over the hand controls twice, enabling him to direct orientation of the ship, Soviet reports said.

The Kremlin urged Washington to withhold high-altitude nuclear tests that might imperil their newest astronaut, a 32-year-old air force veteran who gives himself the code name of "Sokol." That is Russian for a bird of prey.

In Washington, the government promised to set off no high-altitude tests and wished Nikolayev a happy landing. Privately, U.S. officials regarded the appeal as propaganda. They said they

2 Aircraft Plummet Into River

NEW HOPE, Pa. (AP) — Two armed forces helicopters plunged into the Delaware River within 100 yards of each other Saturday. The five crewmen on one and three on the other escaped unhurt.

The first craft to go down was a U.S. Marine Corps helicopter en route from New River, N.C., to Brooklyn, N.Y., on a training mission.

It plunged into the river about a mile north of this Bucks County community after its roter blades snagged electric lines which span the river.

The lines fell on a freight train on the New Jersey side of the river, causing slight damage to the train's engine and delaying it several hours.

Power to New Hope was out for several hours until crews from the Philadelphia Electric Co. restored it.

The second helicopter, dispatched from nearby Willow Grove Naval Air Station to photograph the wreckage of the first, lost power while hovering over the scene.

Like the first, it fell about 100 feet before striking the water. The five men in the Marine craft and the three in the Navy one were able to wade ashore.

A spokesman at Willow Grove said the pilot of the Marine helicopter, Marine Lt. Richard G. Rittenhouse, apparently was using the river as a guide and did not see the power lines.

KIDNAP-SLAYING

Suspect To Ask For Trial Shift

ONEONTA, Ala. (UPI) — Michael Anthony Mayola, accused kidnap-killer en route from Baltimore, Md., late Saturday, said he would ask that his trial be removed from Blount county.

"Those folks in Oneonta would still be talking about this 60 years from now," he said. "They would probably close their businesses and flock to the courtroom en masse."

The 28-year-old barber is accused of kidnaping and murdering 11-year-old Larry Thomas of Midfield Aug. 2.

Bushy-haired Mayola made the statements to reporters aboard a train speeding from Baltimore Saturday.

Mayola said he would try to "make a deal" with Alabama authorities to have his trial transferred to either Jefferson, Montgomery, or Mobile counties.

"It's not that I'm afraid of dying," he said. "If they have capital punishment in Alabama, I'm sure that's what I'll get."

He was turned over to Blount County Sheriff Alex Stevenson, Deputy Jack King, and State Investigator Roy McDowell Saturday in Baltimore.

Before Mayola was released to the Alabama lawmen, wardens at the county jail where he was being held in Baltimore gave him the $151 he had when arrested.

The money will be used to pay off debts, he said. "I owe a preacher in West Virginia $400," he said. "It looks like I'm not going to have a chance to use money anymore." He said he also owed several persons here.

"The two days after the murder were the most miserable days I've ever spent," Mayola said. "I was all torn up inside and knew I had to surrender. I figured a man that does something like I did isn't fit to remain with society."

Mayola said he could lie good and probably could have gotten away with the crime indefinitely. "But you can't live with a lie like that. It's just too big," he said.

He told reporters he did not want to surrender to city police in Alabama, but preferred to give himself up to the FBI. He said he had asked federal authorities to try him in any state other than Alabama, but was told they had no jurisdiction in the case. If I can't get a change of venue, he said, I want to have the trial "as soon as possible." He said he would plead guilty no matter where he is tried.

Mayola is charged with enticing Larry Thomas and Roger Canady, 12, into his car Aug. 2, letting Canady out in Fairfield, about 40 miles from here, and driving Larry away to his death.

Four days later Larry's body was found in a ditch surrounding Mayola's shabby rural house here.

ICC Refuses GAO Acess To Records

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interstate Commerce Commission stood firm Saturday on its refusal to let the General Accounting Office (GAO) examine ICC records relating to the New Haven Railroad.

But ICC Chairman Rupert L. Murphy, in a letter to Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., said the commission is willing to furnish such information to appropriate committees of Congress if they ask for it.

Murphy repeated an earlier refusal to let the GAO see the documents on the ground that they are papers related to "the internal decisional process" of the ICC. The GAO is a sort of congressional watchdog agency in government expenditures.

Murphy said if he acceded to the GAO demand, "it would be difficult to refuse similar demands from representatives of the executive branch." The ICC is a quasi - judicial independent agency, not under direct control of either the executive or legislative branches.

A top official of the GAO commented that Murphy's claim of possible interference from the executive branch "does not add up. It is clear we are in the legislative branch . . . We don't see any merit in Mr. Murphy's position."

The ICC affair was referred to Moss in his capacity as chairman of a House Government Information subcommittee, which fights executive department and independent agency restrictions on availability of information to the public.

The GAO reached its stalemate with the ICC when it investigated ICC's handling of a loan-guarantee program for railroads.

In the course of the inquiry, GAO auditors requested the file on a typical loan guarantee, and were given the file on a $40-million loan to the New York Central Railroad.

But when the GAO agents asked to see the New Haven loan file, Murphy said some of the New Haven matter was still pending before the commission and that the GAO did not need the information, anyway.

Police Occupied By Theft Cases Here Saturday

Theft cases occupied a large portion of Twin Cities police officers' time Saturday.

West Monroe officers booked a woman on four counts of theft while Monroe police booked two persons on theft counts and were investigating a burglary.

The West Monroe department booked Edith Lary, 32, of Route Four, Box 390, West Monroe, on four separate counts of theft of money from Gibson's Wholesale on Cypress Street.

Monroe officers booked two Negroes on separate theft counts. One of them, Willie Good, 36, of No. 16 Breard's Alley, was allegedly caught by a police officer going through the pockets of a Litro, La., man around 4:30 a.m. Saturday. Good was booked for theft and held under a $110 bond.

Around 10 a.m., Lewis Champion, 25-year-old West Monroe Negro, was booked for theft and vagrancy and held under a $500 bond. Champion, who gave his address as 1013 Railroad Ave., allegedly was seen take a pair of black slacks from underneath his shirt and hide them in the grass on Jefferson Street. The incident was reported to police, who after investigation, found the slacks and Champion.

Monroe police were also investigating the burglary of a Ritchie Grocery Co. truck that occurred Saturday morning or late Friday night. An unknown amount of cigarettes were taken from the truck when it was left parked on the lot at the grocery company warehouse on Louisville Avenue.

Late Saturday night, West Monroe police were investigating the theft of a metal box containing 100 shares of securities, and a $150 check made payable to Fred Gewin and signed by G. T. Germany. The stocks, broken down into 50 shares of common and 50 of preferred, were stocks on Ouachita Security Co. The box was taken from the home of Fred Gewin at 804 Crosley St., in West Monroe, sometime since July 15.

Six Hurricanes May Hit Before End Of Season

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — Morton Dunn, director of the national hurricane center for the U. S. weather bureau at Miami, Fla., said Saturday forecasters expect three to six hurricanes before the season ends.

Dunn, in a talk before a one-day conference on hurricane planning, said there were 10 hurricanes in 1961.

"We think the high frequency of hurricane activity will not reoccur this year, but we still expect three to six before the season is over," he said, adding, "This is no forecast."

Hurricanes are "largely a matter of chance" depending on atmospheric conditions, he said. The only yardstick weather officials have to predict their frequency is to relate them to atmospheric temperature cycles.

He said weather conditions have been very unfavorable for hurricane formations this summer.

Judge Grants Execution Stay

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—U.S. Dist. Judge William E. Miller stayed the execution Saturday of Clayton Dawson, scheduled to die Sept. 3 for raping a Memphis woman.

He granted Dawson a writ of habeas corpus on the contention of his attorney, Fred Graham, that the law under which Dawson was convicted is void because the Tennessee Legislature had not been reapportioned since 1901.

Florida Votes To Reapportion

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Spurred by the federal courts, the Florida Legislature voted Saturday for a 46-senator, 135-representative plan as a means of giving more populous counties additional representation.

The legislature directed that the proposed constitutional amendment would go before voters in the Nov. 6 general election.

Through the action, large counties got a more liberal reapportionment formula out of the legislature than they have ever managed before.

The eight proposed additional senators and the 40 more House members would be elected before the 1963 session of the legislature. The resulting House would be under control of the most populous counties; the smaller counties would hold a thin margin in the Senate.

AT LITTLE THEATRE

Problem Comedy Closes Season

By JOHN CALE
Staff Critic

The satirical play on modern family life, "Anniversary Waltz," which opened Friday at Strauss Playhouse, will close out the second summer series sponsored jointly by the Little Theatre and Northeast's speech department.

The Jerome Chodorov - Joseph Fields comedy was brought to life by Little Theatre director Richard Clark assisted by George Brian and W. J. Haddad. An even dozen players made up the cast:

June Sherman	as	Millie
Bobby Smith	as	Okkie Walters
Kay Oslin	as	Alice Walters
Linda Ballenger	as	Debbie Walters
Jim Nuckels	as	Bud Walters
Harrell Lary	as	Chris Steelman
Pat Peyton	as	Janice Revere
Arthur Griffith	as	Harry
Charles DePoe	as	Sam
Garland Moore	as	Mr. Gans
Feelee Carmack	as	Mrs. Gans
Phil Lisotta	as	Door Fixer

PROBLEM

"Anniversary Waltz" is a problem comedy both in subject matter and in presentation. As a play, it lightens up many dark corners where love and marriage in this age decidedly do not go together like a horse and carriage. But the play's message, aimed at too much familiarity under one roof, has to be overlooked when the parts for the Walters children, Okkie and Debbie, are cast.

The lines are true and effective, and Bobby Smith and Linda Ballenger handled them well. But it's to be hoped the children can laugh them off and shift to less self - expression and progressive education "back at the ranch."

Kay Oslin, making her Monroe debut as Mrs. Alice Walters, scored the local critic's award for charming appearance, stage conduct and vocal expression. She was completely convincing and won the audience's sympathy even while putting forth the most moth - eaten principles of child psychology.

June Sherman, Arthur Griffith, Charles DePoe and Phil Lisotta appeared to carry heavier roles than is usual for maids and handy-men. Maybe this was because they offered editorial comment concerning the principals' lines after the manner of choruses in the old Greek dramas. At any rate, Maid Millie's advice to the confused Mr. Walters to "play it by ear" achieved a measure of stability in contrast to three generations and business associates — all of whom were groping for simplicity in a life where things aren't simple any more.

Garland Moore and Feejee Carmack as parents of Alice Walters assured the audience that grandparents are also caught up in this age of raw nerves. Harrell Lary even came through with a psychosomatic aching back, which he cured (by some miracle) without a rocking chair.

Pat Peyton, who stepped into the part of the oft-married advertising client only a week before opening, gave a creditable performance. Jim Nuckels showed a fine emotional range in his first major Little Theatre role.

FOR ADULTS

"Anniversary Waltz" falls definitely in the "adults only" category. The writers are not trying to shock, however, nor are they exploiting "off color" situations. The play, which has all the earmarks of a detergent serial at first deals finally with several real family problems and offers humor as the best means to endure if not solve them.

The play is slated to run through Monday evening.

Predict New Orbit Record

LONDON (AP)—British scientists viewed the launching of the third Soviet astronaut Saturday as the start of a long space flight—perhaps a week—to see how man might weather weightlessness on a trip to the moon.

The British space watching station at Jodrell Bank swung into action, tracking the flight of Vostok III and listening to the voice of its pilot, Maj. Andrian Nikolayev.

"He cannot now be brought back to earth until tomorrow morning," said the Jodrell Bank director, Sir Bernard Lovell.

This would at least equal the previous longest space flight of 25 hours by Soviet Maj. Gherman Titov last August.

"We expected the Russians would have a long flight lasting several days and this appears to be it," Lovell said.

Referring to the Russian program to get a man on the moon, Lovell added: "I think the Russians will attempt to get a man up in space for a week as soon as possible as a step toward this achievement."

Such an experiment would test man's reaction to a prolonged period of weightlessness which the first moon man would undergo. Titov reported reactions similar to seasickness due to weightlessness on his 25-hour flight.

Lovell said a flight of several days "would represent a rapid stride in the Russian attempt to get a man to the moon."

The president of the British Interplanetary Society, Dr. L. R. Shepherd said.

Another British scientist, Dr. Reginald Smith-Rose of the radio research station at Slough, said the strength of the signals from Vostok III suggested a fair amount of power in the space ship.

Jodrell Bank brought the smaller of its two radio telescopes into play. Twice it picked up snatches of the astronaut's conversation.

European newspapers plastered the story over their front pages.

The story occupied all but a small portion of the London Evening Standard's front page under the headline "Andy in Orbit."

"We think the high frequency of hurricane activity will not reoccur this year, but we still expect three to six before the season is over," he said, adding, "This is no forecast."

Hurricanes are "largely a matter of chance" depending on atmospheric conditions, he said. The only yardstick weather officials have to predict their frequency is to relate them to atmospheric temperature cycles.

He said weather conditions have been very unfavorable for hurricane formations this summer.

Florida Votes To Reapportion

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Spurred by the federal courts, the Florida Legislature voted Saturday for a 46-senator, 135-representative plan as a means of giving more populous counties additional representation.

The legislature directed that the proposed constitutional amendment would go before voters in the Nov. 6 general election.

Through the action, large counties got a more liberal reapportionment formula out of the legislature than they have ever managed before.

The eight proposed additional senators and the 40 more House members would be elected before the 1963 session of the legislature. The resulting House would be under control of the most populous counties; the smaller counties would hold a thin margin in the Senate.

Police Occupied By Theft Cases Here Saturday

Theft cases occupied a large portion of Twin Cities police officers' time Saturday.

West Monroe officers booked a woman on four counts of theft while Monroe police booked two persons on theft counts and were investigating a burglary.

The West Monroe department booked Edith Lary, 32, of Route Four, Box 390, West Monroe, on four separate counts of theft of money from Gibson's Wholesale on Cypress Street.

Monroe officers booked two Negroes on separate theft counts. One of them, Willie Good, 36, of No. 16 Breard's Alley, was allegedly caught by a police officer going through the pockets of a Litro, La., man around 4:30 a.m. Saturday. Good was booked for theft and held under a $110 bond.

Around 10 a.m., Lewis Champion, 25-year-old West Monroe Negro, was booked for theft and vagrancy and held under a $500 bond. Champion, who gave his address as 1013 Railroad Ave., allegedly was seen take a pair of black slacks from underneath his shirt and hide them in the grass on Jefferson Street. The incident was reported to police, who after investigation, found the slacks and Champion.

Monroe police were also investigating the burglary of a Ritchie Grocery Co. truck that occurred Saturday morning or late Friday night. An unknown amount of cigarettes were taken from the truck when it was left parked on the lot at the grocery company warehouse on Louisville Avenue.

Late Saturday night, West Monroe police were investigating the theft of a metal box containing 100 shares of securities, and a $150 check made payable to Fred Gewin and signed by G. T. Germany. The stocks, broken down into 50 shares of common and 50 of preferred, were stocks on Ouachita Security Co. The box was taken from the home of Fred Gewin at 804 Crosley St., in West Monroe, sometime since July 15.

Judge Grants Execution Stay

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—U.S. Dist. Judge William E. Miller stayed the execution Saturday of Clayton Dawson, scheduled to die Sept. 3 for raping a Memphis woman.

He granted Dawson a writ of habeas corpus on the contention of his attorney, Fred Graham, that the law under which Dawson was convicted is void because the Tennessee Legislature had not been reapportioned since 1901.

AT LITTLE THEATRE

Problem Comedy Closes Season

By JOHN CALE
Staff Critic

The satirical play on modern family life, "Anniversary Waltz," which opened Friday at Strauss Playhouse, will close out the second summer series sponsored jointly by the Little Theatre and Northeast's speech department.

The Jerome Chodorov - Joseph Fields comedy was brought to life by Little Theatre director Richard Clark assisted by George Brian and W. J. Haddad. An even dozen players made up the cast:

June Sherman	as	Millie
Bobby Smith	as	Okkie Walters
Kay Oslin	as	Alice Walters
Linda Ballenger	as	Debbie Walters
Jim Nuckels	as	Bud Walters
Harrell Lary	as	Chris Steelman
Pat Peyton	as	Janice Revere
Arthur Griffith	as	Harry
Charles DePoe	as	Sam
Garland Moore	as	Mr. Gans
Feejee Carmack	as	Mrs. Gans
Phil Lisotta	as	Door Fixer

PROBLEM

"Anniversary Waltz" is a problem comedy both in subject matter and in presentation. As a play, it lightens up many dark corners where love and marriage in this age decidedly do not go together like a horse and carriage. But the play's message, aimed at too much familiarity under one roof, has to be overlooked when the parts for the Walters children, Okkie and Debbie, are cast.

The lines are true and effective, and Bobby Smith and Linda Ballenger handled them well. But it's to be hoped the children can laugh them off and shift to less self - expression and progressive education "back at the ranch."

Kay Oslin, making her Monroe debut as Mrs. Alice Walters, scored the local critic's award for charming appearance, stage conduct and vocal expression. She was completely convincing and won the audience's sympathy even while putting forth the most moth - eaten principles of child psychology.

June Sherman, Arthur Griffith, Charles DePoe and Phil Lisotta appeared to carry heavier roles than is usual for maids and handy-men. Maybe this was because they offered editorial comment concerning the principals' lines after the manner of choruses in the old Greek dramas. At any rate, Maid Millie's advice to the confused Mr. Walters to "play it by ear" achieved a measure of stability in contrast to three generations and business associates — all of whom were groping for simplicity in a life where things aren't simple any more.

Garland Moore and Feejee Carmack as parents of Alice Walters assured the audience that grandparents are also caught up in this age of raw nerves. Harrell Lary even came through with a psychosomatic aching back, which he cured (by some miracle) without a rocking chair.

Pat Peyton, who stepped into the part of the oft-married advertising client only a week before opening, gave a creditable performance. Jim Nuckels showed a fine emotional range in his first major Little Theatre role.

FOR ADULTS

"Anniversary Waltz" falls definitely in the "adults only" category. The writers are not trying to shock, however, nor are they exploiting "off color" situations. The play, which has all the earmarks of a detergent serial at first deals finally with several real family problems and offers humor as the best means to endure if not solve them.

The play is slated to run through Monday evening.

Predict New Orbit Record

LONDON (AP)—British scientists viewed the launching of the third Soviet astronaut Saturday as the start of a long space flight —perhaps a week—to see how man might weather weightlessness on a trip to the moon.

The British space watching station at Jodrell Bank swung into action, tracking the flight of Vostok III and listening to the voice of its pilot, Maj. Andrian Nikolayev.

"He cannot now be brought back to earth until tomorrow morning," said the Jodrell Bank director, Sir Bernard Lovell.

This would at least equal the previous longest space flight of 25 hours by Soviet Maj. Gherman Titov last August.

"We expected the Russians would have a long flight lasting several days and this appears to be it," Lovell said.

Referring to the Russian program to get a man on the moon, Lovell added: "I think the Russians will attempt to get a man up in space for a week as soon as possible as a step toward this achievement."

Such an experiment would test man's reaction to a prolonged period of weightlessness which the first moon man would undergo. Titov reported reactions similar to seasickness due to weightlessness on his 25-hour flight.

Lovell said a flight of several days "would represent a rapid stride in the Russian attempt to get a man to the moon."

The president of the British Interplanetary Society, Dr. L. R. Shepherd said.

Another British scientist, Dr. Reginald Smith-Rose of the radio research station at Slough, said the strength of the signals from Vostok III suggested a fair amount of power in the space ship.

Jodrell Bank brought the smaller of its two radio telescopes into play. Twice it picked up snatches of the astronaut's conversation.

European newspapers plastered the story over their front pages.

The story occupied all but a small portion of the London Evening Standard's front page under the headline "Andy in Orbit."

Police Close All Parks In Tense Albany

ALBANY, Ga. (UPI) — Police closed all parks and libraries in this racially-troubled city Saturday when mixed groups tried to integrate the public facilities.

Five persons, including a white girl, a white man and three Negroes, later were arrested in a separate incident when they sought service at a motel (Holiday Inn) restaurant.

Police Chief Laurie Pritchett announced he was closing the parks and libaries "indefinitely in the interest of public safety."

"The reopening," he said, "depends entirely on the situation and the climate of tension in the city of Albany."

Almost simultaneously the city commission issued a statement which, in effect, again rejected Negro demands for the establishment of a bi-racial committee to work out the city's integration problems.

The statement said the "commission has taken note of the departure of (integration leader) Martin Luther King Jr. from this city. It is the hope of this body that the leaving of this recognized agitator will be the beginning of a relaxation of tension for colored and white citizens alike. It is the hope of this commission that in a quieter atmosphere a new and responsible voice for the colored citizenry of Albany will be heard."

The statement added that the commission was willing to hear "any responsible law-abiding citizens at any commission meeting."

City Manager Stephen A. Roos later explained, however, that the commission was still standing by its refusal to hold any special negotiations with Negro leaders.

Prince Has His Third Mishap In Two Days

TORQUAY, England (AP) — Prince Philip encountered his third nautical misadventure in two days Saturday—a collision of his royal yacht and a small sightseers' boat.

The boat, about 30 feet long and with five persons aboard, swept out of control in a squall and banged against the bows of the 5,000-ton royal yacht Britannia. The craft bounced away again after tearing off about 25 feet of Britannia's paintwork. No one appeared hurt.

Queen Elizabeth's husband had gone out in the Britannia to start the Torbay-to-Rotterdam race for tall ships.

Only Friday Philip was pitched into the sea when his sailing boat capsized. On being towed ashore a big crane collapsed and crashed to the waterside only inches from the prince.

Lobster May Help To Lure Tourists

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. Travel Service has decided to use lobster to lure foreign visitors to America because a ham on rye and a burger in a basket failed to work.

The lobster is a new pitch to an overseas promotional campaign which had to be changed because a majority of Frenchmen in recent survey regard American cooking as "poor."

It all started when the service decided to use American food as a motif for its tourist campaign. A public relations firm prepared and sent to Europe a colorful poster depicting 111 different sandwiches served by typical American restaurants.

The poster did not do so well.

"We were stunned," a travel service spokesman said. "Most of these people just glanced at the poster, shuddered, and declared they would rather stay at home than travel to the United States and eat those things."

But the travel service people did not give up. Instead of using bait that appeals to Americans, they sought to find out what Europeans like. The result was a new poster. Due to go on display later this year, it shows a big Maine lobster, with a typical section of the New England shore in the background.

"We've already tested it, and it went over big," the spokesman said.

The travel service, established last year as part of the Commerce Department's effort to help stem the flow of dollars abroad, is justly proud of its record despite setbacks resulting mainly from inexperience.

During the first four months of the year, 147,000 visitors came from overseas. An increase of 16 per cent over the same period last year.

From Europe, France recorded the highest increase with 52 per cent. Travel from Switzerland was up 25 per cent, Britain, 11 per cent, Germany, 9 per cent, and Italy, 6 per cent.

Visitors spent an average of $520 each. This, however, includes Canadians as well as people from all over the world who come here on business trips. The average pleasure-seeking tourist apparently spends considerably less although comparative statistics are not available.

About one-third of all overseas tourists entering the United States at New York visit that city only. The other 65 per cent travel beyond, Washington, 25 per cent, San Francisco, 23 per cent; the North Atlantic and New England states, 22 per cent; Chicago, 18 per cent; West Coast areas, 14 per cent, Midwest, 13 per cent; Los Angeles, 12 per cent; Pittsburgh, Miami and southeastern areas, 8 per cent; the Southwest, 7 per cent; and other areas, 16 per cent.

Unlike the majority of vacationers in Europe who go to a resort and stay put, most of the foreigners try to see as many places in America as possible.

Asked what they liked least, 24 per cent said they found no serious fault; 12 per cent said the food, services and other facilities were poor; 8 per cent disliked the attitudes of the American people; 7 per cent said there were too many crowds and too much rushing; 6 per cent resented entry formalities; and 4 per cent thought prices were too high.

FOR COMMUNICATIONS

House To Probe Space Spendings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House investigators Saturday set up an inquiry to determine whether the government has wasted time and money developing four separate space communication satellite systems.

Rep. Joseph E. Karth, D.-Minn., chairman of a House space subcommittee, said that both military and civilian officials will be questioned on possible duplication and overlapping when the hearings begin Wednesday.

Names of the systems are Relay, Syncom, Advent and the now-famous Telstar.

The first experimental Telstar, a product of the Bell Telephone System, has already successfully relayed television programs and and other messages across the Atlantic.

Karth said he wants to find out whether the four systems actually are needed and whether separate development has wasted money and previous scientific talent.

The first witness will be Gen. Bernard A. Schriever, head of the Air Force Systems Command. He will be followed by Assistant Army Secretary Finn J. Larsen and witnesses from the Defense Department's office of Research & Evaluation and the Civilian Space Agency.

Telstar is a product of private enterprise and as such is not directly involved in the question of duplication. The other systems are being pushed by the Air Force and the civilian space agency.

Syncom and relay are projects of the space administration (NASA). The first is planned for orbit at 22,300 miles. The second would be used at an altitude of between 600 and 3,400 miles.

Advent was turned over to the Air Force last June after the Defense Department halted the Army's multi-million effort to build it.

Club Notifies Northern City Negroes Coming

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) —The "Freedom 40 Club" of Lake Providence has alerted Mayor Cyril M'Keltgen of Redwood Falls, Minn., that more Negroes are on their way to the Northern city from the South.

J. R. Dillard of the club sent this telegram:

"Suggest you alert Ramsey Hotel Betty Beal, sister and three children freedom-bound to you. Appreciate your efforts on part of James Reid. Apologize for being slow, but making every effort."

The Beal woman and her sister, Barbara Beal, plus the children, left on a bus for Redwood Falls Friday night at the expense of the club. The Ramsey Hotel is where Reid received lodging.

Reid is a Negro cotton chopper sent to Redwood Falls several days ago by the club after Richard Parsons, Justice Department attorney, was quoted as saying that the city had plenty of jobs. Redwood Falls is Parsons hometown.

Parsons is currently in Shreveport, working on a civil rights case. He participated in the voting case in East Carroll Parish.

Eugene Cathey, 28, another Lake Providence Negro, caught the 12:10 p.m. bus Saturday from Tallulah for Redwood Falls. He is an agricultural laborer.

A second telegram was sent to the mayor of Redwoods Falls:

"Mayor Cyril M'Keltgen Business picking up. Freedom Rider Engene Cathey boarded bus 12:10 for your city. Please extend same courtesies afforded other Freedom Riders. Thanks. Freedom 40 Club, Lake Providence. J. R. Dillard."

ON GULF COAST

Barnett Challenged To Raid Gamblers

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — The Biloxi-Gulfport Daily Herald Saturday challenged Gov. Ross Barnett to raid alleged gambling spots along the plush, resort-conscious Mississippi Gulf Coast.

In an editorial, the newspaper reminded Barnett that the Armed Forces military control board recently placed five Gulf Coast establishments off limits.

"There must be gambling," the editorial said, "otherwise the military board would have had no occasion to institute off-limits orders . . ."

The newspapers also quoted the wife of an unidentified Keesler Air Force Base officer as saying her husband lost $3,000 while gambling in a lounge along the coast between Biloxi and Gulfport.

Barnett, commenting in Jackson, said "my most recent contacts with the coast indicated there is very little gambling going on. I think they're trying to make a mountain out of almost nothing," he added.

"But, as long as I'm governor we're not going to have wide-open gambling. I think they'll find that out," Barnett said. He promised an investigation next week.

The newspaper said that gambling spots along the coast apparently started operating again without the knowledge of Barnett, who sent ax-wielding National Guard troops to raid clubs last June 13.

After the raid, Barnett promised it would be a "continuous process until gambling is cleaned out on the Gulf Coast and other places."

The Daily Herald said, "based upon the action this week of the military control board, it is evident gambling has not been cleaned out."

Barnett made his raid in June after warning several Harrison County establishments to close gambling operations. "These people are going to have to learn that when I say I mean business, I mean business," Barnett said at the time.

In a reply to Barnett's statement that someone must sign an affidavit for a raid, the Herald said:

"We respectively suggest the governor use the same authorities for the affidavits that were used for the June 13 raids." They added:

"Mr. Governor, what now, sir?"

Soviet Manned Space Launch Not Surprise

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—The director of the Manned Spacecraft Center here said Saturday he is surprised the Soviets did not put two instead of one cosmonaut into orbit.

However, Robert R. Gilruth said he was not at all surprised the Soviets had launched another manned space probe.

"I've been expecting another Russian flight for some time," said the director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration center.

Gilruth said if news reports from the Soviets are correct then it appears the Soviets are apparently using the same type craft as on their other two flights.

He said the most recent Soviet space probe will in no way affect the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's plans to launch astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr. into orbit early this fall.

Orleans Vice Raids Amuse

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Despite a murder and more than 75 arrests, carefree Bourbon Street remains seemingly unconcerned and slightly amused over the five-day-old crackdown on vice in the historic French Quarter.

The throbbing center of the city's nightlife is the first six blocks of gaudy Bourbon—with its 18 strip joints and numerous other night clubs and bistros. The 24-hour-a-day activity (drinking is legal around the clock) spills into the narrow sidestreets.

Vice squad officers stepped up their campaign early Saturday arresting 28 persons in three bars on loitering charges. Officers called two of the places known hangouts for perverts. The dimly-lighted bars were thriving again within an hour after the raids.

"You know, they just might be serious about all this stuff," quipped one Bourbon Street regular. "But they couldn't be—even with all those campaign prompaign promises."

Wags claimed New Orleans Public Service, Inc., which provides the city's lights and gas, sent a thank you note to authorities who ordered strip joints to light up or close up.

Some clubs obeyed the order, but others remained in deep shadows as performers undressed for weekend tourists.

"Half those girls would lose their jobs if the places were lighted," cracked a Bourbon Street resident. "They look much better in the dark."

A noticeable difference since the crackdown is the behavior of the usually noisy barkers whose job it is to entice customers into the strip palaces. In the past, some of the more vigorous barkers literally dragged passers-by into the clubs, hoping they would stay, pay up to $3 for a drink and watch the show.

The Gaslight Lounge — just off Bourbon — was one of the clubs raided early Saturday. Sixteen hours earlier it was the scene of a brawl which ended in the death of Perry Tetenburn, 21, a former St. Petersburg, Fla., resident. William Robert Livesay, 23, married and the father of one child, was booked with murder.

The crack-down was touched off, said acting Dist. Atty. Frank Klein, after David Acock, 21, a former bartender at the Gaslight, was attacked and beaten last weekend. Klein said Acock was a police witness in an assault case.

FOR COMMUNICATIONS

House To Probe Space Spendings

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House investigators Saturday set up an inquiry to determine whether the government has wasted time and money developing four separate space communication satellite systems.

Rep. Joseph E. Karth, D.-Minn., chairman of a House space subcommittee, said that both military and civilian officials will be questioned on possible duplication and overlapping when the hearings begin Wednesday.

Names of the systems are Relay, Syncom, Advent and the now-famous Telstar.

The first experimental Telstar, a product of the Bell Telephone System, has already successfully relayed television programs and and other messages across the Atlantic.

Karth said he wants to find out whether the four systems actually are needed and whether separate development has wasted money and previous scientific talent.

The first witness will be Gen. Bernard A. Schriever, head of the Air Force Systems Command. He will be followed by Assistant Army Secretary Finn J. Larsen and witnesses from the Defense Department's office of Research & Evaluation and the Civilian Space Agency.

Telstar is a product of private enterprise and as such is not directly involved in the question of duplication. The other systems are being pushed by the Air Force and the civilian space agency.

Syncom and relay are projects of the space administration (NASA). The first is planned for orbit at 22,300 miles. The second would be used at an altitude of between 600 and 3,400 miles.

Advent was turned over to the Air Force last June after the Defense Department halted the Army's multi-million effort to build it.

Area County Agent Given Recognition

serves as chairman of the Senate Agriculture committee, warned that unless something is done immediately to cut the cost of the agriculture programs and to provide effective controls of farm production, he fears the taxpayers may revolt.

He levelled a rather stern blow at "a certain organization" in the state, which he said, "has been misrepresenting the facts."

Although the organization remained un-named by Ellender, listeners at the convention recalled that recently the Louisiana Farm Bureau Federation campaigned very actively against the now dead farm bill.

The Louisiana senator said he intends to introduce a bill in this session providing for control of dairy products, even though there will not be time to get complete passage before adjournment.

He explained that the bill will serve notice of his intent to introduce another dairy surplus control bill in the next session, "unless the dairy industry in the meantime puts their own house in order."

Turning to the Telestar communications satellite, Ellender said he favors the Kennedy administration's plan for a private corporation to administer the Telestar program.

"Government control of the program," said Ellender, "would be extremely expensive and would require the government to build a vast telephone system for distribution of messages." He added that he thinks this would be "an invasion of private enterprise."

R U. Johnson, DeSoto parish agent and out-going president of the Association, announced the selection of the three DSA recipients.

He said that the award is given in recognition of "outstanding work over a period of time on behalf of agriculture and better living on the farm."

Queen is agricultural extension agent in Orleans parish, while Veillon is agent for Vermillion parish.

John A. Cox, director of the Louisiana State University Agricultural Extension Service, cited Downs for "providing adequate leadership so that he and his staff have developed and are carrying out a progressive Extension Program in a parish that has steadily decreased in population and in number of farms."

Downs was appointed parish agent three years ago, and immediately began reorganization of the 4-H program and advisory council. Today he has a well-prepared program of work in Union parish, state officials point out.

In 1956, Downs established three five-acre demonstration plots of Coastal Bermuda grass with three farmers in cooperation with the North Louisiana Hill Farm Experiment station.

"Continued demonstrations, tours, television shows, circular letters and news stories have resulted in the spread of this forage crop in 1962 to 3,000 acres of well-established Coastal Bermuda producing an average of five tons of forage per acre," the officials noted

While assistant parish agent, Downs developed a strong leadership program for 4-H Club work in Union parish, resulting in increased participation in Achievement Day, camps, tours and leadership training

He conducted the first parish 4-H spring livestock show held in Farmerville in 1952 and laid the foundation for increased participation and better quality animals

Officials point to a four-fold increase in number of quality beef cattle and hogs in the parish, via continued cooperation with the agents in 4-H club work

Queen "has done outstanding work in improvement of farm-city understanding and cooperation," according to Cox, and has "worked actively and efficiently in the field of consumer education and in marketing of produce crops from the New Orleans vicinity."

Veillon also drew praise from Cox, who stated that, "as a result of the outstanding program developed and carried out by this agent, Vermillion parish is the leading agricultural parish in Louisiana in farm income

"Mr. Veillon has truly demonstrated the importance of technology to the economic and social development of the community he serves."

After six hours aloft, Moscow Radio reported Nikolayev messaged everything was going well, he was carrying out research assignments, and the cabin temperature and pressure were normal serves as chairman of the Senate Agriculture committee, warned that unless something is done immediately to cut the cost of the agriculture programs and to provide effective controls of farm production, he fears the taxpayers may revolt.

He levelled a rather stern blow at "a certain organization" in the state, which he said, "has been misrepresenting the facts."

Although the organization remained un-named by Ellender, listeners at the convention recalled that recently the Louisiana Farm Bureau Federation campaigned very actively against the now dead farm bill.

The Louisiana senator said he intends to introduce a bill in this session providing for control of dairy products, even though there will not be time to get complete passage before adjournment.

He explained that the bill will serve notice of his intent to introduce another dairy surplus control bill in the next session, "unless the dairy industry in the meantime puts their own house in order."

Turning to the Tēlestar communications satellite, Ellender said he favors the Kennedy administration's plan for a private corporation to administer the Telestar program.

"Government control of the program," said Ellender, "would be extremely expensive and would require the government to build a vast telephone system for distribution of messages." He added that he thinks this would be "an invasion of private enterprise."

R. U. Johnson, DeSoto parish agent and out-going president of the Association, announced the selection of the three DSA recipients.

He said that the award is given in recognition of "outstanding work over a period of time on behalf of agriculture and better living on the farm."

Queen is agricultural extension agent in Orleans parish, while Veillon is agent for Vermillion parish.

John A. Cox, director of the Louisiana State University Agricultural Extension Service, cited Downs for "providing adequate leadership so that he and his staff have developed and are carrying out a progressive Extension Program in a parish that has steadily decreased in population and in number of farms."

Downs was appointed parish agent three years ago, and immediately began reorganization of the 4-H program and advisory council. Today he has a well-prepared program of work in Union parish, state officials point out.

In 1956, Downs established three five-acre demonstration plots of Coastal Bermuda grass with three farmers in cooperation with the North Louisiana Hill Farm Experiment station.

"Continued demonstrations, tours, television shows, circular letters and news stories have resulted in the spread of this forage crop in 1962 to 3,000 acres of well-established Coastal Bermuda producing an average of five tons of forage per acre," the officials noted.

While assistant parish agent, Downs developed a strong leadership program for 4-H Club work in Union parish, resulting in increased participation in Achievement Day, camps, tours and leadership training.

He conducted the first parish 4-H spring livestock show held in Farmerville in 1952 and laid the foundation for increased participation and better quality animals.

Officials point to a four-fold increase in number of quality beef cattle and hogs in the parish, via continued cooperation with the agents in 4-H club work.

Queen "has done outstanding work in improvement of farm-city understanding and cooperation," according to Cox, and has "worked actively and efficiently in the field of consumer education and in marketing of produce crops from the New Orleans vicinity."

Veillon also drew praise from Cox, who stated that, "as a result of the outstanding program developed and carried out by this agent, Vermillion parish is the leading agricultural parish in Louisiana in farm income.

"Mr. Veillon has truly demonstrated the importance of technology to the economic and social development of the community he serves."

knew of no new high-altitude tests soon, unless the Russians themselves set one off in their new series.

By 7 p.m. Moscow time, Tass reported, Nikolayev had orbited the earth five times, covering a distance of more than 125,000 miles. It said at one point he removed his harness, got up from his chair and moved about the space cabin.

Announcement of the orbiting and subsequent developments were made by Moscow Radio and the Tass news agency. But neither gave as much information as on Maj. Gherman Titov's 17 - orbit flight a year ago.

After six hours aloft, Moscow Radio reported Nikolayev messaged everything was going well, he was carrying out research assignments, and the cabin temperature and pressure were normal

Scientists Explode Saturn Theory

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Science fiction writers note: You'll have to dream up a whole new breed of creatures to populate the planet Saturn.

Previous assumptions that the ringed planet's atmosphere was made up of man-killig methane and ammonia gases have been knocked out the window by a discovery by two astronomers:

Saturn's atmosphere contains a large amount of hydrogen. Methane and ammonia, the only gases heretofore detected, exist only in trace amounts. Consequently, science fiction creatures who breathe methane and ammonia would not be able to exist on Saturn.

California Institute of Technology announced the discovery Saturday, and said also that there are tremendous winds on Saturn which may account for the dark and light bands seen in photographs.

These winds, Caltech said, could sweep atmospheric gases into bands that have been observed paralleling the planet's equator.

The discovery, a spokesman said, may provide additional support for a theory that our solar system has evolved from a cloud of hydrogen gas.

Dr. Guido Munch of Mt. Wilson and Palomar Observatories and Dr. Hyron Spinrad of Caltech's Jet Propulsion Laboratory made the discovery, using new and more powerful instruments designed by Dr. Ira Bowen, director of the observatories.

These instruments determine the makeup of heavenly bodies by analyzing the kind of light reflected from them.

Saturn, the solar system's second largest planet—exceeded only by Jupiter—is 71,000 miles in diameter but seems to be largely gaseous. Its density is only seven-tenths that of water. One of the farthest planets from the sun, its atmosphere has a temperature of 300 degrees below zero fahrenheit. It has nine moons and a system of three rings, believed to be made up of billions of tiny particles orbiting the planet.

Bohlen Learns Of Appointment

ASPEN, Colo. (AP)—Charles E. Bohlen was vacationing in the Colorado mountains Saturday when President Kennedy announced he would be appointed ambassador to France.

He said he was "pleased and flattered" but had no other comment on his new post.

Princess Back From Jamaica

LONDON (AP)—Princess Margaret came home Saturday night from Jamaica's independence celebration and her staff announced she will in future be allotted an equerry to help organize her royal duties.

The princess was suntanned and smiling as she arrived back by air with her husband, Lord Snowdon.

An announcement from Kensington Palace, Margaret's home, said the equerry will take up his post Oct. 1. It was the first time such an official had been assigned to the princess's household and, court sources said, reflected the increasing volume of her duties.

Scientists Explode Saturn Theory

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Science fiction writers note: You'll have to dream up a whole new breed of creatures to populate the planet Saturn.

Previous assumptions that the ringed planet's atmosphere was made up of man-killig methane and ammonia gases have been knocked out the window by a discovery by two astronomers:

Saturn's atmosphere contains a large amount of hydrogen. Methane and ammonia, the only gases heretofore detected, exist only in trace amounts. Consequently, science fiction creatures who breathe methane and ammonia would not be able to exist on Saturn.

California Institute of Technology announced the discovery Saturday, and said also that there are tremendous winds on Saturn which may account for the dark and light bands seen in photographs.

These winds, Caltech said, could sweep atmospheric gases into bands that have been observed paralleling the planet's equator.

The discovery, a spokesman said, may provide additional support for a theory that our solar system has evolved from a cloud of hydrogen gas.

Dr. Guido Munch of Mt. Wilson and Palomar Observatories and Dr. Hyron Spinrad of Caltech's Jet Propulsion Laboratory made the discovery, using new and more powerful instruments designed by Dr. Ira Bowen, director of the observatories.

These instruments determine the makeup of heavenly bodies by analyzing the kind of light reflected from them.

Saturn, the solar system's second largest planet—exceeded only by Jupiter—is 71,000 miles in diameter but seems to be largely gaseous. Its density is only seven-tenths that of water. One of the farthest planets from the sun, its atmosphere has a temperature of 300 degrees below zero fahrenheit. It has nine moons and a system of three rings, believed to be made up of billions of tiny particles orbiting the planet.

Princess Back From Jamaica

LONDON (AP)—Princess Margaret came home Saturday night from Jamaica's independence celebration and her staff announced she will in future be allotted an equerry to help organize her royal duties.

The princess was suntanned and smiling as she arrived back by air with her husband, Lord Snowdon.

An announcement from Kensington Palace, Margaret's home, said the equerry will take up his post Oct. 1. It was the first time such an official had been assigned to the princess's household and, court sources said, reflected the increasing volume of her duties.

Bretz Hopes Tech's Band Will Be Best

RUSTON (Special)—Hopes for making Louisiana Tech's band one of the outstanding units in the state were expressed today by Dr. Marshall E. Bretz, head of the music department at the college here, following the appointment of a new director and announcement of future plans for the musical organization.

Jimmie Howard Reynolds, a 1943 graduate of Byrd High School in Shreveport and a former Tech student, has been named the new band director at the college. He will succeed Joe G. Sheppard, who will teach band music in the A. E. Phillips school on the campus here, effective with the beginning of the fall semester.

The new appointee is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Reynolds of 804 Erie, Shreveport. He attended Tech as a Navy V-12 trainee in 1943-44, after which he served overseas with the Navy for two years. He is an officer in the Naval Reserve.

Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds are the parents of three children. Mrs. Reynolds, the former Jessie E. Marchand of Donaldsonville, is a Tech graduate.

Reynolds, who will be an assistant professor of music as well as band director at Tech, received the degree of bachelor of music education from Louisiana State University and the degree of master of music education of Michigan.

He comes to Tech from George Peabody College in Nashville, Tenn., where for the last three years he has been engaged in music education and has been director of wind ensemble. Previously, he was band director at Istrouma High School in Baton Rouge for four years; band director at the Vicksburg High School for three years; assistant band director at L.S.U. for one year, and band director at a high school in Miami, Fla., for two years.

Dr. Bretz said students interested in becoming affiliated with the Tech band are invited to write to him in care of the music department. The organization is open to both men and women students.

Dr. F. Jay Taylor, new president of Tech, recently announced a list of objectives receiving his attention, which included "providing the ways and means whereby Tech can more fully develop its band program." Several alumni of the college also have shown an interest in developing the Tech band.

Consideration is being given to obtaining more attractive uniforms and to making possible more off-campus appearances by the Tech band, Dr. Bretz said.

Harmon Trophy Awards Made At White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — A B58 bomber pilot, a balloonist team and aviatrix Jacqueline Cochran were named Saturday as winners of the 1962 Harmon International Trophies.

The awards are presented—usually by the President at a White House ceremony — for the outstanding feats of individual piloting skill of each year. No date has been set for the 1962 presentations.

The winners:

Aviator's Award—Air Force Lt. Col. William R. Payne, pilot of the B58 that flew nonstop from Carswell Air Force Base, Fort Worth, Tex., to Paris in May 1961, refueling in flight at two points along the route. Passing over Washington and New York, the plane set a Washington - Paris speed record with an average of 1,089.36 miles an hour for 3,626 miles.

Aviatrix Trophy—Miss Cochran, wife of industrialist Floyd Odlum, for setting eight world class records with a Northrop T38 supersonic jet trainer, and for flying a Lockheed F104 jet fighter at twice the speed of sound, between last Aug. 24 and Oct. 12.

Aeronaut's Trophy—Cmdr. Malcolm D. Ross, Washington, D.C., and the late Lt. Cmdr. Victor A Prather, Bethesda, Mid., for attaining an altitude of 113,739.9 feet in a balloon flight over the Gulf of Mexico May 4, 1961. The men spent two hours at the highest altitude ever attained by a manned balloon. Prather drowned in an accident during the recovery operation after a safe water landing.

GOP Says Economic Gains Under Kennedy 'Sub-Par'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional Republicans contended Saturday that economic recovery under President Kennedy has been sub-par. Some of them called for immediate tax cuts.

President George Meany of the AFL-CIO, also renewed his plea for a tax reduction as one measure "to prevent a fifth postwar recession."

The Senate-House GOP leadership suggested in a statement that Kennedy hadn't examined the figures when he told an Aug. 1 news conference he was willing to compare the record under his administration with "the recession which was in effect when I took office."

The Republican group interpreted this as a challenge to compare the 1958-1960 recovery under former President Dwight D. Eisenhower with the 1961-62 recovery under Kennedy.

"It is not easy to see why the President should have invited this comparison for he must know that the recovery since February 1961 has been a weak one by almost any sensible comparison," the GOP statement said. "This is a debate he cannot win."

Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., said on a taped television program that the present tax structure "puts a brake on the economy."

Case said an immediate tax cut would "stimulate business to make new investment, would give the people confidence in . . . the government's willingness to take effective action" to counter a potential recession.

Kennedy is expected to announce in a nationally televised and broadcast speech Monday night a decision on whether to ask for such a tax cut. There have been some indications that the President might suggest some other alternatives for a state of the economy he has said doesn't satisfy him.

Meany, who conferred with Kennedy at the White House on Friday, said a tax reduction is just one of a number of steps needed to stimulate the economy.

He set forth his views in a letter to Charles R. Sligh Jr., executive vice president of the National Association of Manufacturers. The two have been conducting a public debate over the nature of steps which should be taken to spur the economy.

"Enlightened public and private actions are now needed to prevent a fifth postwar recession in the short run, and to create the basis for sustained job and business growth for the long run," Meany wrote.

"The government role must now be a major one. Most important, a tax reduction of a kind that quickly and substantially stimulates consumer sales is essential.

"Concurrently, public works expansion is imperative. By this means wasted resources in idle men and machines will be put to work building needed public improvements and further demand will be generated in the economy."

Senate Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois and House GOP Leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana—who form the core of the Republican leadership group—also have come out for tax cuts. But they have insisted these should be balanced by a reduction in federal spending they don't expect the Kennedy administration to make.

In their review of the economic situation, the GOP leaders said Kennedy "has no reason to crow" over the dollar gain of 10.2 per cent in gross national output over the low quarter of 1960-61. They said under Eisenhower there was a gain of 13 per cent in 1954-57 and of 10.4 per cent in 1958-60.

They said the ratio of unemployment declined 26.6 per cent in the Kennedy recovery whereas in the 1958-60 period it was 38.7 per cent.

Sen. Case predicted the economic situation will contribute to "substantial" Republican gains in the November election contests.

"I think it is true that the American people have come to think of this administration as not very effective," he said. "They are disillusioned about it and, in my opinion, this will show up strongly in the polls, particularly in the House and to some degree in the Senate."

Most Of Bank Robbery Loot Is Recovered

CLARKSDALE, Miss. (AP) — Fast working Coahoma County deputies recovered practically all the $16,595 and captured two gunmen within 24 hours after the Jonestown Branch of the Coahoma County Bank and Trust Co. was held up.

Deputies nabbed Thomas C. Jurkiewicz, 23-year-old Chicago rookie policeman, and ex-convict Alva Doyle Mullen, formerly of Dublin, Miss., about 20 minutes after the holdup. Only $800 was recovered from the pair.

A careful search of the route believed taken by the gunmen after the robbery led officers to nearly $15,000 wrapped in a paper sack Saturday morning.

Deputies said Mullen told a brother where the bulk of the stolen money was and the tip led officers to the sack and two guns used in the holdup. The two denied any knowledge of the robbery or the money.

NAVY CHIEF SAYS

A-Sub Defense Is Not Insoluble

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Navy Fred Korth, back from an anti-submarine warfare demonstration, said Saturday the problem of defending the United States against submarine-launched missiles is "staggering but not insolube."

He added that "because of the importance of the threat, we consider its solution to be a top-priority job in the Navy today and for the foreseeable future."

Korth's comments, made in a talk with a newsman, were pointed up by the recent claim in a Soviet publication that atomic-powered Soviet submarines can fire rockets from both surface and submerged positions. This is what the U.S. Polaris system does.

The secretary said it was because of the urgency of this continental defense problem that the Navy established more than a year ago a special Anti-Submarine Warfare (ASW) committee, headed by the secretary and including in its membership the top-ranking operations and research officers of the department.

Korth returned recently from an on-the-spot inspection of ASW operations. He first boarded the ASW carrier Intrepid at sea off the Virginia Capes, then transferred to a destroyer. From these ships he studied the work of the hunter-killer part of the ASW development and training program.

Later, he rode the nuclear submarine Scorpion to learn what a deep-diving, high speed atomic submarine can do against hunting surface ships and aircraft.

Along with the problem of defending the U.S. against Soviet missile submarines, Korth says, is that of protecting overseas operations of naval surface forces and the shipment of supplies and troops.

This he considers a little easier to solve than the first because to attack sea lanes and surface must track her target, move in instead of standing off a thousand miles or more and lobbing missiles at fixed targets ashore.

In Korth's comments about the staggering problem of defense against enemy missile firing submarines there also is implicit the reverse side of the picture: What is true of Soviet menace is equally true in the case of the U.S. Navy's own Polaris fleet. This already consists of six submarines each armed with 16 thermonuclear rockets and is deployed in the northeastern Atlantic.

GOP Says Economic Gains Under Kennedy 'Sub-Par'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional Republicans contended Saturday that economic recovery under President Kennedy has been sub-par. Some of them called for immediate tax cuts.

President George Meany of the AFL-CIO, also renewed his plea for a tax reduction as one measure "to prevent a fifth postwar recession."

The Senate-House GOP leadership suggested in a statement that Kennedy hadn't examined the figures when he told an Aug. 1 news conference he was willing to compare the record under his administration with "the recession which was in effect when I took office."

The Republican group interpreted this as a challenge to compare the 1958-1960 recovery under former President Dwight D. Eisenhower with the 1961-62 recovery under Kennedy.

"It is not easy to see why the President should have invited this comparison for he must know that the recovery since February 1961 has been a weak one by almost any sensible comparison," the GOP statement said. "This is a debate he cannot win."

Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., said on a taped television program that the present tax structure "puts a brake on the economy."

Case said an immediate tax cut would "stimulate business to make new investment, would give the people confidence in . . . the government's willingness to take effective action" to counter a potential recession.

Kennedy is expected to announce in a nationally televised and broadcast speech Monday night a decision on whether to ask for such a tax cut. There have been some indications that the President might suggest some other alternatives for a state of the economy he has said doesn't satisfy him.

Meany, who conferred with Kennedy at the White House on Friday, said a tax reduction is just one of a number of steps needed to stimulate the economy.

He set forth his views in a letter to Charles R. Sligh Jr., executive vice president of the National Association of Manufacturers. The two have been conducting a public debate over the nature of steps which should be taken to spur the economy.

"Enlightened public and private actions are now needed to prevent a fifth postwar recession in the short run, and to create the basis for sustained job and business growth for the long run," Meany wrote.

'The government role must now be a major one. Most important, a tax reduction of a kind that quickly and substantially stimulates consumer sales is essential.

"Concurrently, public works expansion is imperative. By this means wasted resources in idle men and machines will be put to work building needed public improvements and further demand will be generated in the economy."

Senate Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois and House GOP Leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana—who form the core of the Republican leadership group—also have come out for tax cuts. But they have insisted these should be balanced by a reduction in federal spending they don't expect the Kennedy administration to make.

In their review of the economic situation, the GOP leaders said Kennedy "has no reason to crow" over the dollar gain of 10.2 per cent in gross national output over the low quarter of 1960-61. They said under Eisenhower there was a gain of 13 per cent in 1954-57 and of 10.4 per cent in 1958-60.

They said the ratio of unemployment declined 26.6 per cent in the Kennedy recovery whereas in the 1958-60 period it was 38.7 per cent.

Sen. Case predicted the economic situation will contribute to "substantial" Republican gains in the November election contests.

"I think it is true that the American people have come to think of this administration as not very effective," he said. "They are disillusioned about it and, in my opinion, this will show up strongly in the polls, particularly in the House and to some degree in the Senate."

PROTEST OBSERVANCE

Reds Train Gun On Berlin Wall

BERLIN (UPI)—Soviet army troops set up a machine-gun post atop the Brandenburg Gate Saturday on the eve of the first anniversary weekend of the Communist Berlin wall.

Soviet army patrols also were spotted at several places along the wall, West Berlin police reported.

The East German Communists turned out troops of the border guards, the transport police and their armed factory militia along the wall, which will be one year old on Monday.

The Soviet troops appeared after a Russian note to the three Western powers in Berlin Saturday charged that "dangerous provocations" were planned along the wall for the anniversary. The Communist press headlines similar accusations.

The East Germans also protested to the three Western powers in diplomatic notes relayed by the Czech Foreign Office against the presence of West German President Heinrich Luebke in West Berlin for the anniversary.

Luebke flew here in a special U. S. Air Force plane. The East Germans said the flight was a "gross misuse" of the air corridors by the Americans.

The East German note was expected to be ignored by the Allies.

West Berlin acting Mayor Franz Amrehn said the Soviet note was an attempt to throw sand in people's eyes. He said the accusations were pulled out of the air and had no place in diplomatic correspondence.

He said "perhaps Moscow is attempting by such means to break off its connection with the situation which exists as a result of the wall of shame in the sector and zone."

Amrehn repeated the official call for Berliners to clear the streets and stay at home from 8 p. m. to 9 p. m. Monday night. H said such a gesture of solidarity would override all walls.

Both East and West Berlin were gearing for more active demonstrations.

The East Germans redoubled their guards along the wall and unconfirmed reports said several units of the regular army had also moved into East Berlin to be ready for trouble.

West Berlin police were erecting barricades at sensitive points along the wall.

IN BRITISH PIC

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Carroll Baker has signed a deal with British Lion Productions to star in "S.O.S. Sahara," to be filmed in London. Her contract calls for a stipulated percentage of the world gross of the film.

Location scenes for the picture will be filmed in Tripoli, North Africa.

MRS. CHRISTINE KURTEFF of Sydney, Australia, holds her daughter, Doris, 28-month-old, as latter looks through magazine. Two fingers on her right hand were enlarged four times normal size, but doctors at Chicago's Wesley Memorial Hospital in a series of operations reduced them more nearly to normal size and retarded growth rate so hand eventually will be normal. Girl was released from hospital and will return to her native Australia Aug. 31. (AP Wirephoto)

River Crew To Race 'Ghost'

LITTLE ROCK Ark. (AP)—A highly-trained crew of river men will race up the Mississippi against time Aug. 18, with the ghost of the riverboat Robert E. Lee as a companion.

William L. Redford and Ray Neal of Little Rock and R. N. Cioll of New Orleans will man a 16-foot Magnolia catamaran in the 1,053-mile race.

They will pursue a tradition set in the fame river race between the Robert E. Lee and the Natchez in 1870. The Lee steamed from New Orleans to St. Louis in 90 hours and 15 minutes to set the first record.

Since then, the mark has been cut to 31 hours, 31 minutes, and that is the record Tedford and his crew will try to break.

In 1920, the late Commodore Edwin C. Koenig of St. Louis established a trophy for the race, and it is currently held by Roy Cullom of North Little Rock, who set the present record in 1957.

The run is dangerous and the rules for the Koenig Cup completion are stiff. Motors and boats may be repaired but not replaced. Crew members may be dropped but not replaced.

Tedford held the trophy for a short time in 1956.

There are only about three times a year when conditions are right for the race he said. Days must be long and nights short and there must be ideal river conditions and a full moon.

He said the catamaran, an uncovered boat, would travel at about 60 miles per hour. It will be equipped with two airplane landing lights for night travel.

Another float is that of the U S Naval district, an aircraft carrier mounted on a semi-trailer. It was obtained through the courtesy of Navy Chief R. E. Cantrell, local U. S. Navy recruiter.

The Candy Kanes, a marching unit from Shreveport under the direction of Mrs R C Peacock Jr., will also be a feature

Bands which have been invited and expected to participate include the Shriners of Shreveport, Ferriday high school, Ferriday Junior high, Vidalia, Adams County (Mississippi), Olla, Pineville, Jonesville Block, and the band from England Air Force Base.

Theme of the parade will be "Soybeans around the World."

Ambush Slaying Case Is Closed

PARIS (AP) — Official French sources said Saturday Thursday's incident in the Sahara, in which four French soldiers were killed, is considered closed following agreement with the Algerian army.

A French lieutenant and three enlisted men of the Foreign Legion were killed in an ambush near Laghouat Oasis.

Official sources here said the Algerian army had agreed to evacuate isolated posts such as the one from which the attack against the legionnaires was launched. In addition, these informants said, the Algerian army agreed to judge and punish those responsible for the attack.

PROTEST OBSERVANCE

Reds Train Gun On Berlin Wall

BERLIN (UPI)—Soviet army troops set up a machine-gun post atop the Brandenburg Gate Saturday on the eve of the first anniversary weekend of the Communist Berlin wall.

Soviet army patrols also were spotted at several places along the wall, West Berlin police reported.

The East German Communists turned out troops of the border guards, the transport police and their armed factory militia along the wall, which will be one year old on Monday.

The Soviet troops appeared after a Russian note to the three Western powers in Berlin Saturday charged that "dangerous provocations" were planned along the wall for the anniversary. The Communist press headlines similar accusations.

The East Germans also protested to the three Western powers in diplomatic notes relayed by the Czech Foreign Office against the presence of West German President Heinrich Luebke in West Berlin for the anniversary.

Luebke flew here in a special U. S. Air Force plane. The East Germans said the flight was a "gross misuse" of the air corridors by the Americans.

The East German note was expected to be ignored by the Allies.

West Berlin acting Mayor Franz Amrehn said the Soviet note was an attempt to throw sand in people's eyes. He said the accusations were pulled out of the air and had no place in diplomatic correspondence.

He said "perhaps Moscow is attempting by such means to break off its connection with the situation which exists as a result of the wall of shame in the sector and zone."

Amrehn repeated the official call for Berliners to clear the streets and stay at home from 8 p. m. to 9 p. m. Monday night. H said such a gesture of solidarity would override all walls.

Both East and West Berlin were gearing for more active demonstrations.

The East Germans redoubled their guards along the wall and unconfirmed reports said several units of the regular army had also moved into East Berlin to be ready for trouble.

West Berlin police were erecting barricades at sensitive points along the wall.

Location scenes for the picture will be filmed in Tripoli, North Africa.

Parade Set At Jonesville Bean Festival

JONESVILLE (Special) — A colorful parade is in the making for the annual Louisiana Soybean Festival to be held here August 30, 31 and September 1, according to Mrs. John Lanier, chairman of the parade committee. The parade will be held on August 31 beginning at 4 p.m. with its itinerary through the main section of town.

Colorful floats, including one on which the reigning Miss Soybean Queen will be riding, Miss Catahoula, and each of the winners in the other divisions of the Miss Catahoula contest, the Woman's club, Home Demonstration club, Junior Guild, American Legion Auxiliary, all of Jonesville, and floats from Harrisonburg, Ferriday and Vidalia, have entered.

Another float is that of the U.S. Naval district, an aircraft carrier mounted on a semi-trailer. It was obtained through the courtesy of Navy Chief R. E. Cantrell, local U. S. Navy recruiter.

The Candy Kanes, a marching unit from Shreveport under the direction of Mrs. R. C. Peacock Jr., will also be a feature.

Bands which have been invited and expected to participate include the Shriners of Shreveport, Ferriday high school, Ferriday Junior high, Vidalia, Adams County (Mississippi), Olla, Pineville, Jonesville Block, and the band from England Air Force Base.

There will be a group of vintage cars from Vidalia, and one from Sicily Island owned by Rep. W. S. Peck Jr.

"Last but not least" said Mrs. Lanier, "will be the contestants in their convertibles or boats.

"We expect a tremendous crowd to view the parade, which we also expect to be the largest ever in this area," she added, and we hope each one viewing the parade will give a big hand to each unit as it goes by, because that will be their only pay for giving us a good show and coming so far to help us have a successful 1962 festival."

Theme of the parade will be "Soybeans around the World."

Ambush Slaying Case Is Closed

PARIS (AP) — Official French sources said Saturday Thursday's incident in the Sahara, in which four French soldiers were killed, is considered closed following agreement with the Algerian army.

A French lieutenant and three enlisted men of the Foreign Legion were killed in an ambush near Laghouat Oasis.

Official sources here said the Algerian army had agreed to evacuate isolated posts such as the one from which the attack against the legionnaires was launched. In addition, these informants said, the Algerian army agreed to judge and punish those responsible for the attack.

River Crew To Race 'Ghost'

LITTLE ROCK Ark. (AP)—A highly-trained crew of river men will race up the Mississippi against time Aug. 18, with the ghost of the riverboat Robert E. Lee as a companion.

William L. Redford and Ray Neal of Little Rock and R. N. Cioll of New Orleans will man a 16-foot Magnolia catamaran in the 1,053-mile race.

They will pursue a tradition set in the fame river race between the Robert E. Lee and the Natchez in 1870. The Lee steamed from New Orleans to St. Louis in 90 hours and 15 minutes to set the first record.

Since then, the mark has been cut to 31 hours, 31 minutes, and that is the record Tedford and his crew will try to break.

In 1920, the late Commodore Edwin C. Koenig of St. Louis established a trophy for the race, and it is currently held by Roy Cullom of North Little Rock, who set the present record in 1957.

The run is dangerous and the rules for the Koenig Cup completion are stiff. Motors and boats may be repaired but not replaced. Crew members may be dropped but not replaced.

Tedford held the trophy for a short time in 1956.

There are only about three times a year when conditions are right for the race he said. Days must be long and nights short and there must be ideal river conditions and a full moon.

He said the catamaran, an uncovered boat, would travel at about 60 miles per hour. It will be equipped with two airplane landing lights for night travel.

ARTIFACTS

A West Monroe family has pursued a hobby of collecting Indian relics for the past six years. The trail of artifacts has led from southern Georgia to northeast Louisiana, and the supply of strange and interesting objects is still abundant.

By HOWARD PAGE
Staff Writer

"We were looking for a hobby in which we could participate as a family."

Collecting Indian artifacts was the answer and has proven an interesting pastime for a West Monroe family — Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Dorris and their 18-year-old son, Bill, who reside on the Thomas Road.

It all started in 1956 in Bainbridge, Ga., where the Dorrises were living at the time.

SPECIAL HOBBY

As they put it, they were interested in starting a hobby — but not just any hobby. It had to be one they could do together and enjoy as a close-knit family.

Some of their close friends were interested in collecting Indian artifacts and suggested it to the Dorrises.

The suggestion was an immediate hit and soon the Dorrises were "driving all over southern Georgia" on weekends in pursuit of their new interest.

Now, six years later, they have quite a collection of items that date back to another century — the era of the Redman and his somewhat crude but interesting way of life. Included in the present collection are some 1,000 arrowheads, alone, and numerous other relics. And there is no sign of any letup in the Dorrises' zeal to expand their collection.

The Dorrises are natives of West Monroe, but spent 10 years in Georgia before returning to their home in January, 1960. Bill graduated from West Monroe High School last spring and plans to enter Northeast Louisiana State College here this fall.

INTEREST - PACKED

Since the hobby was born, there have been few dull moments for the Dorrises in the past six years. Weekends, especially in the spring, mean packing a picnic lunch and spending the day hiking over fields in search of arrowheads and other Indian relics. They have walked over fields as large as 100 acres in one day — sometimes finding new items for their collection, other times returning empty handed, but always enjoying it.

They admit that about 90 per cent of their present collection came from southern Georgia, but they are finding numerous relics in this northeast Louisiana area.

How do you go about finding relics for an Indian collection?

As Dorris explains it, "find an old stream of water (not a canal or some other type of recent man-made stream) and then search the cultivated fields in the immediate area. The best time of the year is the early spring when the fields are newly plowed. Then it is a matter of walking over the field and inspecting the various stones that have been unearthed and turned up by the plowing."

IDEAL SPOTS

Dark places in plowed fields where the dirt has a burned or charred - look about it are ideal spots to search, because they could have been a long-ago camp sites for some Indian group, with the charred - look to the dirt caused by the many camp fires. If an area turns out to be one of the old camp sites, chances of finding arrowheads and other items are good.

The Dorrises once found 75 arrowheads in one and one-half hours in a field on the bank of the Chattahoochee River in Georgia.

Bird points (small arrowheads used by the Indians in hunting birds and other small game) are found in this area which was inhabited by the Choctaws. The Creek and Seminole tribes inhabited the southern Georgia area where the Dorrises found many of their artifacts.

OTHER ITEMS

The Dorris' arrowhead collection includes shafts of various shapes and sizes. For instance, the bird point is only about one-fourth inch in length. Then they have some shafts as long as four inches which were used by the Indians in hunting larger game such as bear, deer and turkeys.

Among the other items (all hewn from stone or made from clay) in their collection are paint pots, knives, axes, beads, game stones, scrapers, celts (a form of scraper used in working with animal hides), hoes, mortars (used to grind grain), boat stone (used as a ballast on a shaft to balance for accuracy in throwing spears, bolo stones, clay fireballs (used to heat water — stones were heated in the fire and then dropped into pots of water), awls (used in leatherwork), gorgets (worn as decorative pieces like jewelry), broken pieces of various types of pottery, and many other relics.

One particular type of arrowhead of which the Dorrises are extremely proud is the "twister." It was beviled on each side which gave the arrowhead a twisting effect when it was shot. This made for deeper penetration on contact and thus was more deadly.

They have 10 of the "twisters." None of them was found in this area, however, and they are extremely rare in Georgia.

While most of the actual collecting is done in the spring, the hobby is virtually a year-around one for the Dorrises. Because they spend the summer and fall months "scouting around" for likely-looking sites to explore in the spring.

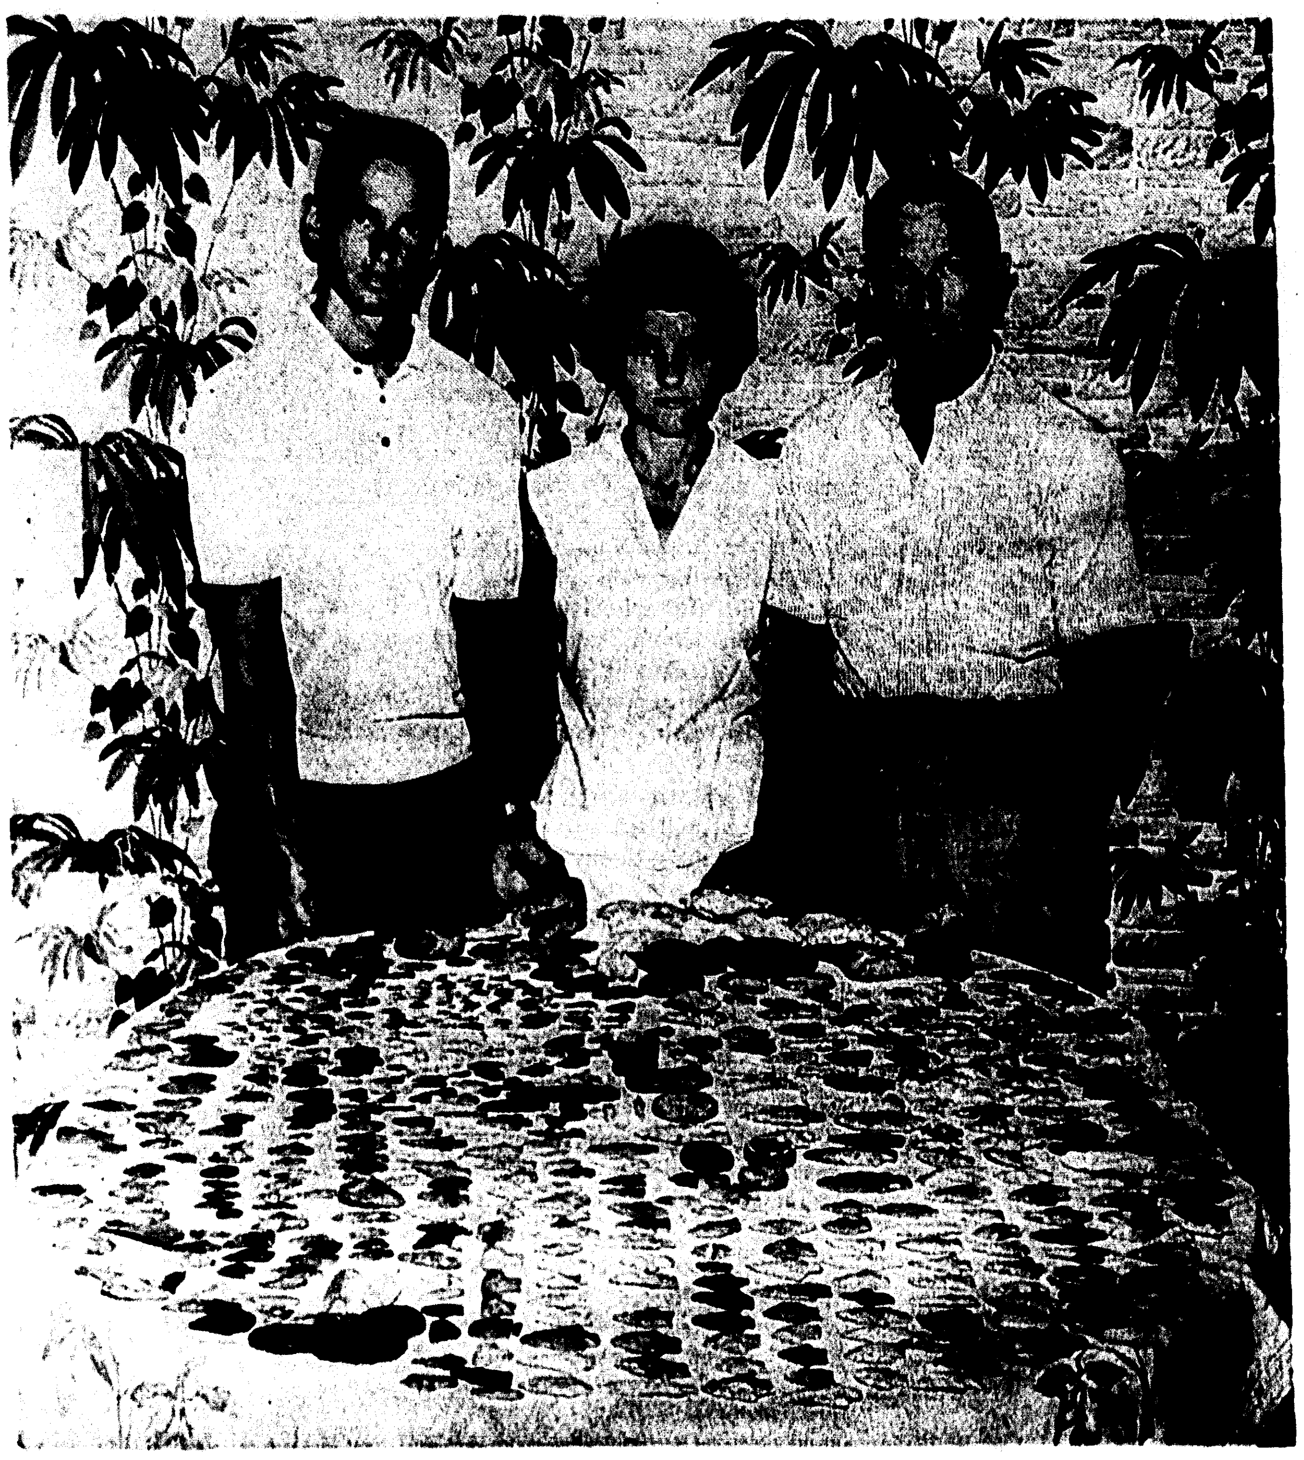
INDIAN LORE

In addition, they spend countless hours reading books and magazine articles on Indian lore. Anything that pertains to their hobby is of special interest to them.

Looking for something to do from a family - angle? Then you might check with the Dorrises, because they found their answer six years ago.

And take it from them, "it's been an ideal hobby, with a certain amount of work attached, and has given us many enjoyable and interesting hours together as a family."

MR. AND MRS. W. F. DORRIS and their son, Bill, of West Monroe, pose with some of the approximately 1,000 arrowheads and other relics from their collection of Indian artifacts. In the other scene, Dorris displays a stone axe head and some arrowheads. (Staff photos by Ben Bradford Jr.)



Buenos Aires Is Untamed

There's a city in South America that is almost as large as New York. It's a melting pot, too. Streets are always being torn up, it has a subway, a Greenwich Village type bohemia and wild traffic. But Buenos Aires isn't anything like Manhattan. They're hemispheres apart. Here is another report on great cities of the world.

By FRANK N. MANITZAS

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Buenos Aires is a modern metropolis bursting with the energy of its people and growing too fast for its own good.

It is an untamed, lovable, kicking giant with pockets full of European charm — some good and some bad.

It is the largest city in Latin America, with more than six million inhabitants. They jam its wide avenues and one-way streets to [illegible], to buy and to sell.

WORLD PORT

It is a world port for shipping — wheat and wool and more meat than any other country in the world can export.

It is where the Argentine comes to live, not to die.

And Buenos Aires is the native home of the "porteno."

He or she may have been born to work and to loaf, to laugh and [illegible] somewhere [illegible] its picturesque old dock area called "La Boca" — the "Mouth of the River" — or in any of Buenos Aires sprawling tree-terraced suburban areas that compare with the best and the worst throughout the world, or in the city itself.

MELTING
RED TAPE

He has the business sense of a German, the carefree attitude of the Roman, the love of stardust of a New Yorker on Broadway, the need for music of a Spaniard and the Frenchman's appreciation of women and romance. She can count most of the same characteristics as well as being appreciative of the male Porteno's appreciation.

HORSES FIRST

"The Porteno," said the man with his neat mustache and slicked down hair, "loves horse races, soccer and women and usually in that order. He works, but only to enjoy the three more."

Said another: "My father was German. My mother Italian. I was born in Argentina, but I'm not Argentine. I am a Porteno."

Porteno's undying love of his city might be questioned at first glance. This is because the Portenos are great followers of what is fashionable in Europe or the United States. But the ultimate mode and talk will be adapted for use here with a distinctive Porteno strain. It seems to tell you: "Don't I do it better?"

You come to think maybe he can.

You can see the Porteno in the old section of La Boca where a waiter will take you back to Italy in song. Or you can be in France when you see the wide beautiful boulevards. Or in Germany as new modern buildings mark another industry's birth.

Then there is the organ grinder and his monkey, a horse-drawn cart carrying chairs made of cane, and a top - hatted chimney sweep pedaling rapidly on his bicycle.

BRASHNESS

It all has a brashness that seeks no acceptance and you can't say 'no" to a Porteno. But then, he can rarely say no to you.

My wife, Nita, helped prove this when our Siamese cat was coming through customs. The red tape-need for a veterinarian, extra sets of papers, we only had certified copies from two other vets — was overwhelming.

There was no indication from the customs officials if they would let the cat in. My wife grabbed the cat, and I whispered to her: "Cry—and don't stop crying."

The tears began. "What's wrong?" asked one official.

"Can't you shut her up?" asked another official.

"She wants the cat," said I. The tears - only two minutes of them - melted the red tape.

"Take the cat, senora, but stop crying," said a third official. He, too, was in tears. So was I, but it was to hold back the laughter.

The woman can — and does — show her wiles in other ways.

Young and old, fat and skinny, beautiful or just nice, every woman finds her admirer here. Every man has an opportunity to say what he likes to a woman as she passes. She never answers, unless you can translate that going-away wiggle better than I can.

But there are more than women on the promenades in Buenos Aires. Always there is the crowd pausing to watch anything out of the ordinary. The other day it was a trolley car conductor who drew the spectators after he had rammed an automobile.

The arguments were loud. Everyone was trying to explain what happened. Everyone but the conductor, who had more than his usual pick-me-up drink at breakfast. He just shrugged his shoulders and rang his bell. He ignored the cop who was asking questions. The cop got mad and the conductor walked away, saying: "Drive it yourself."

The Dorris' arrowhead collection includes shafts of various shapes and sizes. For instance, the bird point is only about one-fourth inch in length. Then they have some shafts as long as four inches which were used by the Indians in hunting larger game such as bear, deer and turkeys.

Among the other items (all hewn from stone or made from clay) in their collection are paint pots, knives, axes, beads, game stones, scrapers, celts (a form of scraper used in working with animal hides), hoes, mortars (used to grind grain), boat stone (used as a ballast on a shaft to balance for accuracy in throwing spears, bolo stones, clay fireballs (used to heat water — stones were heated in the fire and then dropped into pots of water), awls (used in leatherwork), gorgets (worn as decorative pieces like jewelry), broken pieces of various types of pottery, and many other relics.

One particular type of arrowhead of which the Dorrises are extremely proud is the "twister." It was beviled on each side which gave the arrowhead a twisting effect when it was shot. This made for deeper penetration on contact and thus was more deadly.

They have 10 of the "twisters." None of them was found in this area, however, and they are extremely rare in Georgia.

While most of the actual collecting is done in the spring, the hobby is virtually a year-around one for the Dorrises. Because they spend the summer and fall months "scouting around" for likely-looking sites to explore in the spring.

INDIAN LORE

In addition, they spend countless hours reading books and magazine articles on Indian lore. Anything that pertains to their hobby is of special interest to them.

Looking for something to do from a family - angle? Then you might check with the Dorrises, because they found their answer six years ago.

And take it from them, "it's been an ideal hobby, with a certain amount of work attached, and has given us many enjoyable and interesting hours together as a family."

Buenos Aires Is Untamed

There's a city in South America that is almost as large as New York. It's a melting pot, too. Streets are always being torn up, it has a subway, a Greenwich Village type bohemia and wild traffic. But Buenos Aires isn't anything like Manhattan. They're hemispheres apart. Here is another report on great cities of the world.

By FRANK N. MANITZAS

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Buenos Aires is a modern metropolis bursting with the energy of its people and growing too fast for its own good.

It is an untamed, lovable, kicking giant with pockets full of European charm—some good, and some bad.

It is the largest city in Latin America, with more than six million inhabitants. They jam its wide avenues and one-way streets to hurry, to buy and to sell.

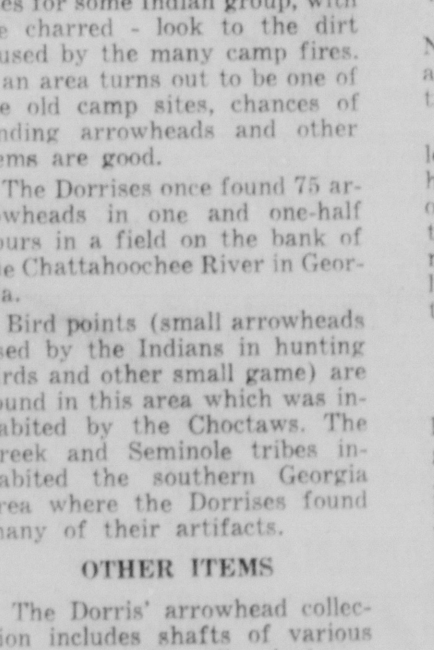
WORLD PORT

It is a world port for shipping—wheat and wool and more meat than any other country in the world can export.

It is where the Argentine comes to live, not to die.

And Buenos Aires is the native home of the "porteno."

He or she may have been born to work and to loaf, to laugh and somewhere in its picturesque old dock area called "La Boca"—the Mouth of the River—or in any of Buenos Aires sprawling tree-terraced suburban areas that compare with the best and the worst throughout the world, or in the city itself.



He has the business sense of a German, the carefree attitude of the Roman, the love of stardust of a New Yorker on Broadway, the need for music of a Spaniard and the Frenchman's appreciation of women and romance. She can count most of the same characteristics as well as being appreciative of the male Porteno's appreciation.

HORSES FIRST

"The Porteno," said the man with his neat mustache and slicked down hair, "loves horse races, soccer and women and usually in that order. He works, but only to enjoy the three more."

Said another: "My father was German. My mother Italian. I was born in Argentina, but I'm not Argentine. I am a Porteno."

Porteno's undying love of his city might be questioned at first glance. This is because the Portenos are great followers of what is fashionable in Europe or the United States. But the ultimate mode and talk will be adapted for use here with a distinctive Porteno strain. It seems to tell you: "Don't I do it better?"

You come to think maybe he can.

You can see the Porteno in the old section of La Boca where a waiter will take you back to Italy in song. Or you can be in France when you see the wide beautiful boulevards. Or in Germany as new modern buildings mark another industry's birth.

Then there is the organ grinder and his monkey, a horse-drawn cart carrying chairs made of cane, and a top - hatted chimney sweep pedaling rapidly on his bicycle.

BRASHNESS

It all has a brashness that seeks no acceptance and you can't say 'no" to a Porteno. But then, he can rarely say no to you.

My wife, Nita, helped prove this when our Siamese cat was coming through customs. The red tape-need for a veterinarian, extra sets of papers, we only had certified copies from two other vets — was overwhelming.

There was no indication from the customs officials if they would let the cat in. My wife grabbed the cat, and I whispered to her: "Cry—and don't stop crying."

The tears began. "What's wrong?" asked one official.

"Can't you shut her up?" asked another official.

"She wants the cat," said I. The tears - only two minutes of them - melted the red tape.

"Take the cat, senora, but stop crying," said a third official. He, too, was in tears. So was I, but it was to hold back the laughter.

The woman can — and does — show her wiles in other ways.

Young and old, fat and skinny, beautiful or just nice, every woman finds her admirer here. Every man has an opportunity to say what he likes to a woman as she passes. She never answers, unless you can translate that going-away wiggle better than I can.

But there are more than women on the promenades in Buenos Aires. Always there is the crowd pausing to watch anything out of the ordinary. The other day it was a trolley car conductor who drew the spectators after he had rammed an automobile.

The arguments were loud. Everyone was trying to explain what happened. Everyone but the conductor, who had more than his usual pick-me-up drink at breakfast. He just shrugged his shoulders and rang his bell. He ignored the cop who was asking questions. The cop got mad and the conductor walked away, saying: "Drive it yourself."

Opposite Medical Dangers

Some people who have been delighted by American progress in medicine are wondering if the terrible tragedy in which babies were said to have been born deformed because of a particular drug tak-by their mothers will set medical advancement back one to a half-dozen decades.

President Kennedy has approved and apparently congress will enact some kind of law to make the testing of medicine in this country more rigid, despite the fact that reportedly there has been no proved case of deformity in the United States resulting from use of the drug. Presumably, such action will meet with general approbation, even though it may make the testing of drugs more difficult—and it has already been so different that some vitally important drugs may not appear on the market for at least 10 years after they might be effecting thousands of cures and saving thousands of lives.

In wartime, commanders balance the possibilities of loss in one direction against those in another direction and against the gains that may be made and proceed with a calculated certainly that some losses must come.

The case of the deformed babies was inconceivably shocking. If that many babies had died as a result of the drug, people might have shaken their heads and called it gross negligence or something of the sort but they would have shrugged it off and forgotten it in a few days. Anything that cripples for a life-time, including polio, gets 10 times more attention than some ailment that might take vastly more lives but does not leave anyone to suffer all his life.

Therein lies the danger of medical-test restrictions that are too rigid.

Under the headings, "Can We Test Drugs Safely?" and "Doctors in Jeopardy," Insider's Newsletter says:

"Thalidomide-case problem that's likely to outlast memory of specific persons afflicted, including Mrs. Sherri Finkbine, is how drugs are to be mass-tested on humans. Sending new pharmaceutical products to doctors who report on results has provided the only means drug industry has been able to devise to determine if the drugs are beneficial and safe as indicated in laboratories and trials with guinea-pig volunteers, for instance, penitentiary inmates. What industry insiders fear is that patients, mindful of thalidomide, will now refuse en masse to take the chance on the test drugs, which would seriously crimp R and D (research and development) in the whole field.

"American Medical Association has been trying for several years to educate doctors on dangers and standards in drugs sent by pharmaceutical houses for testing. A.M.A. ethics—but no laws—call for the doctor to explain to the patient: his illness, how the drug might help, possible side effects, and the fact that the drug is still being tested.

"Then A.M.A. has been urging the doctors should get the patient's consent, preferably in writing. Even then, however, if anything goes wrong, the doctor might be held liable, an A.M.A. lawyer says.

"Many doctors have not been following this rule, and here's why, Researchers believe patients might react psychologically if they know a drug is only in the testing stage. This could alter results and thus handicap new drug development. (And, of course, some test subjects don't get the drug itself, but rather a placebo, for test-control purposes.)

Whether there is need for stricter medical laws in the United States is debatable. Even if such regulation should prevent some medical mistakes it might retard medical advancement so seriously that more would be lost than gained.

A new law stipulating that when the consent of the patient was obtained for drug-testing, the physician could not be held liable might speed up and improve such testing.

In case of an ailment, such as cancer, which had reached a hopeless stage under known medical practices there are thousands upon thousands of patients who would be willing to try any treatment that offered hope, even though its side effects and dangers might be unknown.

When medical articles appear in magazines telling of some new drug that seems to be just what some patients need, doctors throughout the country get thousands of requests from patients to try the new drugs. Most of the physicians won't do this for fear they might be held liable.

An example of a drug that is so promising that perhaps millions of people would be willing to try it, but which has not yet been put on the market, is found in a British-developed pill which is said to be capable of controlling weight without fasting or dieting and without causing hunger, nervousness or weakness as do some of the weight-reducing drugs. This pill is said simply to reduce the assimulation of food as fat, so that anyone can eat anything he wants and as much as he wants without gaining weight, as do some naturally slender people.

Some people are so afraid of an operation or medicine that they won't have a disfiguring wart or growth taken off their noses, but they are in the minority.

Most Americans haven't lost their nerve as far as medicine or anything else is concerned. They'll try anything if the odds in their favor are good enough.

We should think carefully and measure the disadvantages against the advantages before we enact any laws which will make the scientific advancement of medicine more difficult.

Watching The Watchers

A little scene in Berlin might be entitled, "Who Trusts Whom," or "Watching the Watchers."

One East Berliner started to paint the white stripe at Friedrichstrasses marking the East-West border.

Two East German soldiers with tommyguns were assigned to watch the man painting the border stripe, presumably for fear the painter would take off into West Germany.

Three East German police officers with pistols supervised the two soldiers watching the painter, possibly for fear that if the painter headed west the soldiers might go with him instead of stopping him.

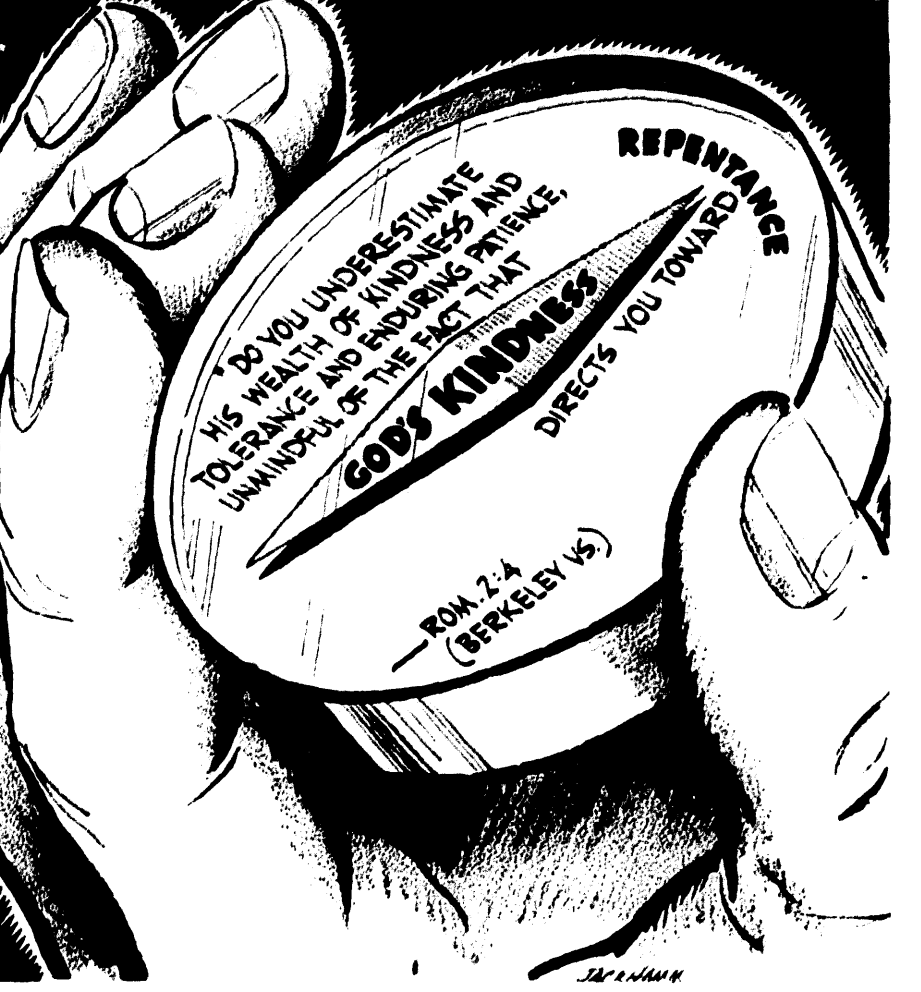
About a half dozen West German police and United States troops watched the three East German communist officers guarding the two East German soldiers preventing the East Berlin painter from attempting to escape as he painted a six-inch wide stripe across the street.

This might have looked like a Marx Brothers movie or a Three Stouges television show but it wasn't. That is the way things are done along the line dividing communist East Germany from free-enterprise West Germany. Everybody trusts nobody.

Yesterday the greatest question was decided which was ever debated in America. A resolution was passed without one dissenting colony, that these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent states. - - - John Adams, April 22, 1776.

They that can give up essential liberty to obtain a little temporary safety deserve neither liberty nor safety. - - - - Benjamin Franklin.

Unfailing Compass



Views Of Our Readers

Favors School Prayer

To The Editor.

May I have my say about the little tiny prayer the school in New York repeated which only recognized God and asked for his blessings - that the "Law of The Land" declared unconstitutional"

Twenty years ago our nation was seemingly losing a ghastly war, to have lost would have meant world catastrophe from which it might never have recovered

Our young men were fighting in nearly all the battle fields of the world. They were in sloppy, muddy, malarial infested jungles They were dying in the flaming battles of sky, out on the seas, in deserts and in fox holes.

In that year of war disease, suffering, sickness and death, men women, Governors, Presidents, Kings, Generals and even atheists were praying and calling on others to pray.

A Lieutenant that was an atheist with Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, said he found God by prayer in a rubber raft in the blazing sun of the pacific ocean. His name was Lieutenant Whitaker, he later wrote a book telling of his experience. How only God saved him from death by prayer

Songs were written like "Coming In On A Wing and A Prayer" —"Praise the Lord and Pass The Ammunition." It was a time of desperate need and I can not think of a ruling against prayer twenty years ago.

Now, just twenty years later, we are getting very technical about our praying. Even many of our preachers and Christian leaders agreeing that a state should not write out a little tiny prayer that could not harm any one, not even an atheist - he would not have to listen to it or accept it.

I am certainly not for any kind of state church or state religion, but I cannot see any harm in a prayer written out by any state or government official just recognizing God and calling to Him for blessings. If any of your dear preachers, teachers or any one else who can, point out the chapter and verse in the Bible that would be against praying, please do so.

My conviction is that God calls on all schools, governments and people any where to recognize and call on Him.

Indians Are Befriended

To The Editor

People who live in places where there are few Negroes and elsewhere severely criticize the South for its unwilling attitude toward integration with the Negro.

Many feel that the Negro leaving the south can be likened to the Hungarians and other refugees. A biracial group says they cannot believe anything like the treatment they get could happen in the United States. The Negroes, wishing for more equality, remain persistent in their sit downs for complete integration.

Yet neither all this nor any other incidents in America's history can compare one iota to the tragic exodus of the Cherokees, who were cruelly driven from their homeland to further the cause of civilization

I have a great admiration for the Indian American and though no an authority on the subject, believe that the Indian though wilfully and maliciously mistreated by a Christian republic, is never - the - less proud of his race and color and want's no integration that would integrate him from his birth right. Yet there are still many Indians who cannot speak the language of the country they were born in. As there is much needless controversy over the Negro's God - given color and granting his demands, it does not seem logical to overlook our Indian people and it is all the more uncharitable when we must remember that the red man is the only true American and we have this great land from him. Neither we nor the Negro really have any cause for complaint. Even millions of American dollars pour into other countries to rehabilitate it's unappreciative inhibitants and we have need of it here at home

As we cherish strongly our American traditions, why not as a service to God and humanity, administer more generously to the needs and wishes of our Indian people and encourage them in preserving also their unmatched heritage

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By BARRY GOLDWATER

U. S. Senator From Arizona

"I am convinced that it is man's destiny to enter space and that he who controls the open space around us is in a position to control the earth."

These words, spoken some years ago by Werner von Braun, the former German rocket expert now working for the United States, have a special importance for Americans today, particularly in light of Mr. Khrushchev's recent claim that the Russians have developed a missile which could "hit a fly in space."

For I am afraid our official policy today does not properly reflect the need for the United States to be second to none in aerospace development.

I cannot detect the proper understanding on the part of our government that space superiority in all of its scientific, technological and military aspects is fundamental to the future well-being, prosperity and security of the United States.

Space, including the earth's atmosphere in which the United States has become the leading world power, is today a medium for three-dimensional mobility for good or evil. It is the aerospace medium in which the exercise of influence on earth can be accomplished by electronics or nuclear energy or by space craft in orbital trajectories as well as air-supported, winged vehicles.

Most important to the people on earth, space offers a means for extending world power and influence to any nation capable of using the new means of technology and scientific knowledge. For space is obviously a battle medium, and the scientific and technical conflict is underway right now. But we don't seem to recognize this in our official policy.

As a conservative, I believe in applying the lessons learned in the past to the problems of the present. Many of us can recall painfully when the U. S. War Department did not fully understand the value of the airplane as a military weapon until the German Luftwaffe loosed its fury on the battlefields of Europe. Then, because time was on our side, we were able to develop this weapon as a superior tool for victory.

But in the next war, if one should come, time will not be on our side. Thus, in examining our military space capabilities, the United States would do well to make absolutely certain that we are never subjected to technological surprise.

It is true that until now the Soviet leaders have said very little that would indicate a military interest in space. But we cannot assume that they do not look upon this medium with a warrior's eye.

For example, the Venus Globe which the Russians launched from Sputnik Eight indicated that they have the ability to launch a warhead aimed at the earth from a space platform in orbit. Another example of their military space thinking can be found in their new preoccupation with nuclear tests in the atmosphere. According to a recent staff report prepared for the Senate committee on aeronautical and space sciences, some bombs detonated from 100 to 300 miles above the earth could disrupt radars, radios and electronic systems around a wide area of the globe.

Of course, Soviet propaganda consistently emphasizes that the Communists' interests in space are confined to peaceful pursuits. But we would be worse than naive to believe it.

We must develop our space capability in all spheres, particularly the military, if we are to defend the doctrine of maintaining the peace in space.

How do you stand, sir?

THE REAL WINNER -- as far as Rep. Walter Rogers of Texas is concerned the big controversy over the sugar lobby in Washington is in the same category as the Dempsey - Firpo fight of 1923. The Texas Democrat put it this way, "It would seem that the boys who really got the sugar were the lobbyists for the foreign countries. It reminds me of the time Jack Dempsey was defending his title against the Argentine Luis Firpo, the Bull of the Pampas. Tex. Richard, one of the great promoters of history, was handling the bout. Mae West, who was then in her prime as a movie actress, was asked at a press conference who she thought would win the Dempsey - Firpo fight. She said Tex Rickard."

BASCOM TIMMONS

Setbacks Of U. S.

Outlook Bleak On Several Fronts, Especially South America

The United States faces discouragement on several fronts these days, but on none more than South America, where lack of progress seems to become more apparent in proportion to the amounts of U. S. cash distributed before and since the Alliance for Progress came into existence.

It may be an exaggeration to say that this nation is getting its face slapped by one South American nation after another, but the rebuffs received in its efforts to persuade these other American nations to carry out reforms suggested and urged by our State Department, through the various agencies which handle the several types of aid, are in themselves a sort of ridicule to which European beneficiaries of the Marshall plan never subjected us.

Economic aid to 21 South and Central Americans governments now total well over 5 billion dollars, which is only ten per cent of that given nations of three other continents, some of which has failed to produce stability in government, but in the latter instances the influence of Communism has contributed importantly to the shortcomings. This is not as true in Latin America as it was several years ago.

It is true that of the assistance given these countries some 4 billions has been in form of loans, but few expect these loans to be repaid within any estimable period of time, and some officials regard them merely as a form of bookkeeping eventually to be recorded on the loss side.

The outlook for stable government in some of the more important countries is still poor. Argentina, Chile, Peru, Venezuela, Haiti and the Dominican Republic are constantly on the verge of revolution in the opinion both of State Department observers and qualified American journalists who have visited them.

What is most discouraging is that years of effort by various divisions of our government have failed to produce any formula which gives hope of needed governmental readjustment for more than a short period. Despite the complete loss of Cuba to Communism, the present administration has continued to talk optimistically of the future of other countries. Recent events in Peru, Argentina, Haiti and Chile in particular have given no support to such optimism.

The country whose progress has been most encouraging is Mexico which has received approximately $650 millions in foreign aid, of which half a billion has been loans. Mexico has been given little military aid, has an apparently stable government and keeps on friendly terms with all governments of the Western Hemisphere including Cuba. The Mexican government, moreover has forbidden activity by Communist propagandists, and enforced its orders within territory under its jurisdiction. That does not include the Embassies of Communist countries.

Brazil which has received the largest amount of assistance, in excess of $1½ billions, maintains frigidly formal diplomatic relations with the United States. President Kennedy plans a trip there within the next year, but that depends to a considerable extent upon the stability of the Brazilian government. He has gone so far in committing himself to the trip that to abandon it would be an affront to the Brazilian government and would certainly not advance the cause of the reforms which are being pressed upon the Brazilian government especially in the field of taxation and distribution of wealth.

While Mexico has received but 5 millions in military aid, Brazil has had 175 million and Peru, where a military junta recently took over has received 65 millions. Panama, where agitation to take over the Panama Canal is constant and anti-American mobs riot frequently, has had 42 millions in outright grants, more than several more friendly countries and tiny Haiti has had $57 millions in such grants.

At the time the Alliance for Progress was launched earlier this year at Punta del Este, some observers noted that it might already be too late to halt the disintegration already in process in several South American countries. Subsequent events have proved this to be true. The U. S. hope to banish illiteracy, to stop internal disunity and to improve the lot of the inhabitants o fthe Latin American countries has from all outward evidence made little progress under the Alliance for Progress.

Districts Closer

Congressional Divisions Of About Equal Size Are Sought

Since it became a nation, the United States, under the direction of its Constitution has tried at ten year intervals to divide itself into congressional districts of approximately equal size. So far it hasn't achieved this ideal but a new listing by the Census Bureau shows that it is coming closer.

State legislatures decide the boundaries and the size of the districts after the Census Bureau with the approval of Congress, determines every ten years the number of members of the U. S. House of Representatives to which each state is entitled, on the basis of the population count.

When the number of a state's representatives is increased or decreased by a new apportionment, it becomes the duty of the state legislature to redivide the state into new districts, theoretically as nearly equal in size as possible.

Congress has nothing to do with the size of the districts its 435 members represent, but those which lose representatives and fail to redistrict must elect all representatives from the state at large. This year the only states electing all their House members at large are Alabama, with eight and Hawaii with two. Legislative redistricting efforts usually result in battles which can only be settled by compromise, which is the reason, along with geographic difficulties, why districts vary so much in size.

Now the congressional redistricting battles are over, at least for the purposes of the coming congressional election. They show that more than one half the congressional districts are smaller in population than the 410,487 fixed by the census bureau after the 1960 census for each of the 435 congressional districts.

The largest district is the Fifth Texas (Dallas County), with 951,527 people. Second is the Sixteenth Michigan, part of Detroit, with 802,994, and the third is the Third Ohio (Dayton) with 726,156. Most malapportioned among the populous states is Texas of which the 22 congressional districts range in size from 951,527 just mentioned in the Fifth district to 216,371 in the Fourth district comprising Collin, Fannin, Grayson, Hunt, Kaufman, Rains and Rockwall counties and represented for many years by the late Sam Rayburn, Speaker of the House of Representatives.

In addition to the big Dallas district, with its near million population, Texas has two more of the 10 districts in the United States over 600,000 — the 20th (San Antonio) 687,151 and the 22nd (Houston) 674,975. The seven other oversize districts include three in Maryland and four in Michigan.

A total of 221 districts out of the 435 have less than 410,487 people which is the population of the median or ideal district. The three districts nearest to the "ideal" in size are the Fifteenth Illinois, with 410,650 people; the Sixth Kentucky with 411,545; an the Eighth Wisconsin 411,807.

The most evenly districte state, New York, has no distric over 500,000, none under 300,00 and has but 19 out of its 45 les than the "ideal" mark. Californ which expects to overtake Nev York in population before the ne census, has 23 of its thirty-eigh districts under the "ideal" figur and has four districts over half million.

Among the states with distric under the ideal figure are Arka sas, two out of four; Florida, s of 12, Illinois, 13 of 24; Georgi 7 of 10; Louisiana, 5 of 8; Mi sissippi, two of five, North Car lina 5 of 11; Ohio, 13 of 25; Okl homa, 3 of 6; South Carolina, of 6, Tennessee, 6 of 9; Texa 11 of 22, Virginia, 6 of 10

Alabama is electing its 8 rep sentatives at large as is Hawa with two representatives Fo states which gained a seat by t last apportionment — Tex Ohio, Michigan and Maryland, v elect the additional member large New Mexico will elect b its members at large.

Since the last census the p ulation of the "ideal" district grown from 344,587 to 410,487. survey of district populations s tains the conclusion that on whole, they have evened out o the country between censu There are but four districts the 12th in Michigan, the Sec of South Dakota, the Fourth Colorado and the Third of zona which have fewer than 2 000 inhabitants.

States with a single represe tive are Alaska, Delaware, N da, Vermont and Wyoming.

The distribution of popula by districts has been somev improved as a result of the two censuses and the subseq redistricting, in the opinion congressional specialists. Som the disparity in size between an and rural districts has smoothed out, they say, poir to California, Illinois and Ma chusetts as examples.

This could alter results and thus handicap new drug development. (And, of course, some test subjects don't get the drug itself, but rather a placebo, for test-control purposes.)

Whether there is need for stricter medical laws in the United States is debatable. Even if such regulation should prevent some medical mistakes it might retard medical advancement so seriously that more would be lost than gained.

A new law stipulating that when the consent of the patient was obtained for drug-testing, the physician could not be held liable might speed up and improve such testing.

In case of an ailment, such as cancer, which had reached a hopeless stage under known medical practices there are thousands upon thousands of patients who would be willing to try any treatment that offered hope, even though its side effects and dangers might be unknown.

When medical articles appear in magazines telling of some new drug that seems to be just what some patients need, doctors throughout the country get thousands of requests from patients to try the new drugs. Most of the physicians won't do this for fear they might be held liable.

An example of a drug that is so promising that perhaps millions of people would be willing to try it, but which has not yet been put on the market, is found in a British-developed pill which is said to be capable of controlling weight without fasting or dieting and without causing hunger, nervousness or weakness as do some of the weight-reducing drugs. This pill is said simply to reduce the assimulation of food as fat, so that anyone can eat anything he wants and as much as he wants without gaining weight, as do some naturally slender people.

Some people are so afraid of an operation or medicine that they won't have a disfiguring wart or growth taken off their noses, but they are in the minority.

Most Americans haven't lost their nerve as far as medicine or anything else is concerned. They'll try anything if the odds in their favor are good enough.

We should think carefully and measure the disadvantages against the advantages before we enact any laws which will make the scientific advancement of medicine more difficult.

Watching The Watchers

A little scene in Berlin might be entitled, "Who Trusts Whom," or "Watching the Watchers."

One East Berliner started to paint the white stripe at Friedrichstrasses marking the East-West border.

Two East German soldiers with tommyguns were assigned to watch the man painting the border stripe, presumably for fear the painter would take off into West Germany.

Three East German police officers with pistols supervised the two soldiers watching the painter, possibly for fear that if the painter headed west the soldiers might go with him instead of stopping him.

About a half dozen West German police and United States troops watched the three East German communist officers guarding the two East German soldiers preventing the East Berlin painter from attempting to escape as he painted a six-inch wide stripe across the street.

This might have looked like a Marx Brothers movie or a Three Stouges television show but it wasn't. That is the way things are done along the line dividing communist East Germany from free-enterprise West Germany. Everybody trusts nobody.

Yesterday the greatest question was decided which was ever debated in America. A resolution was passed without one dissenting colony, that these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent states. - - - John Adams, April 22, 1776.

They that can give up essential liberty to obtain a little temporary safety deserve neither liberty nor safety. - - - - Benjamine Franklin.

Favors School Prayer

To The Editor:

May I have my say about the little tiny prayer the school in New York repeated which only recognized God and asked for his blessings - that the "Law of The Land" declared unconstitutional?

Twenty years ago our nation was seemingly losing a ghastly war; to have lost would have meant world catastrophe from which it might never have recovered.

Our young men were fighting in nearly all the battle fields of the world. They were in sloppy, muddy, malarial infested jungles. They were dying in the flaming battles of sky, out on the seas, in deserts and in fox holes.

In that year of war disease, suffering, sickness and death, men women, Governors, Presidents, Kings, Generals and even atheists were praying and calling on others to pray.

A Lieutenant that was an atheist with Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, said he found God by prayer in a rubber raft in the blazing sun of the pacific ocean. His name was Lieutenant Whitaker, he later wrote a book telling of his experience. How only God saved him from death by prayer.

Songs were written like "Coming In On A Wing and A Prayer" —"Praise the Lord and Pass The Ammunition." It was a time of desperate need and I can not think of a ruling against prayer twenty years ago.

Now, just twenty years later, we are getting very technical about our praying. Even many of our preachers and Christian leaders agreeing that a state should not write out a little tiny prayer that could not harm any one, not even an atheist - he would not have to listen to it or accept it.

I am certainly not for any kind of state church or state religion, but I cannot see any harm in a prayer written out by any state or government official just recognizing God and calling to Him for blessings. If any of your dear preachers, teachers or any one else who can, point out the chapter and verse in the Bible that would be against praying, please do so.

My conviction is that God calls on all schools, governments and people any where to recognize and call on Him.

Indians Are Befriended

To The Editor:

People who live in places where there are few Negroes and elsewhere severely criticize the South for its unwilling attitude toward integration with the Negro.

Many feel that the Negro leaving the south can be likened to the Hungarians and other refugees. A biracial group says they cannot believe anything like the treatment they get could happen in the United States, The Negroes, wishing for more equality, remain persistent in their sit downs for complete integration.

Yet neither all this nor any other incidents in America's history can compare one iota to the tragic exodus of the Cherokees, who were cruelly driven from their homeland to further the cause of civilization.

I have a great admiration for the Indian American and though no' an authority on the subject, believe that the Indian though wilfully and maliciously mistreated by a Christian republic, is never - the - less proud of his race and color and want's no integration that would integrate him from his birth right. Yet there are still many Indians who cannot speak the language of the country they were born in. As there is much needless controversy over the Negro's God - given color and granting his demands, it does not seem logical to overlook our Indian people and it is all the more uncharitable when we must remember that the red man is the only true American and we have this great land from him. Neither we nor the Negro really have any cause for complaint. Even millions of American dollars pour into other countries to rehabilitate it's unappreciative inhibitants and we have need of it here at home.

As we cherish strongly our American traditions, why not as a service to God and humanity, administer more generously to the needs and wishes of our Indian people and encourage them in preserving also their unmatched heritage.

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By BARRY GOLDWATER

U. S. Senator From Arizona

"I am convinced that it is man's destiny to enter space and that he who controls the open space around us is in a position to control the earth."

These words, spoken some years ago by Werner von Braun, the former German rocket expert now working for the United States, have a special importance for Americans today, particularly in light of Mr. Khrushchev's recent claim that the Russians have developed a missile which could "hit a fly in space."

For I am afraid our official policy today does not properly reflect the need for the United States to be second to none in aerospace development.

I cannot detect the proper understanding on the part of our government that space superiority in all of its scientific, technological and military aspects is fundamental to the future well-being, prosperity and security of the United States.

Space, including the earth's atmosphere in which the United States has become the leading world power, is today a medium for three-dimensional mobility for good or evil. It is the aerospace medium in which the exercise of influence on earth can be accomplished by electronics or nuclear energy or by space craft in orbital trajectories as well as air-supported, winged vehicles.

Most important to the people on earth, space offers a means for extending world power and influence to any nation capable of using the new means of technology and scientific knowledge. For space is obviously a battle medium, and the scientific and technical conflict is underway right now. But we don't seem to recognize this in our official policy.

As a conservative, I believe in applying the lessons learned in the past to the problems of the present. Many of us can recall painfully when the U. S. War Department did not fully understand the value of the airplane as a military weapon until the German Luftwaffe loosed its fury on the battlefields of Europe. Then, because time was on our side, we were able to develop this weapon as a superior tool for victory.

But in the next war, if one should come, time will not be on our side. Thus, in examining our military space capabilities, the United States would do well to make absolutely certain that we are never subjected to technological surprise.

It is true that until now the Soviet leaders have said very little that would indicate a military interest in space. But we cannot assume that they do not look upon this medium with a warrior's eye.

For example, the Venus Globe which the Russians launched from Sputnik Eight indicated that they have the ability to launch a warhead aimed at the earth from a space platform in orbit. Another example of their military space thinking can be found in their new preoccupation with nuclear tests in the atmosphere. According to a recent staff report prepared for the Senate committee on aeronautical and space sciences, some bombs detonated from 100 to 300 miles above the earth could disrupt radars, radios and electronic systems around a wide area of the globe.

Of course, Soviet propaganda consistently emphasizes that the Communists' interests in space are confined to peaceful pursuits. But we would be worse than naive to believe it.

We must develop our space capability in all spheres, particularly the military, if we are to defend the doctrine of maintaining the peace in space.

How do you stand, sir?

It reminds me of the time Jack Dempsey was defending his title against the Argentine Luis Firpo, the Bull of the Pampas. Tex. Richard, one of the great promoters of history, was handling the bout. BASCOM TIMMONS

Setbacks Of U. S.

Outlook Bleak On Several Fronts, Especially South America

The United States faces discouragement on several fronts these days, but on none more than South America, where lack of progress seems to become more apparent in proportion to the amounts of U. S. cash distributed before and since the Alliance for Progress came into existence.

It may be an exaggeration to say that this nation is getting its face slapped by one South American nation after another, but the rebuffs received in its efforts to persuade these other American nations to carry out reforms suggested and urged by our State Department, through the various agencies which handle the several types of aid, are in themselves a sort of ridicule to which European beneficiaries of the Marshall plan never subjected us.

Economic aid to 21 South and Central Americans governments now total well over 5 billion dollars, which is only ten per cent of that given nations of three other continents, some of which has failed to produce stability in government, but in the latter instances the influence of Communism has contributed importantly to the shortcomings. This is not as true in Latin America as it was several years ago.

It is true that of the assistance given these countries some 4 billions has been in form of loans, but few expect these loans to be repaid within any estimable period of time, and some officials regard them merely as a form of bookkeeping eventually to be recorded on the loss side.

The outlook for stable government in some of the more important countries is still poor. Argentina, Chile, Peru, Venezuela , Haiti and the Dominican Republic are constantly on the verge of revolution in the opinion both of State Department observers and qualified American journalists who have visited them.

What is most discouraging is that years of effort by various divisions of our government have failed to produce any formula which gives hope of needed governmental readjustment for more than a short period. Despite the complete loss of Cuba to Communism, the present administration has continued to talk optimistically of the future of other countries. Recent events in Peru, Argentina, Haiti and Chile in particular have given no support to such optimism.

The country whose progress has been most encouraging is Mexico which has received approximately $650 millions in foreign aid, of which half a billion has been loans. Mexico has been given little military aid, has an apparently stable government and keeps on friendly terms with all governments of the Western Hemisphere including Cuba. The Mexican government, moreover has forbidden activity by Communist propagandists, and enforced its orders within territory under its jurisdiction. That does not include the Embassies of Communist countries.

Brazil which has received the largest amount of assistance, in excess of $1½ billions, maintains frigidly formal diplomatic relations with the United States. President Kennedy plans a trip there within the next year, but that depends to a considerable extent upon the stability of the Brazilian government. He has gone so far in committing himself to the trip that to abandon it would be an affront to the Brazilian government and would certainly not advance the cause of the reforms which are being pressed upon the Brazilian government especially in the field of taxation and distribution of wealth.

While Mexico has received but 5 millions in military aid, Brazil has had 175 million and Peru, where a military junta recently took over has received 65 millions. Panama, where agitation to take over the Panama Canal is constant and anti-American mobs riot frequently, has had 42 millions in outright grants, more than several more friendly countries and tiny Haiti has had $57 millions in such grants.

At the time the Alliance for Progress was launched earlier this year at Punta del Este, some observers noted that it might already be too late to halt the disintegration already in process in several South American countries. Subsequent events have proved this to be true. The U. S. hope to banish illiteracy, to stop internal disunity and to improve the lot of the inhabitants o fthe Latin American countries has from all outward evidence made little progress under the Alliance for Progress.

CHARLES O. GRIDLEY

Districts Closer

Congressional Divisions Of About Equal Size Are Sought

Since it became a nation, the United States, under the direction of its Constitution has tried at ten year intervals to divide itself into congressional districts of approximately equal size. So far it hasn't achieved this ideal but a new listing by the Census Bureau shows that it is coming closer.

State legislatures decide the boundaries and the size of the districts after the Census Bureau with the approval of Congress, determines every ten years the number of members of the U. S. House of Representatives to which each state is entitled, on the basis of the population count.

When the number of a state's representatives is increased or decreased by a new apportionment, it becomes the duty of the state legislature to redivide the state into new districts, theoretically as nearly equal in size as possible.

Congress has nothing to do with the size of the districts its 435 members represent, but those which lose representatives and fail to redistrict must elect all representatives from the state at large. This year the only states electing all their House members at large are Alabama, with eight and Hawaii with two. Legislative redistricting efforts usually result in battles which can only be settled by compromise, which is the reason, along with geographic difficulties, why districts vary so much in size.

Now the congressional redistricting battles are over, at least for the purposes of the coming congressional election. They show that more than one half the congressional districts are smaller in population than the 410,487 fixed by the census bureau after the 1960 census for each of the 435 congressional districts.

The largest district is the Fifth Texas (Dallas County), with 951,527 people. Second is the Sixteenth Michigan, part of Detroit, with 802,994, and the third is the Third Ohio (Dayton) with 726,156. Most malapportioned among the populous states is Texas of which the 22 congressional districts range in size from 951,527 just mentioned in the Fifth district to 216,371 in the Fourth district comprising Collin, Fannin, Grayson, Hunt, Kaufman, Rains and Rockwall counties and represented for many years by the late Sam Rayburn, Speaker of the House of Representatives.

In addition to the big Dallas district, with its near million population, Texas has two more of the 10 districts in the United States over 600,000 — the 20th (San Antonio) 687,151 and the 22nd (Houston) 674,975. The seven other oversize districts include three in Maryland and four in Michigan.

A total of 221 districts out of the 435 have less than 410,487 people which is the population of the median or ideal district. The three districts nearest to the "ideal" in size are the Fifteenth Illinois, with 410,650 people; the Sixth Kentucky with 411,545; and the Eighth Wisconsin 411,807.

The most evenly districted state, New York, has no district over 500,000, none under 300,000, and has but 19 out of its 45 less than the "ideal" mark. California which expects to overtake New York in population before the next census, has 23 of its thirty-eight districts under the "ideal" figure and has four districts over half a million.

Among the states with districts under the ideal figure are Arkansas, two out of four; Florida, six of 12; Illinois, 13 of 24; Georgia, 7 of 10; Louisiana, 5 of 8; Mississippi, two of five; North Carolina 5 of 11; Ohio, 13 of 25; Oklahoma, 3 of 6; South Carolina, 3 of 6; Tennessee, 6 of 9; Texas, 11 of 22; Virginia, 6 of 10.

Alabama is electing its 8 representatives at large as is Hawaii, with two representatives. Four states which gained a seat by the last apportionment — Texas, Ohio, Michigan and Maryland, will elect the additional member at large. New Mexico will elect both its members at large.

Since the last census the population of the "ideal" district has grown from 344,587 to 410,487. A survey of district populations sustains the conclusion that on the whole, they have evened out over the country between censuses. There are but four districts — the 12th in Michigan, the Second of South Dakota, the Fourth of Colorado and the Third of Arizona which have fewer than 200,000 inhabitants.

States with a single representative are Alaska, Delaware, Nevada, Vermont and Wyoming.

The distribution of population by districts has been somewhat improved as a result of the last two censuses and the subsequent redistricting, in the opinion of congressional specialists. Some of the disparity in size between urban and rural districts has been smoothed out, they say, pointing to California, Illinois and Massachusetts as examples.

World Spotlight: A Look Behind the Headlines

First Anniversary Of 'Wall' Is Near

By GEORGE BOULTWOOD

BERLIN (AP) — At high noon Monday traffic in West Berlin will come to a three-minute halt. Workers will lay down their tasks. The Freedom Bell, a copy of Philadelphia's Liberty Bell, will toll.

On the barbed wire that makes up part of the hated Red Wall, new wreaths will be hung.

The wreaths will commemorate the victims of communism—the dead, the imprisoned and those separated from families and friends by the wall.

It is the wall's first anniversary.

On Sunday, Aug. 13, 1961, the Communist regime of East Germany sealed off West Berlin to stop its being used as an escape hatch by thousands of East Germans.

They began with a few strands of barbed wire. In the past 12 months they have toiled incessantly to build a fearsome barricade of concrete and iron. It is guarded day and night by 20,000 armed men with orders to shoot down any countrymen trying to get through it.

The barricade around West Berlin is one of the strangest objects ever built by man.

People from all over the world have traveled to Berlin, 110 miles behind the Iron Curtain, to look at it. They nearly always say the same thing: "Unbelievable."

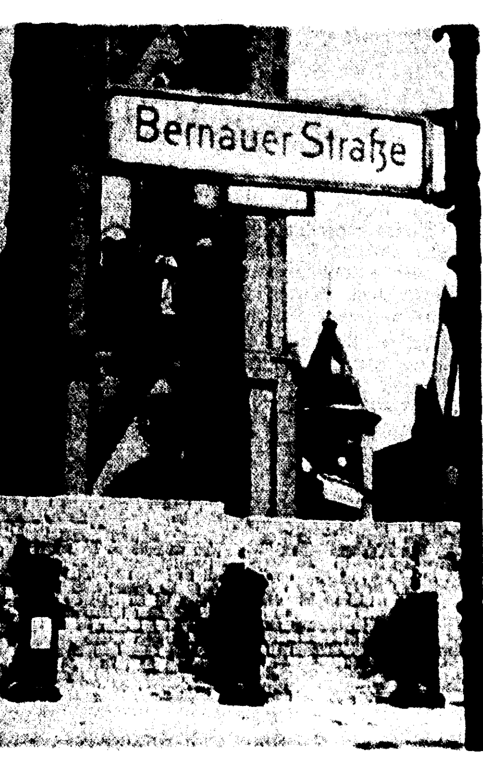
Despite what they have read, the pictures they have seen, the first sight comes as a shock.

Robert F. Kennedy called it "an admission of the failure of communism." Willy Brandt, mayor of West Berlin, dubs it "madness in stone." West Berliners call it "the wall of shame" and have scrawled on it the letters K. Z.—the German abbreviation for concentration camp.

The man who made it, Communist leader Walter Ulbricht, blandly calls it "a normal frontiers." The building of the wall he simply refers to as "the security measures of Aug. 13."

This reporter has watched the wall grow from the start. I was the last person to drive across the famed Potsdamer Platz, once Berlin's busiest intersection. I stopped on the East side of the border to watch East German troops at work. An officer politely asked me to pull my car forward. I did so. The troops dragged wire across the square.

After the wire came a wall of building blocks, topped with barbed wire. Next a double line of steel rails as a tank obstacle. Then the thickness of the wall was doubled, making it 10 feet wide in parts. This spring the Reds dug trenches to give cover to their guards. Later they added concrete pillboxes with slits through which to fire at refugees.



CRUDE PATCH WORK OF cinder block East German wall hides entrance to Church of the Reconciliation in the territory in this view made from West German side of Berlin. Sidewalk in front of church is in western territory. Within wall at this point are old pillars of church entrance. Some of pillars bear memorial plaques, where wreaths are placed, like one at left, wreaths honor dead buried in graveyard beyond church, which can't be reached by people in west, due to concrete Communist barrier. August 13th marks start of East German dividing wall. (AP Wirephoto)

For 26½ of its 101 miles the barricades snake across the center of the city. In some places the building line is the border. There the houses have been evacuated and bricked up.

There used to be 81 crossing points between the East and West parts of the city. Now there are seven. One is for foreigners only, the others, for West Germans and the few Berliners the Communists allow through their controls.

Where possible the Reds have cleared open space on their side of the border to make a strip on which escapees can easily be spotted.

From a helicopter this strip looks like a small road winding around the city limits. The sand is carefully swept.

From the air the barricades have a chilling orderliness. Thousands of concrete posts are in straight ranks. Concrete obstacles on roads make tidy patterns. Frontier posts are painted bright red and white.

Some 20 miles of the border is water. The Spree River runs through the city center, the Havel River along the west border.

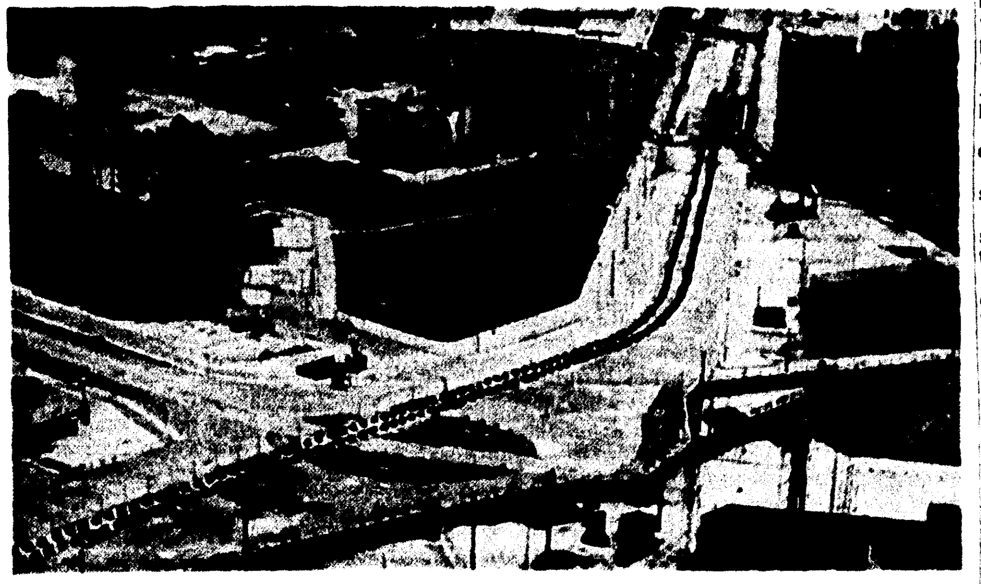
One bank of the Havel is lively with summer bathers, its water crowded with sailboats, launches and pleasure steamers.

The other side is dead. There are no bathers, since the bank is cut off by three rows of barbed wire. The only craft are police boats with machine guns.

The outer border separating West Berlin from East Germany, is differentiated from East Berlin, is 74½ miles long. There is barbed wire the whole way. Every few hundred yards there is a watchtower with guards and machine guns.

There are only three gaps—the Autobahn to the west, a highway to Hamburg and a bridge leading to Potsdam. Each is heavily guarded.

Nobody in the West knows what all this cost. A guess is $250 million or more. The amount of material and labor would have been sufficient to build a small town.



THE BERLIN "WALL" at historic Potsdamer Platz is a double affair: It's a wall, plus a separate row of obstacles, two deep. West Berlin is in lower right corner of picture; all the rest of this area as viewed from a helicopter is East Berlin. (AP Wirephoto)

BY TROUBLED DOCTOR

Search Outlawed Drug

By ANTHONY WHITE

LONDON (AP)—When the baby smiled for the German doctor, it looked like any normal, healthy infant, but it had been born without arms.

The doctor was Widukind Lenz, a pediatrician.

Troubled at the frequency of such births in Hamburg, Lenz kept asking himself: What is causing this horrible thing? Why so many babies without arms, without legs?

The question began a search that gradually was to unfold into the tragedy of thousands of women who took the drug thalidomide.

The day was Nov. 11, 1961.

Lanz questioned the mother. Had she eaten any unusual foods during her pregnancy?

No, but she had taken sedative pills repeatedly.

Which pills?

Contergan, she said.

This was a trade name of thalidomide, a drug developed in Germany.

It was the first clue.

"I wondered if this was what I had been looking for," Lenz recalls.

"I didn't know at that time what Contergan was. But it turned out to be widely distributed in Germany."

Women in Britain were taking it, too, and in probably a dozen countries besides.

The toll of babies deformed is not known for certain. So far there are only estimates. In Germany 3,600 last year alone, in Britain around 1,000. The tragedy of what are now called "thalidomide babies" centers in these two countries.

"In the late summer of 1961 my colleagues and I in Hamburg had noticed a frequency of malformed babies," Lenz said. "It was completely puzzling to me.

"But I noticed that the malformations were repeated mostly in the same form and one thing was clear—there would be only one main cause.

"So I went out to look up families and personally question them."

Within a few days Lenz turned up 17 babies similarly crippled.

All 17 mothers told him they had taken Contergan during early pregnancy.

Now well on the trail, Lenz contacted other doctors he knew and medical officials in all the German states. He told them what he feared.

By Nov. 18 he was able to tell the North Rhine-Westphalia Society for Pediatrics: There are indications that Contergan is dangerous.

Almost simultaneously a doctor in Australia made the same finding.

Dr W G McBride saw a connection between thalidomide and the births of several deformed children

He reported his suspicions Nov. 20 to the company marketing thalidomide in Britain and Australia.

In Germany, Lenz's report to the pediatrics society was a bombshell. The Chemie Gruenenthal Company had discovered thalidomide in 1954 and had tested it until 1957

The drug had been given to rats and mice to see if it was toxic, to cats for possible effects on blood pressure, to rabbits in case it caused fever and to guinea pigs to exclude allergic effects.

Thalidomide came through these tests. It was a sedative and hypnotic which seemed an attractive alternative to more dangerous barbiturates. Children had swallowed big doses and suffered no ill effects.

So Gruenenthal felt thalidomide was safe.

In April 1958 thalidomide was marketed in Britain after British clinicians put it through controlled trials which ruled it safe.

Why didn't the scientists test for possible ill effects on the unborn?

Chinese Have A Pet Name For Refugees

'Crouching Snake' Group Invading Hong Kong Area

HONG KONG (AP)—The easiest way for a refugee from Red China to reach this British colony is to turn into a "crouching snake."

That's the Chinese name for the human cargo packed like sardines aboard junks and other vessels and smuggled into Hong Kong.

"It's just like riding a slave ship in the 19th century," said one refugee. "They don't treat you like humans." But water is the route most frequently chosen by the increasing flow of refugees, most of whom are smuggled in from the neighboring Portuguese colony of Macao.

Refugees have swollen Hong Kong's population from pre-war 1.2 million to 3.25 million today. The British have housed 500,000 refugees and figure they can house another 500,000 in the next five years, if the flow continues at what is considered the normal 100 a day.

But Colonial Secretary Claude Burgess estimates the flow has tripled the last few months, to 10,000 a month.

Almost 100,000 refugees stormed barbed wire barricades in a mass overland break for freedom last May, but two-thirds of those were intercepted and sent back to China

Most refugees prefer the uncomfortable sea routes because they are less hazardous and strenuous than the overland routes.

It is considered physically impossible to check every fishing junk in Hong Kong waters, especially at night.

Even when a boat-load of refugees is intercepted and sent back toward the China coast, there's nothing to prevent it from turning around and making another try.

The Chinese Communist authorities take back refugees arrested in overland escape attempts. But for some reason they will not accept refugees caught at sea.

When a junk-load of refugees is arrested by the British the junk is normally sold at auction. Smuggling groups buy up most of the auctioned junks, and use them in fresh smuggling attempts.

The Hong Kong government has started cracking down. It is imposing stiff jail sentences. And it has started destroying captured junks.

The tougher policy, however, risks popular repercussions, such as the demonstrations caused by British efforts to return captured refugees to Red China in May.

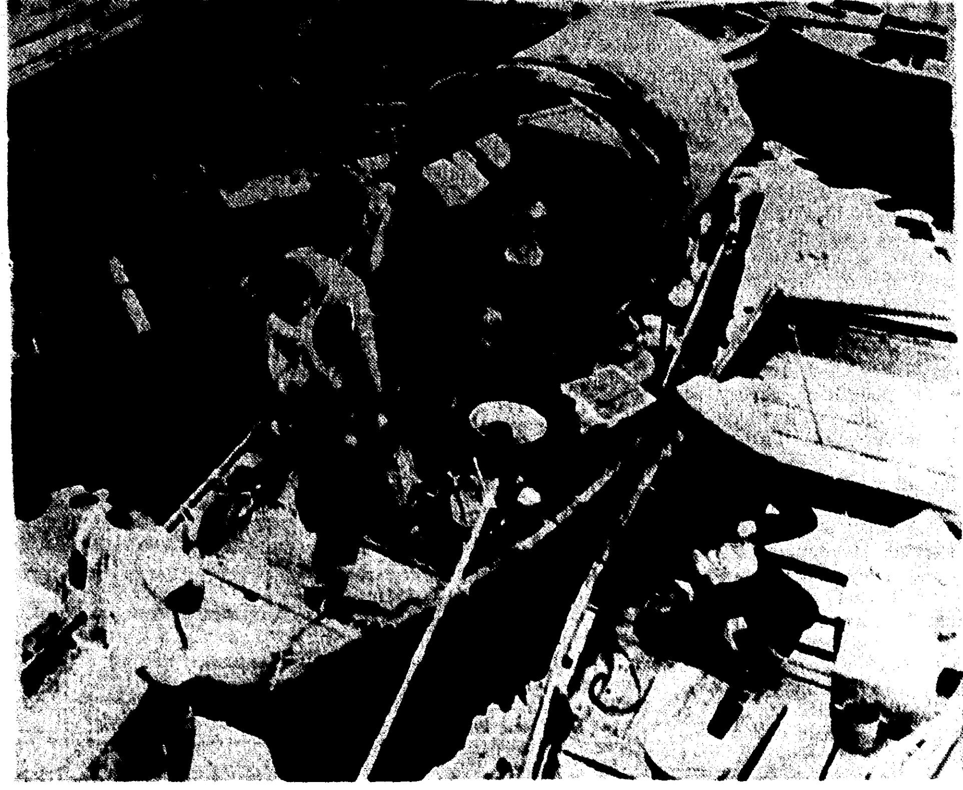
Two women refugees were killed and a young refugee boy was injured Aug. 3 when a British patrol boat fired on a junk filled with "crouching snakes." The junk had refused to stop after repeated warnings.

The smugglers are ruthless, one of the "snakes" said.

They abuse and manhandle passengers.

"What could we do?" he shrugged. "We are completely at their mercy."

Dozens of "travel agencies" are engaged in human smuggling. They have widely divergent political shades.



TYPICAL FAMILY IS pictured on Sampan which serves as home on the water on the coastline of Hong Kong. Many refugees from Red China are smuggled into the British Colony of Hong Kong aboard Chinese junks and other vessels like sampans. Recent census showed more than 130,000 persons, most of them refugees from Red China, live afloat in Hong Kong. (AP Wirephoto)

ECONOMY OF CANADIANS

Effects Of U.S. Buying Reflected In Headlines

By MAX HARRELSON

OTTAWA (AP) — "Canadian sales in U.S. menaced" . . . "Ottawa fears U.S. drive to keep defense dollars" . . . "Lumber curb pressure rises in U.S."

These headlines in Canadian newspapers reflect an awareness that U.S. competitors are resisting this country's "Buy Canadian" campaign while lobbies in Washington seek curbs on Canadian exports.

At the same time, U.S. officials in Ottawa acknowledge they are not happy over some of the restrictive measures in Prime Minister John Diefenbaker's austerity program aimed at reducing Canadian spending abroad.

Since Canada is the best customer for U.S. goods, one of the sore spots south of the border is the new surcharge of 5-to-15 per cent on about half of the goods Canada imports. This measure is intended primarily to discourage imports, but it also is designed to raise about $200 million in revenue on goods that come in despite the levy. It is called a temporary action.

Some U.S. manufacturers have complained that the Canadian surcharges will have the effect of eliminating American products from competition in the Canadian market.

Another irritant to U.S. business is the sharp reduction in the amount of goods Canadian travelers may bring back to Canada. Particularly hard-hit are retail outlets near the border which normally rely on substantial Canadian purchases. Canadians may now bring home only $25 worth of merchandise on any one trip instead of $100 as before.

Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., charged recently in Washington that the Canadian import levies will hit states producing fruits, vegetables and meats for sale to Canada.

Some Canadians also are worried by the government's protectionist efforts. J. Terence Manley, vicepresident of the Canadian Importers and Traders Association, said recently the program was bound to affect Canada's trade relationship "with many countries with whom we have a favorable balance of trade."

He added that the surcharges may also "invite retaliation from those countries whose exports are affected by these taxes."

Arthur Temple Jr., president of the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association in the United States, has urged President Kennedy to impose temporary quotas on Canadian softwood.

Devaluation of the Canadian dollar has given Canadian exporters a big advantage. U.S. buyers in effect get a discount of about 7.5 cents on the dollar—the difference between the U.S. dollar and the pegged Canadian dollar. The cheaper Canadian dollar also is luring U.S. tourists in record numbers.

Latest trade figures find Canada's foreign trade was booming. Due partly to the devaluation of the dollar, Canada's exports to the United States in May were up 32.1 per cent over the figure for May 1961. Canada's U.S. exports, however, still fell far short of her imports from the United States.

One of the basic difficulties is that both Canada and the United States are trying to curb spending of their moneys in other countries. Both also are trying to expand exports.

The two countries, therefore, are competing. The Montreal Gazette notes that the problem of the U.S. balance of payments, as well as Canada's unfavorable balance, has increased the urge for selling abroad.

"The result has been," the Gazette said, "that the United States in many lines will be engaged more energetically than ever in fighting for markets in which Canadians will be selling."

Up to now the Kennedy administration has been sympathetic toward Canada's economic difficulties. U.S. officials in Ottawa point out that Washington joined Britain and the International Monetary Fund in supplying foreign exchange reserves to bolster Canada's sagging dollar because they wanted to see a sound Canadian economy.

Even this raised difficulties. Stabilization of the Canadian dollar and higher interest rates have started attracting U.S. investments once more, thus causing a further flow of dollars out of the United States.

There has been no official complaint from Washington against Canada's austerity program, but U.S. sources in Ottawa indicate this is due to the fact that the program is called temporary. The United States is anxious to see these measures ended as soon as possible. The U.S. position is that Canadian steps to discourage imports should be in the nature of internal measures, such as excise taxes, rather than tariff increases, surcharges or other trade deterrents.

Some Canadian economic writers fear continuation of Canadian protectionist measures will support critics of President Kennedy's trade policy. As one commentator put it: U.S. high tariff advocates will advance the argument that if protection is good for Canada's industry "then let's give U.S. industry a little of it."

MOSLEY TRIES A COMEBACK

Britain's Rightist Group Is Small But Quite Noisy

By TOM OCHILTREE

LONDON (AP)—A rotten tomato splashes against the side of a young policeman's face, knocking off his helmet.

Fist fights break out around a platform where chest-thumping fascist speakers are marooned in a pulsing swarm of angry humanity.

Somewhere in the crowd a pretty young woman screams her hatred of long-dead Hitler and faints. She is passed from one pair of hands to another over the heads of the throng like a limp rag doll and receives treatment in an ambulance parked in a side street. These are incidents in Britain as Sir Oswald Mosley, leader of Britain's strutting prewar Blackshirts, tries for a comeback and other rightist groups voice their demands.

These small but noisy groups preach an anti-Jewish, anti-Negro political line.

Mosley himself has been manhandled in the frequent street fighting in this island kingdom which prides itself on orderliness and tolerance.

The violence is causing increasing public concern. Pressure builds up on Prime Minister Macmillan's government to ban fascist street meetings. Some people also want the 1936 public orders act amended to provide stiff penalties for preaching racial hatred.

Yet this is a field where a democratic government must tread carefully, Home Secretary Henry Brooke asserts. Restrictions on expressions of opinion can limit the entire population's liberty.

"The problem turns on how to preserve the right of free expression of opinion while effectively discouraging wanton incitement to racial hatred," Brooke says.

Aware of the government's dilemma, Mosley claims to be defending free speech and insists that the police protect him. This attitude has produced strong editorial reaction. The pro-Laborite Daily Herald commented:

"Violence at public meetings is wrong, whichever side starts it. But it is no use blaming only the people who create the uproar at the Mosley meetings. Whether Mosley says a word or not, the man himself is a provocation because of what he was and what he still is."

LONDON POLICE strain against surging demonstrators at open air meeting of Sir Oswald Mosley's rightist British Union Movement. Clashes between small but noisy groups preaching an anti-Jewish and anti-Negro line and militant anti-Facists including Communists and Socialists are causing concern in Britain, a nation which prides itself on orderliness and tolerance. Many Differences To Be Found In East, West Trek

BUCHAREST (AP) — Black thunderheads ahead of us and suddenly the plane begins to buck. . .

Apparently no matter. On the left are the Carpathian Mountains. The passengers, with few exceptions, all get up from their seats and lean over to the left to look. Will the plane tip or crash? It is bucking badly. Everything seems okay . . .

In the front, four passengers are playing dominoes; kibitzers are laughing and giving advice.

Everybody is walking around, talking to somebody else or going back to the washrooms . . .

Good Lord, now it is beginning to rain in the plane. The stewardess is walking up and down, wiping off the roof. Ah, the rain evidently is condensation from the cold outside . . .

Now the pressurization seems a bit odd and there are great gusts of wind and smoke (or is it condensation again?) pouring from the ventilators. . .

For pure adventure in this modern age, try a Russian TU104 jet or an Ilushyn turbo-prop. All the eastern European airlines use them. It can be the gayest little party this side of eternity.

No precautions like fastening your seat belt as you run into zones of turbulence, my dear. Just pivo (beer) and (if you are lucky on a Russian jet) caviar (a bit old).

You are reminded of the Russian pilot who asks, as you tremble in your seat at the perilous landings, "Are you afraid to die?"

Try travel behind the Iron Curtain for excitement.

By car, for instance, since you have had enough of air travel. At the Czech-German border. Nice people, very friendly, quick formalities with your papers. Your long-awaited visa is in order.

Except just as you are about to drive through the second red and white striped barrier, you are stopped.

"Just a minute. Customs control. Please step out."

Behind the customs control building — five snarling police dogs.

The smiling man looks under your car, digs his hands between the seats, under the floor carpeting, in the glove compartment, under the hood, in the trunk, in your smallest bag.

"They use the dogs to track people attempting to cross the barbed wire and the minefields," another traveler explains.

"But I am not going out; I am going in," you say, and you turn to the very polite man, "Are you perhaps looking for somebody under the carpet?"

He smiles very courteously again and says nothing. The dogs stop barking and he lifts the barriers to the peoples' paradise.

ANSWER TO INFLATION

Said Roger Babson, noted economist, in an article in Commercial Appeal: "Now is the best time to buy life insurance because the dollar's value is down. In addition to getting full insurance the day you paid your first premium, you are paying your premium with 52-cent dollars, while your wife and family may be paid in 100-cent dollars when you die."

★ ★ ★

Here is an idea that you might try if you think you should have some equity investments to hedge against inflation:

List your assets on a piece of paper with a line drawn down the center of the page from top to bottom and on the right side of the line list your equity investments. On the left side of the line list your fixed-value investments like life insurance, government bonds and savings accounts. You will probably find that on the fixed-dollar side all you have is a savings account and the cash values of your life insurance policies. On the other side you have your home and if you have a business, you have an equity in your business. Then, of course, there is your automobile and any jewelry that your wife owns, etc. So you see your real need is not to hedge against inflation because of all of these assets on the right side of the line will rise with inflation, but if there is a deflation they will all sink. Consider whether or not your cash values and your savings account are sufficient to cushion you in the event of deflation. You should strike a balance 50-50.

World Spotlight; A Look Behind the Headlines

First Anniversary Of 'Wall' Is Near

By GEORGE BOULTWOOD

BERLIN (AP) — At high noon Monday traffic in West Berlin will come to a three-minute halt. Workers will lay down their tasks. The Freedom Bell, a copy of Philadelphia's Liberty Bell, will toll.

On the barbed wire that makes up part of the hated Red Wall, new wreaths will be hung.

The wreaths will commemorate the victims of communism—the dead, the imprisoned and those separated from families and friends by the wall.

It is the wall's first anniversary.

On Sunday, Aug. 13, 1961, the Communist regime of East Germany sealed off West Berlin to stop its being used as an escape hatch by thousands of East Germans.

They began with a few strands of barbed wire. In the past 12 months they have toiled incessantly to build a fearsome barricade of concrete and iron. It is guarded day and night by 20,000 armed men with orders to shoot down any countrymen trying to get through it.

The barricade around West Berlin is one of the strangest objects ever built by man.

People from all over the world have traveled to Berlin, 110 miles behind the Iron Curtain, to look at it. They nearly always say the same thing: "Unbelievable."

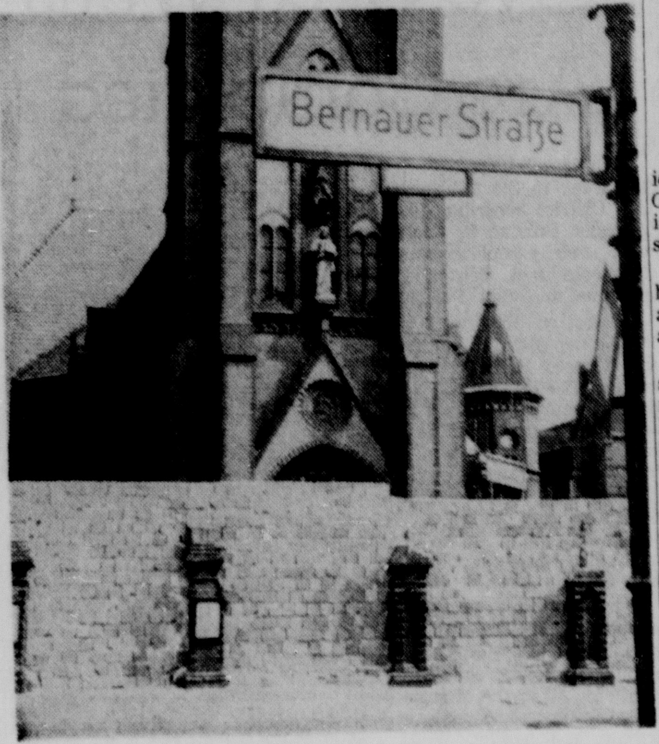
Despite what they have read, the pictures they have seen, the first sight comes as a shock.

Robert F. Kennedy called it "an admission of the failure of communism." Willy Brandt, mayor of West Berlin, dubs it "madness in stone." West Berliners call it "the wall of shame" and have scrawled on it the letters K. Z.—the German abbreviation for concentration camp.

The man who made it, Communist leader Walter Ulbricht, blandly calls it "a normal frontiers." The building of the wall he simply refers to as "the security measures of Aug. 13."

This reporter has watched the wall grow from the start. I was the last person to drive across the famed Potsdamer Platz, once Berlin's busiest intersection. I stopped on the East side of the border to watch East German troops at work. An officer politely asked me to pull my car forward. I did so. The troops dragged wire across the square.

After the wire came a wall of building blocks, topped with barbed wire. Next a double line of steel rails as a tank obstacle. Then the thickness of the wall was doubled, making it 10 feet wide in parts. This spring the Reds dug trenches to give cover to their guards. Later they added concrete pillboxes with slits through which to fire at refugees.



CRUDE PATCH WORK OF cinder block East German wall hides entrance to Church of the Reconciliation in the territory in this view made from West German side of Berlin. Sidewalk in front of church is in western territory. Within wall at this point are old pillars of church entrance. Some of pillars bear memorial plaques, where wreaths are placed, like one at left, wreaths honor dead buried in graveyard beyond church, which can't be reached by people in west, due to concrete Communist barrier. August 13th marks start of East German dividing wall. (AP Wirephoto)

For 26½ of its 101 miles the barricades snake across the center of the city. In some places the building line is the border. There the houses have been evacuated and bricked up.

There used to be 81 crossing points between the East and West parts of the city. Now there are seven. One is for foreigners only, the others, for West Germans and the few Berliners the Communists allow through their controls.

Where possible the Reds have cleared open space on their side of the border to make a strip on which escapees can easily be spotted.

From a helicopter this strip looks like a small road winding around the city limits. The sand is carefully swept.

From the air the barricades have a chilling orderliness. Thousands of concrete posts are in straight ranks. Concrete obstacles on roads make tidy patterns. Frontier posts are painted bright red and white.

Some 20 miles of the border is water. The Spree River runs through the city center, the Havel River along the west border.

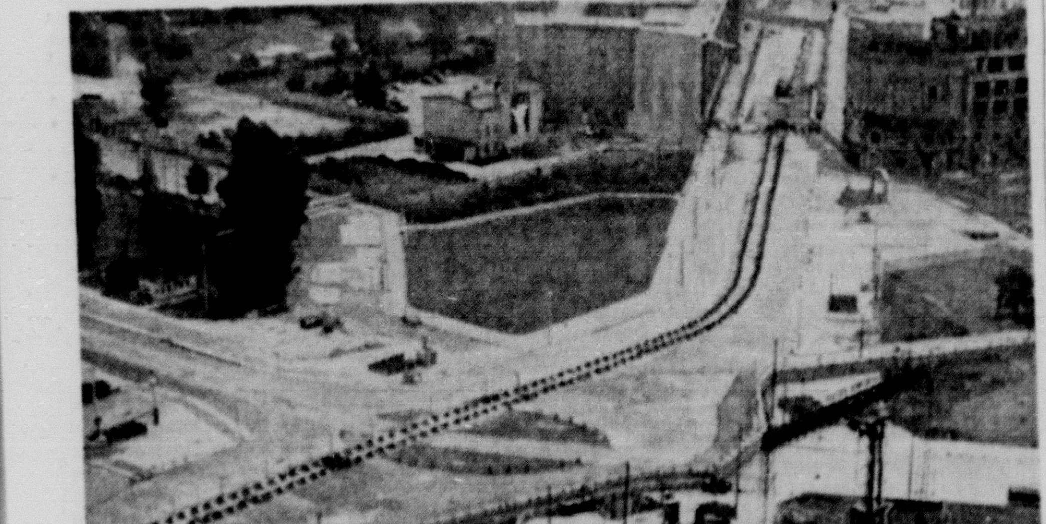
One bank of the Havel is lively with summer bathers, its water crowded with sailboats, launches and pleasure steamers.

The other side is dead. There are no bathers, since the bank is cut off by three rows of barbed wire. The only craft are police boats with machine guns.

The outer border separating West Berlin from East Germany, is differentiated from East Berlin, is 74½ miles long. There is barbed wire the whole way. Every few hundred yards there is a watchtower with guards and machine guns.

There are only three gaps—the Autobahn to the west, a highway to Hamburg and a bridge leading to Potsdam. Each is heavily guarded.

Nobody in the West knows what all this cost. A guess is $250 million or more. The amount of material and labor would have been sufficient to build a small town.



THE BERLIN "WALL" at historic Potsdamer Platz is a double affair: It's a wall, plus a separate row of obstacles, two deep. West Berlin is in lower right corner of picture; all the rest of this area as viewed from a helicopter is East Berlin. (AP Wirephoto)

Chinese Have A Pet Name For Refugees

'Crouching Snake' Group Invading Hong Kong Area

HONG KONG (AP)—The easiest way for a refugee from Red China to reach this British colony is to turn into a "crouching snake."

That's the Chinese name for the human cargo packed like sardines aboard junks and other vessels and smuggled into Hong Kong.

"It's just like riding a slave ship in the 19th century," said one refugee. 'They don't treat you like humans." But water is the route most frequently chosen by the increasing flow of refugees, most of whom are smuggled in from the neighboring Portuguese colony of Macao.

Refugees have swollen Hong Kong's population from pre-war 1.2 million to 3.25 million today. The British have housed 500,000 refugees and figure they can house another 500,000 in the next five years, if the flow continues at what is considered the normal 100 a day.

But Colonial Secretary Claude Burgess estimates the flow has tripled the last few months, to 10,000 a month.

Almost 100,000 refugees stormed barbed wire barricades in a mass overland break for freedom last May, but two-thirds of those were intercepted and sent back to China.

Most refugees prefer the uncomfortable sea routes because they are less hazardous and strenuous than the overland routes.

It is considered physically impossible to check every fishing junk in Hong Kong waters, especially at night.

Even when a boat-load of refugees is intercepted and sent back toward the China coast, there's nothing to prevent it from turning around and making another try.

The Chinese Communist authorities take back refugees arrested in overland escape attempts. But for some reason they will not accept refugees caught at sea.

When a junk-load of refugees is arrested by the British the junk is normally sold at auction. Smuggling groups buy up most of the auctioned junks, and use them in fresh smuggling attempts.

The Hong Kong government has started cracking down. It is imposing stiff jail sentences. And it has started destroying captured junks.

The tougher policy, however, risks popular repercussions, such as the demonstrations caused by British efforts to return captured refugees to Red China in May.

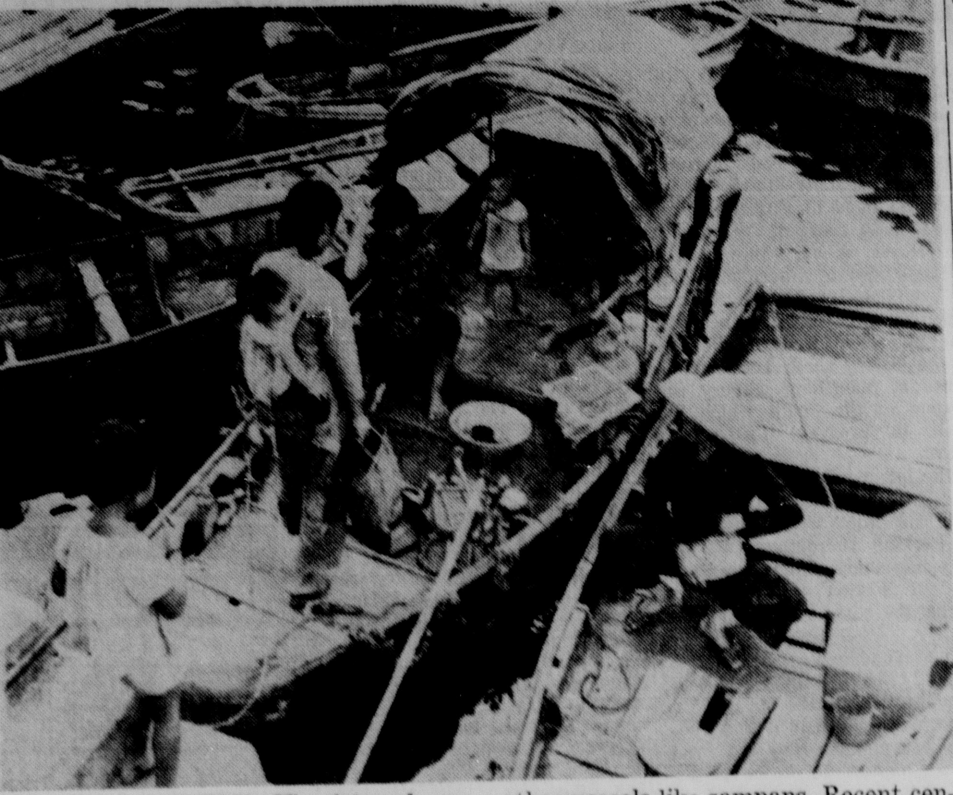
Two women refugees were killed and a young refugee boy was injured Aug. 3 when a British patrol boat fired on a junk filled with "crouching snakes." The junk had refused to stop after repeated warnings.

The smugglers are ruthless, one of the "snakes" said.

They abuse and manhandle passengers.

"What could we do?" he shrugged. "We are completely at their mercy."

Dozens of "travel agencies" are engaged in human smuggling. They have widely divergent political shades.



TYPICAL FAMILY IS pictured on Sampan which serves as home on the water on the coastline of Hong Kong. Many refugees from Red China are smuggled into the British Colony of Hong Kong aboard Chinese junks and other vessels like sampans. Recent census showed more than 130,000 persons, most of them refugees from Red China, live afloat in Hong Kong. (AP Wirephoto)

ECONOMY OF CANADIANS

Effects Of U.S. Buying Reflected In Headlines

By MAX HARRELSON

OTTAWA (AP) — "Canadian sales in U.S. menaced" . . . "Ottawa fears U.S. drive to keep defense dollars" . . . "Lumber curb pressure rises in U.S."

These headlines in Canadian newspapers reflect an awareness that U.S. competitors are resisting this country's "Buy Canadian" campaign while lobbies in Washington seek curbs on Canadian exports.

At the same time, U.S. officials in Ottawa acknowledge they are not happy over some of the restrictive measures in Prime Minister John Diefenbaker's austerity program aimed at reducing Canadian spending abroad.

Since Canada is the best customer for U.S. goods, one of the sore spots south of the border is the new surcharge of 5-to-15 per cent on about half of the goods Canada imports. This measure is intended primarily to discourage imports, but it also is designed to raise about $200 million in revenue on goods that come in despite the levy. It is called a temporary action.

Some U.S. manufacturers have complained that the Canadian surcharges will have the effect of eliminating American products from competition in the Canadian market.

Another irritant to U.S. business is the sharp reduction in the amount of goods Canadian travelers may bring back to Canada. Particularly hard-hit are retail outlets near the border which normally rely on substantial Canadian purchases. Canadians may now bring home only $25 worth of merchandise on any one trip instead of $100 as before.

Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., charged recently in Washington that the Canadian import levies will hit states producing fruits, vegetables and meats for sale to Canada.

Some Canadians also are worried by the government's protectionist efforts. J. Terence Manley, vicepresident of the Canadian Importers and Traders Association, said recently the program was bound to affect Canada's trade relationship "with many countries with whom we have a favorable balance of trade."

He added that the surcharges may also "invite retaliation from those countries whose exports are affected by these taxes."

Arthur Temple Jr., president of the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association in the United States, has urged President Kennedy to impose temporary quotas on Canadian softwood.

Devaluation of the Canadian dollar has given Canadian exporters a big advantage. U.S. buyers in effect get a discount of about 7.5 cents on the dollar—the difference between the U.S. dollar and the pegged Canadian dollar. The cheaper Canadian dollar also is luring U.S. tourists in record numbers.

Latest trade figures find Canada's foreign trade was booming. Due partly to the devaluation of the dollar, Canada's exports to the United States in May were up 32.1 per cent over the figure for May 1961. Canada's U.S. exports, however, still fell far short of her imports from the United States.

BY TROUBLED DOCTOR

Search Outlawed Drug

By ANTHONY WHITE

LONDON (AP)—When the baby smiled for the German doctor, it looked like any normal, healthy infant, but it had been born without arms.

The doctor was Widukind Lenz, a pediatrician.

Troubled at the frequency of such births in Hamburg, Lenz kept asking himself: What is causing this horrible thing? Why so many babies without arms, without legs?

The question began a search that gradually was to unfold into the tragedy of thousands of women who took the drug thalidomide.

The day was Nov. 11, 1961.

Lanz questioned the mother. Had she eaten any unusual foods during her pregnancy?

No, but she had taken sedative pills repeatedly.

Which pills?

Contergan, she said.

This was a trade name of thalidomide, a drug developed in Germany.

It was the first clue.

"I wondered if this was what I had been looking for," Lenz recalls.

"I didn't know at that time what Contergan was. But it turned out to be widely distributed in Germany."

Women in Britain were taking it, too, and in probably a dozen countries besides.

The toll of babies deformed is not known for certain. So far there are only estimates: In Germany 3,600 last year alone, in Britain around 1,000. The tragedy of what are now called "thalidomide babies" centers in these two countries.

"In the late summer of 1961 my colleagues and I in Hamburg had noticed a frequency of malformed babies," Lenz said. "It was completely puzzling to me.

"But I noticed that the malformations were repeated mostly in the same form and one thing was clear—there would be only one main cause.

"So I went out to look up families and personally question them."

Within a few days Lenz turned up 17 babies similarly crippled.

All 17 mothers told him they had taken Contergan during early pregnancy.

Now well on the trail, Lenz contacted other doctors he knew and medical officials in all the German states. He told them what he feared.

By Nov. 18 he was able to tell the North Rhine-Westphalia Society for Pediatrics: There are indications that Contergan is dangerous.

Almost simultaneously a doctor in Australia made the same finding.

Dr. W. G. McBride saw a connection between thalidomide and the births of several deformed children.

He reported his suspicions Nov. 20 to the company marketing thalidomide in Britain and Australia.

In Germany, Lenz's report to the pediatrics society was a bombshell. The Chemie Gruenenthal Company had discovered thalidomide in 1954 and had tested it until 1957.

The drug had been given to rats and mice to see if it was toxic, to cats for possible effects on blood pressure, to rabbits in case it caused fever and to guinea pigs to exclude allergic effects.

Thalidomide came through these tests. It was a sedative and hypnotic which seemed an attractive alternative to more dangerous barbiturates. Children had swallowed big doses and suffered no ill effects.

So Gruenenthal felt thalidomide was safe.

In April 1958 thalidomide was marketed in Britain after British clinicians put it through controlled trials which ruled it safe.

Why didn't the scientists test for possible ill effects on the unborn?

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Many New Books Are In Library

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

New books in the field of art, music, literature, history and genealogy have been added to the collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library during the past week. Miss Kate Coplan, who is in charge of the publicity and exhibits at the Enoch Pratt Library in Baltimore, Md., has just issued a new book, which will be valuable to anyone in the advertising field, but especially to librarians and teachers.

It is called "Poster Ideas and Bulletin Board Techniques". It is full of fascinating information and will be widely used. The staff members at the library have already used it to develop some very clever ideas on the library bulletin boards. A lovely discussion of the work of an artist is called "Portrait of Manet." It gives his theories of art and should be useful.

Two excellent books in the field of music are worthy of note. One is called "Songs of the Gilded Age" and was compiled by Margret Bradford Boni. This book contains music which was popular at the turn of the century and the songs are arranged for voice, piano and guitar. This was a memorial book and a very lovely one. The other book in the music field is the latest one by Burl Ives, called "Song in America. It contains arrangements of 400 songs which go to make up our musical heritage.

A delightful and witty book of essays is "Enter Conversing" by Clifton Fadiman. This book contains a group of essays commenting on the current American scene. It is truly delightful.

A book which should be most useful to the student of history is "The Yorkist Age" by Paul Murray Kendall. This book discusses in detail the daily life of the people who lived in England during the stirring years of the Wars of the Roses. A very fine book is "Milestones to American Liberty" edited by Milton Meltzer. This book is a large beautiful one and is a welcome addition to the history shelf. The L. S. U. press is publishing a very fine history of the South which has been in progress for several years.

The latest volume in this series is "The Youth in the New Nation, 1789-1819" written by Thomas Perkins Abernethy. This is a very fine study of the part played by our section of the country during the early constitutional period.

The genealogy collection is probably one of the most popular collections in the library. Two books were added to it this week. One was published by the Prestwood Chapter, D. A. R. of Virginia. It is a collection of the marriage records of Mecklenburg County, Virginia from 1811 to 1853. It will be useful to people whose ancestors lived in Mecklenburg County, Virginia. Another addition to this collection is "The Steins of Muscatine" written by Simon G. Stein and sent to the library as a gift by the author.

Truly a library is a storehouse of reading material of various kinds and no matter what your interests, we will do our best to help you find the material you need.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The most impressive one thing about a new recording of Bach's "The Musical Offering" is the high state of ecstasy which obviously seized the performers. It is more impressive even than the music for this is one of those late Bach compositions more notable for its appeal to the mathematical mind than for the emotionally overflowing heart.

The performers were Yehudi Menuhin and a group of English players readily able to maintain themselves musically with that celebrated virtuoso. The occasion was a Bach Festival in Bath, England, which provided a series of new Bach recordings over the past two years. "The Musical Offering" is the latest one released (Angel-35731).

It is one of those complex but precisely exact exercises in musical balances of which Bach was such a profound master. The question has long been whether it was suitable for performance for a general audience or was capable of enthralling only musicians.

Menuhin's ecstasy and that of his colleagues tip the scale for general listening.

NEW YORK (UPI) — It has been a long time since Elvis Presley suddenly burst upon the scene with his guitar, hip-shaking and "Hound Dog" types of song.

And most of the bobby soxers who idolized Presley now are young married women. But Presley still is popular because he has proven his durability, both as a singer and actor.

So "Pot Luck With Elvis" (RCA Victor LSP-2523) should appeal to the new crop of Presley fans as well as the older. This LP is fast moving with such songs as "Gonna Get Back Home Somehow" and "Steppin' Out of Line."

Johnny Cash also seems to be a singer who will stick around for a while. Cash now is recognized as a leading troubador in the field of western-style ballads.

"The Sound of Johnny Cash" (Columbia CL 1802) gives this young artist a good showcase, from "Lost on the Desert" to "Sing It Pretty, Sue."

The success of the new "Dr. Kildare" shows on television has resulted in an unusual record. "The Jazz Soul of Doctor Kildare and Other Television Themes" is the work of Harry Betts, who wrote the orchestrations and conducted the orchestra. Excellent variations are made on themes Kildare" and "Hong Kong."

Hamburg Is Giant And Gay Port City

By RALPH VILLERS
United Press International

HAMBURG, Germany (UPI) — Looking for a stuffed aligator? Hamburg probably is the best place to start your search.

Lying in Northern Europe, Hamburg just wouldn't strike the stuffed - alligator hunter as a logical starting place.

And because it has the reputation of being a giant port and industrial complex, Hamburg sometimes is overlooked by vacationers in Europe.

First off, Hamburg probably is Germany's gayest city.

And its sights range from the beauties of the Outer Alster Lake, within hailing distance of the city center, to the after - dark dazzle of the St. Pauli District in the port quarter.

St. Pauli is home to 400 night clubs, cabarets and bars as well as some unusually stocked hock shops. At least one of the latter is well supplied with stuffed alligators of all sizes, left behind by money -short seamen.

Plying the waters of the Alster is one of the best ways to get a perspective view of this city. Regular tour boats sail the river-lake, but you also can hop aboard one of the commuter launches that carry people from distant residential sections to the heart of the city.

The copper - roofed buildings and spires of the city — St. Michael's Church, the Town Hall, St. Peter's Church — rise up as the boat heads north away from the commercial center.

Soon the boat is cruising by tree and flower - lined banks with a seemingly endless succession of luxurious homes and apartment buildings in the background.

The commuter boats aren't the only unusual way the people of Hamburg have of getting around. The 1,476 - foot - long Elbe River Tunnel, 69 feet below water level, leads from the St. Pauli District to the free port area and is reached by pedestrians and vehicles on large elevators which drop to the crossing level.

The 38 - square - mile harbor area is an impressive sight. Every month this biggest of German harbors handles about 1,700 oceangoing ships that come down the Elbe to dock.

An hour - and - a - half boat tour passes scores of towering loading cranes, mammoth floating drydocks, shipyards and vessels flying flags from around the world.

Although an old city, Hamburg suffered severe damage in several wars, especially during the World War II bombings.

But in the shadow of the copper - clad tower of St. Michael's Church one of the quaintest of medieval streets survives. Inside a narrow entryway, a cobbled 8-foot - wide street is lined by three - story timbered and brick homes built by merchant guilds in the 17th Century.

St. Michael's, dating from the mid - 18th Century, is one of the city's important landmarks. Another church, St. Nicholas, with its towering 482 - foot intricate neo - gothic sandstone steeple, is both a major sight and a memorial. The ruins of the bombed out have been undisturbed as a reminder of the destruction of war.

Hamburg is easily reached (several ship lines serve it from the United States, and Scandinavian Airlines system recently inaugurated direct nonstop jet service here from New York). It is a perfect place to begin a visit to Germany. Prices haven't yet hit the level of some European countries. For example, a single room with bath start from about $6 up.

THE SOUND OF BOW BELLS, by Jerome Weidman. (Random House $5.95): Although the greater part of the story takes part within the confines of greater New York, this novel might in some ways be called a travel book. It describes the parallel journeys of Sam Silver, Weidman's writer-hero, from East Tenth Street to an uptown luxury apartment and from first short story to artistic maturity. The actual time that elapses in the telling of the story is little more than 24 hours, but by the artful use of flashbacks Weidman manages to cover his 36-year-old hero's life in his account of that limited span. The central issue of the book is a question of integrity — how far can a writer compromise his talent by grinding out slick fiction for the women's magazines without being deserted by the Muse? Four shrewd and forceful women stand at the cardinal points in Silver's world: his mother, an immigrant from Romania who never learned to read English but didn't really need to; Jennie Broom, at first schoolmate and later wife, who used the hero for his own good; Sophie Sargent, his agent, and Rebecca Meissen, the mistress he might marry. "The South of Bow Bells" is a brilliantly constructed and suspenseful account of an artistic career.

CERTAIN ASPECTS OF MORAL COURAGE, by Compton Mackenzie (Doubleday $4.50): About men and women who expose themselves to odium, disapproval, or contempt rather than depart from what they deem to be the right course. Sir Compton, now in his 80th year and author of about 90 literary works, turns his attention in this book to the kind of courage that motivated people like Socrates, the Suffragists, Oscar Wilde and Edward VIII, in their time of trial. The essays are wise, witty and eminently interesting.

RELIGION AND THE LAW, by Philip B. Kurland (Aldine Publishing Co., Chicago $3.95): A timely review of Supreme Court rulings on church-state relations. Professor Kurland, who teaches constitutional law at the University of Chicago, examines every decision the Court has handed down on the First Amendment prior to the prayer-in-schools ruling that stirred national controversy in June. He points out inconsistencies in the rulings and concludes that anyone who thinks there is a simple constitutional answer to such questions as federal aid to parochial schools "is either deluding or deluded."

YOU'RE ENTITLE', by Harry Goldden (World $4): Golden has widen his field of observation by becoming a traveler to foreign lands, but his wise and humane attitude toward what he sees is still the same. These little essays range from memories of New York's Lower East Side in the early 1900's to the joys of eating in Denmark, the Eichmann trial and the Jewish girl who became a nun. The title of the book comes from Golden's immigrant father who found himself "entitled" to many new and wonderful things in his adopted America but couldn't quite remember to pronounce that final "d" when he was expounding on them.

HEADS I WIN, TAILS YOU LOSE, by Charlotte Olmsted (Macmillan $4.50): Almost everybody plays games at some time during his life — the gambling king, that is. Miss Olmsted, an anthropologist and psychologist, takes a sharp look at the motives behind this universal occupation and sometimes preoccupation with cards, bingo, the horses, dice, the stock market, etc. Her findings make interesting reading.

America's trains roll over a corduroy road of more than 965 million wooden crossties — about 3,000 to each mile of track.

Cotton Futures Tumble Lower

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures in the domestic market moved into mostly lower ground last week, closing off 45 cents to 25, at the New York Cotton Exchange.

A moderate easing of values was attributed to selling touched off by the fact the official forecast for the 1962 crop was larger than expected.

Contributing factors included reports of continuing favorable weather news from the cotton belt, weaker spot prices and expectations of an increase in hedging in the near future.

The forecast as of Aug. 1 of 15,102,000 bales was about 500,000 higher than the average of published trade predictions. If realized, the official forecast would mean a crop about 800,000 bales larger than 1961 and about 1.1 million larger than both anticipated requirements and the 10-year average.

Exports for the week ended Tuesday were about 95,000 bales against 193,000 the week before and 144,000 the same week a year ago.

Stock Volume Drop For Vacation Time

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market inched lower last week, stricken by what many called a spell of summer sickness.

Trading activity tumbled to the second lowest of the year for a non-holiday week. Many Wall Street "regulars" were on vacation. Investor interest lagged in general.

The popular market averages showed relatively small losses. Each day it was the same story: A great majority of stocks moved by fractions of a point.

Business news, good and bad, had little impact on prices in most cases.

The market appeared resigned that there would be no tax cut this year far before President Kennedy set Monday to disclose his decision. Late in the week some of the July economic indicators, such as cators, such as retail and department store sales and personal income pointed upward, reinforcing the likelihood of no tax cut until next year.

For the first 2½ days of the week prices declined slowly but surely.

Late Wednesday came the only active period of the week, with prices recovering rapidly in the final hour. The day ended with the list higher, but by Thursday's opening the surge had worn off. Thursday was standoff as was Friday's session.

Thursday produced a good example of investor indifference. The number of issues traded dropped to 1,814, the lowest since the semi-holiday session of Nov. 11, 1960, when 1,163 were traded.

Then Friday, volume hit a 2½ month low, dropping below 2.5 million shares. The average daily volume for the first seven months of the year was over 3.8 million. The daily average for the week was a little over 2.85 million.

The week's volume totaled 14,329,402 compared with 16,890,595 the previous week and 18,163,380 in the comparable week a year ago. The only lower non-holiday week this year was July 23-27, when volume was 13,920,000.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off .19 at 217.9 while the Dow Jones industrial average fell 4.06 to 592.32.

Of 1,436 issues traded during the week 744 declined and 508 advanced while 184 were unchanged. There were 57 lows for 1962 and 10 new highs.

The bond market was in midsummer doldrums, but both corporate and U.S. Treasury bonds managed to post narrow gains. Corporate volume for the week was just over $19 million.

Tax Slice Verdict To Come Monday

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — President Kennedy took a hard look during the week at the economic picture that will shape his decision on whether to ask Congress for an immediate income tax cut as a stimulant to business.

He is expected to make his verdict known in a televised address to the nation Monday night.

Some sources saw indications that the chances of immediate action have diminished and that the President would hold to his original intention of seeking lower taxes, effective Jan. 1.

Kennedy got the newest business statistics Friday at a meeting with the President's Council of Economic Advisers, several members of the Cabinet, the budget director and others.

Here are some of the reports he was given:

Retail sales in July increased 2 per cent from $19.1 billion in June to $19,451,000,000.

Personal income climbed to a record annual rate of $442 billion in July, a gain of $1.3 billion over the June rate. The increase was due largely to higher wage and salary payments.

The factory work week dropped from 40.5 hours in June to 40.4 in July. This was the third successive monthly decline but the work week was the longest for July since 1950.

There was a flood of argument during the week among economic and political leaders over the income tax issue. Much of the discussion was before congressional committees delving into the economic situation.

Walter W. Heller, Kennedy's chief economic adviser, said present economic trends are "perplexing and inconclusive cross-currents" but do not "sum up to a crisis." He added there is a possibility the lag "represents advance warning of an economic decline."

Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges, who earlier had urged an immediate tax reduction, did not make such a recommendation when he appeared before the House Ways and Means Committee. Instead, he was reported to have favored tax reform, including a scaling down of income taxes.

Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon was said to have told the committee that wide ranging tax reform next year would do more for the economy than passage now of a tax-cut bill

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York reported that on the basis of early statistics the economic expansion improved somewhat in July after a marked slowdown in June. It added, however that the economy continues to operate well below capacity.

The Federal Reserve Board which surveys 17,000 familie every three months on their buying plans, said indications wer that a plateau in purchasing ha been reached.

Civilian merchandise exports i June rose to more than $1. bi lion, up five per cent from Ma and the highest for any mont since March 1957.

Automobile sales continued be one of the brightest facets the economy. In July, dealers so 511,679 new passenger cars, co pared with 420,032 in July 19 and 429,005 in July 1960. It w the biggest total for the mon since 1955.

Production during the we skidded to an estimated 65,(from 112,381 the previous week more plants shut down for changeover to 1963 models. Outp of 1962s will end Tuesday with industry total of 6,675,000, secc only to the 7,136,496 built in 1955 model year.

Five completions were recorded last week in the Monroe Oil and Gas District according to District Manager Duncan S. Cook. There were two completions each in Catahoula and Tensas Parishes and one in Grant Parish.

The completions in Tensas' Buckhorn Field were drilled by Monsanto Chemical Company and Phillips Petroleum Company to depths of 8882 and 8900 feet respectively. J. C. Maxwell's well in Grant Parish, section 9-9-1E, was finalled at 2802 feet.

BUT REDS SHOW HUGE GAINS

Free World Oil Nearing 20 Million Barrels Daily

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP) — Free world crude oil production should push past 20 million barrels a day within a matter of months.

Only a normal summer decline after record output from December through March has prevented the first penetration of the 20 million barrel mark.

March production was just 64,200 barrels short. The summer decline increased the shortage to 171,600 barrels by May but six major nations—the United States, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Iran, Iraq, and Venezuela—were producing below their record levels.

Free world output averaged 19,828,400 barrels in May compared to 10,165,800 the same month in 1952.

This is a 95 per cent increase in 10 years.

The increase is impressive but, percentagewise, is dwarfed by the gains made by Russia and her satellites.

The Soviet group's production in 10 years has increased 255 per cent—from 1,091,200 barrels daily in 1952 to 3,874,000 in May.

The Communist bloc's 1952 production amounted to only 10 per cent of free world output. This comparison had been boosted to 19 per cent by last May.

Communist output in 1952 was equivalent to only 21 per cent of United States production. Crude output by the Soviets in May was equivalent to 53 per cent.

Such a comparison may seem discouraging to the free world but one factor favorable to the United States is not included in the figures.

The Russian bloc, from all indications, is producing at capacity or near capacity levels. Estimated capacity in the United States today is in excess of 3 million barrells a day.

All the production gains made by U.S. producers since 1952, however, have not gone into idle capacity. Although plagued with problems of oversupply, the domestic industry averaged 7,192,000 barrels a day in May.

This was 40 per cent above the 1952 domestic level of 5,106,000 but well below the all-time high of 7,818,000 barrels daily set in early 1957.

Other nations have recorded numerous production records the past year but the United States has kept its output from 350,000 to 1,200,000 barrels a day below its all-time high the past five years.

The United States produced 50 per cent of the free world's 1952 crude oil. Domestic output May amounted to only 36 per c

Production gains made in e other free world areas are fa excess of the 40 per cent recorded in the U.S.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Many New Books Are In Library

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

New books in the field of art, music, literature, history and genealogy have been added to the collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library during the past week. Miss Kate Coplan, who is in charge of the publicity and exhibits at the Enoch Pratt Library in Baltimore, Md., has just issued a new book, which will be valuable to anyone in the advertising field, but especially to librarians and teachers.

It is called "Poster Ideas and Bulletin Board Techniques". It is full of fascinating information and will be widely used. The staff members at the library have already used it to develop some very clever ideas on the library bulletin boards. A lovely discussion of the work of an artist is called "Portrait of Manet." It gives his theories of art and should be useful.

Two excellent books in the field of music are worthy of note. One is called "Songs of the Gilded Age" and was compiled by Margret Bradford Boni. This book contains music which was popular at the turn of the century and the songs are arranged for voice, piano and guitar. This was a memorial book and a very lovely one. The other book in the music field is the latest one by Burl Ives, called "Song in America. It contains arrangements of 400 songs which go to make up our musical heritage.

A delightful and witty book of essays is "Enter Conversing" by Clifton Fadiman. This book contains a group of essays commenting on the current American scene. It is truly delightful.

A book which should be most useful to the student of history is "The Yorkist Age" by Paul Murray Kendall. This book discusses in detail the daily life of the people who lived in England during the stirring years of the Wars of the Roses. A very fine book is "Milestones to American Liberty" edited by Milton Meltzer. This book is a large beautiful one and is a welcome addition to the history shelf. The L. S. U. press is publishing a very fine history of the South which has been in progress for several years.

The latest volume in this series is "The Youth in the New Nation, 1789-1819" written by Thomas Perkins Abernethy. This is a very fine study of the part played by our section of the country during the early constitutional period.

The genealogy collection is probably one of the most popular collections in the library. Two books were added to it this week. One was published by the Prestwood Chapter, D. A. R. of Virginia. It is a collection of the marriage records of Mecklenburg County, Virginia from 1811 to 1853. It will be useful to people whose ancestors lived in Mecklenburg County, Virginia. Another addition to this collection is "The Steins of Muscatine" written by Simon G. Stein and sent to the library as a gift by the author.

Truly a library is a storehouse of reading material of various kinds and no matter what your interests, we will do our best to help you find the material you need.

CONCERT

NEW YORK (UPI) — The most impressive one thing about a new recording of Bach's "The Musical Offering" is the high state of ecstasy which obviously seized the performers. It is more impressive even than the music for this is one of those late Bach compositions more notable for its appeal to the mathematical mind than for the emotionally overflowing heart.

The performers were Yehudi Menuhin and a group of English players readily able to maintain themselves musically with that celebrated virtuoso. The occasion was a Bach Festival in Bath, England, which provided a series of new Bach recordings over the past two years. "The Musical Offering" is the latest one released (Angel-35731).

It is one of those complex but precisely exact exercises in musical balances of which Bach was such a profound master. The question has long been whether it was suitable for performance for a general audience or was capable of enthralling only musicians.

Menuhin's ecstasy and that of his colleagues tip the scale for general listening.

POPULAR

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

NEW YORK (UPI) — It has been a long time since Elvis Presley suddenly burst upon the scene with his guitar, hip-shaking and "Hound Dog" types of song.

And most of the bobby soxers who idolized Presley now are young married women. But Presley still is popular because he has proven his durability, both as a singer and actor.

So "Pot Luck With Elvis" (RCA Victor LSP-2523) should appeal to the new crop of Presley fans as well as the older. This LP is fast moving with such songs as "Gonna Get Back Home Somehow" and "Steppin' Out of Line."

Johnny Cash also seems to be a singer who will stick around for a while. Cash now is recognized as a leading troubador in the field of western-style ballads.

"The Sound of Johnny Cash" (Columbia CL 1802) gives this young artist a good showcase, from "Lost on the Desert" to "Sing It Pretty, Sue."

The success of the new "Dr. Kildare" shows on television has resulted in an unusual record. "The Jazz Soul of Doctor Kildare and Other Television Themes" is the work of Harry Betts, who wrote the orchestrations and conducted the orchestra. Excellent variations are made on themes Kildare" and "Hong Kong."

Hamburg Is Giant And Gay Port City

By RALPH VILLERS
United Press International

HAMBURG, Germany (UPI) — Looking for a stuffed aligator? Hamburg probably is the best place to start your search.

Lying in Northern Europe, Hamburg just wouldn't strike the stuffed - alligator hunter as a logical starting place.

And because it has the reputation of being a giant port and industrial complex, Hamburg sometimes is overlooked by vacationers in Europe.

First off, Hamburg probably is Germany's gayest city.

And its sights range from the beauties of the Outer Alster Lake, within hailing distance of the city center, to the after - dark dazzle of the St. Pauli District in the port quarter.

St. Pauli is home to 400 night clubs, cabarets and bars as well as some unusually stocked hock shops. At least one of the latter is well supplied with stuffed alligators of all sizes, left behind by money -short seamen.

Plying the waters of the Alster is one of the best ways to get a perspective view of this city. Regular tour boats sail the river-lake, but you also can hop aboard one of the commuter launches that carry people from distant residential sections to the heart of the city.

The copper - roofed buildings and spires of the city — St. Michael's Church, the Town Hall, St. Peter's Church — rise up as the boat heads north away from the commercial center.

Soon the boat is cruising by tree and flower - lined banks with a seemingly endless succession of luxurious homes and apartment buildings in the background.

The commuter boats aren't the only unusual way the people of Hamburg have of getting around. The 1,476 - foot - long Elbe River Tunnel, 69 feet below water level, leads from the St. Pauli District to the free port area and is reached by pedestrians and vehicles on large elevators which drop to the crossing level.

The 38 - square - mile harbor area is an impressive sight. Every month this biggest of German harbors handles about 1,700 oceangoing ships that come down the Elbe to dock.

An hour - and - a - half boat tour passes scores of towering loading cranes, mammoth floating drydocks, shipyards and vessels flying flags from around the world.

Although an old city, Hamburg suffered severe damage in several wars, especially during the World War II bombings.

But in the shadow of the copper - clad tower of St. Michael's Church one of the quaintest of medieval streets survives. Inside a narrow entryway, a cobbled 8-foot - wide street is lined by three - story timbered and brick homes built by merchant guilds in the 17th Century.

St. Michael's, dating from the mid - 18th Century, is one of the city's important landmarks. Another church, St. Nicholas, with its towering 482 - foot intricate neo - gothic sandstone steeple, is both a major sight and a memorial. The ruins of the bombed out have been undisturbed as a reminder of the destruction of war.

Hamburg is easily reached (several ship lines serve it from the United States, and Scandinavian Airlines system recently inaugurated direct nonstop jet service here from New York). It is a perfect place to begin a visit to Germany. Prices haven't yet hit the level of some European countries. For example, a single room with bath start from about $5 up.

THE SOUND OF BOW BELLS, by Jerome Weidman. (Random House $5.95): Although the greater part of the story takes part within the confines of greater New York, this novel might in some ways be called a travel book. It describes the parallel journeys of Sam Silver, Weidman's writer-hero, from East Tenth Street to an uptown luxury apartment and from first short story to artistic maturity. The actual time that elapses in the telling of the story is little more than 24 hours, but by the artful use of flashbacks Weidman manages to cover his 36-year-old hero's life in his account of that limited span. The central issue of the book is a question of integrity — how far can a writer compromise his talent by grinding out slick fiction for the women's magazines without being deserted by the Muse? Four shrewd and forceful women stand at the cardinal points in Silver's world: his mother, an immigrant from Romania who never learned to read English but didn't really need to; Jennie Broom, at first schoolmate and later wife, who used the hero for his own good; Sophie Sargent, his agent, and Rebecca Meissen, the mistress he might marry. "The South of Bow Bells" is a brilliantly constructed and suspenseful account of an artistic career.

CERTAIN ASPECTS OF MORAL COURAGE, by Compton Mackenzie (Doubleday $4.50): About men and women who expose themselves to odium, disapproval, or contempt rather than depart from what they deem to be the right course. Sir Compton, now in his 80th year and author of about 90 literary works, turns his attention in this book to the kind of courage that motivated people like Socrates, the Suffragists, Oscar Wilde and Edward VIII, in their time of trial. The essays are wise, witty and eminently interesting.

RELIGION AND THE LAW, by Philip B. Kurland (Aldine Publishing Co., Chicago $3.95); A timely review of Supreme Court rulings on church-state relations. Professor Kurland, who teaches constitutional law at the University of Chicago, examines every decision the Court has handed down on the First Amendment prior to the prayer-in-schools ruling that stirred national controversy in June. He points out inconsistencies in the rulings and concludes that anyone who thinks there is a simple constitutional answer to such questions as federal aid to parochial schools "is either deluding or deluded."

YOU'RE ENTITLE', by Harry Goldden (World $4): Golden has widen his field of observation by becoming a traveler to foreign lands, but his wise and humane attitude toward what he sees is still the same. These little essays range from memories of New York's Lower East Side in the early 1900's to the joys of eating in Denmark, the Eichmann trial and the Jewish girl who became a nun. The title of the book comes from Golden's immigrant father who found himself "entitled" to many new and wonderful things in his adopted America but couldn't quite remember to pronounce that final "d" when he was expounding on them.

HEADS I WIN, TAILS YOU LOSE, by Charlotte Olmsted (Macmillan $4.50): Almost everybody plays games at some time during his life — the gambling king, that is. Miss Olmsted, an anthropologist and psychologist, takes a sharp look at the motives behind this universal occupation and sometimes preoccupation with cards, bingo, the horses, dice, the stock market, etc. Her findings make interesting reading.

America's trains roll over a corduroy road of more than 965 million wooden crossties — about 3,000 to each mile of track.

Cotton Futures Tumble Lower

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures in the domestic market moved into mostly lower ground last week, closing off 45 cents to 25, at the New York Cotton Exchange.

A moderate easing of values was attributed to selling touched off by the fact the official forecast for the 1962 crop was larger than expected.

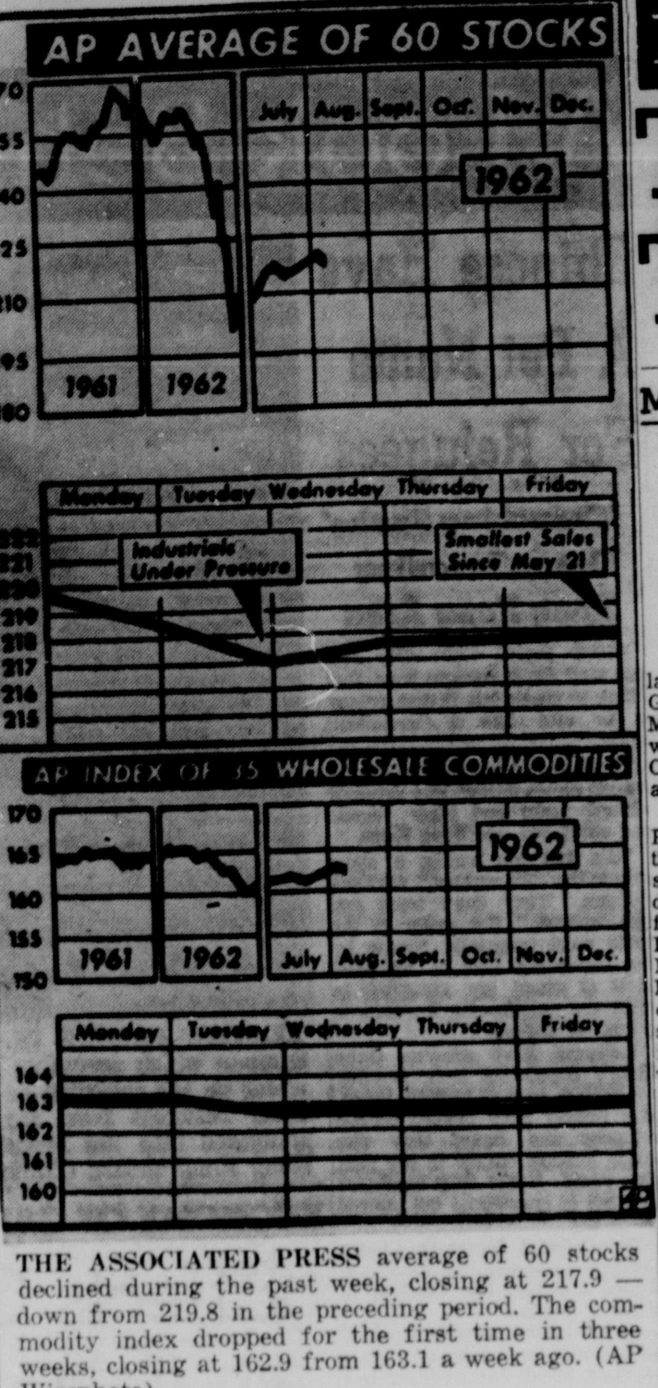
Contributing factors included reports of continuing favorable weather news from the cotton belt, weaker spot prices and expectations of an increase in hedging in the near future.

The forecast as of Aug. 1 of 15,102,000 bales was about 500,000 higher than the average of published trade predictions. If realized, the official forecast would mean a crop about 800,000 bales larger than 1961 and about 1.1 million larger than both anticipated requirements and the 10-year average.

Exports for the week ended Tuesday were about 95,000 bales against 193,000 the week before and 144,000 the same week a year ago.

BUS PLUNGES RAVINE

GRASSE, France (AP) — Authorities said that a bus carrying 50 Belgian tourists plunged into a ravine near this Riviera City Saturday. Unofficial reports said one person was killed and 12 seriously injured.



THE ASSOCIATED PRESS average of 60 stocks declined during the past week, closing at 217.9 — down from 219.8 in the preceding period. The commodity index dropped for the first time in three weeks, closing at 162.9 from 163.1 a week ago. (AP Wirephoto)

PRICES INCH LOWER

Stock Volume Drop For Vacation Time

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market inched lower last week, stricken by what many called a spell of summer sickness.

Trading activity tumbled to the second lowest of the year for a non-holiday week. Many Wall Street "regulars" were on vacation. Investor interest lagged in general.

The popular market averages showed relatively small losses. Each day it was the same story: A great majority of stocks moved by fractions of a point.

Business news, good and bad, had little impact on prices in most cases.

The market appeared resigned that there would be no tax cut this year far before President Kennedy set Monday to disclose his decision. Late in the week some of the July economic indicators, such as cators, such as retail and department store sales and personal income pointed upward, reinforcing the likelihood of no tax cut until next year.

For the first 2½ days of the week prices declined slowly but surely.

Late Wednesday came the only active period of the week, with prices recovering rapidly in the final hour. The day ended with the list higher, but by Thursday's opening the surge had worn off. Thursday was standoff as was Friday's session.

Thursday produced a good example of investor indifference. The number of issues traded dropped to 1,814, the lowest since the semi-holiday session of Nov. 11, 1960, when 1,163 were traded.

Then Friday, volume hit a 2½ month low, dropping below 2.5 million shares. The average daily volume for the first seven months of the year was over 3.8 million. The daily average for the week was a little over 2.85 million.

The week's volume totaled 14,329,402 compared with 16,890,595 the previous week and 18,163,380 in the comparable week a year ago. The only lower nonholiday week this year was July 23-27, when volume was 13,920,000.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off .19 at 217.9 while the Dow Jones industrial average fell 4.06 to 592.32.

Of 1,436 issues traded during the week 744 declined and 508 advanced while 184 were unchanged. There were 57 lows for 1962 and 10 new highs.

The bond market was in midsummer doldrums, but both corporate and U.S. Treasury bonds managed to post narrow gains. Corporate volume for the week was just over $19 million.

Tax Slice Verdict To Come Monday

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — President Kennedy took a hard look during the week at the economic picture that will shape his decision on whether to ask Congress for an immediate income tax cut as a stimulant to business.

He is expected to make his verdict known in a televised address to the nation Monday night.

Some sources saw indications that the chances of immediate action have diminished and that the President would hold to his original intention of seeking lower taxes, effective Jan. 1.

Kennedy got the newest business statistics Friday at a meeting with the President's Council of Economic Advisers, several members of the Cabinet, the budget director and others.

Here are some of the reports he was given:

Retail sales in July increased 2 per cent from $19.1 billion in June to $19,451,000,000.

Personal income climbed to a record annual rate of $442 billion in July, a gain of $1.3 billion over the June rate. The increase was due largely to higher wage and salary payments.

The factory work week dropped from 40.5 hours in June to 40.4 in July. This was the third successive monthly decline but the work week was the longest for July since 1950.

There was a flood of argument during the week among economic and political leaders over the income tax issue. Much of the discussion was before congressional committees delving into the economic situation.

Walter W. Heller, Kennedy's chief economic adviser, said present economic trends are "perplexing and inconclusive cross-currents" but do not "sum up to a crisis." He added there is a possibility the lag "represents advance warning of an economic decline."

Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges, who earlier had urged an immediate tax reduction, did not make such a recommendation when he appeared before the House Ways and Means Committee. Instead, he was reported to have favored tax reform, including a scaling down of income taxes.

Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon was said to have told the committee that wide ranging tax reform next year would do more for the economy than passage now of a tax-cut bill.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York reported that on the basis of early statistics the economic expansion improved somewhat in July after a marked slowdown in June. It added, however, that the economy continues to operate well below capacity.

The Federal Reserve Board, which surveys 17,000 families every three months on their buying plans, said indications were that a plateau in purchasing has been reached.

Civilian merchandise exports in June rose to more than $1. billion, up five per cent from May and the highest for any month since March 1957.

Automobile sales continued to be one of the brightest facets of the economy. In July, dealers sold 511,679 new passenger cars, compared with 420,032 in July 1961 and 429,005 in July 1960. It was the biggest total for the month since 1955.

Production during the week skidded to an estimated 65,000 from 112,381 the previous week as more plants shut down for the changeover to 1963 models. Output of 1962s will end Tuesday with an industry total of 6,675,000, second only to the 7,136,496 built in the 1955 model year.

Five completions were recorded last week in the Monroe Oil and Gas District according to District Manager Duncan S. Cook. There were two completions each in Catahoula and Tensas Parishes and one in Grant Parish.

Depths on the two Catahoula Parish completions, both wells of the Ramrod Product Company in section 17-8-7E, on the 14 parish district map, were 4515 and 4300 feet. The completions in Tensas' Buckhorn Field were drilled by Monsanto Chemical Company and Phillips Petroleum Company to depths of 8882 and 8900 feet respectively. J. C. Maxwell's well in Grant Parish, section 9-9-1E, was finalled at 2802 feet.

Thirty-one new locations were staked in the Monroe district last week. Ouachita Parish was high with the staking of eleven new locations, all in the Monroe Field.

Cook reported 29 wells actively drilling and testing. Wells were active in Catahoula, Concordia, Franklin, LaSalle, Ouachita, Rapides, Tensas, Union, and Winn Parishes. Tensas led the way with nine wells.

There were three recompletions. Two in Concordia Parish and one in Tensas Parish.

BUT REDS SHOW HUGE GAINS

Free World Oil Nearing 20 Million Barrels Daily

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP) — Free world crude oil production should push past 20 million barrels a day within a matter of months.

Only a normal summer decline after record output from December through March has prevented the first penetration of the 20 million barrel mark.

March production was just 64,200 barrels short. The summer decline increased the shortage to 171,600 barrels by May but six major nations—the United States, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Iran, Iraq, and Venezuela—were producing below their record levels.

Free world output averaged 19,828,400 barrels in May compared to 10,165,800 the same month in 1952.

This is a 95 per cent increase in 10 years.

The increase is impressive but, percentagewise, is dwarfed by the gains made by Russia and her satellites.

The Soviet group's production in 10 years has increased 255 per cent—from 1,091,200 barrels daily in 1952 to 3,874,000 in May.

The Communist bloc's 1952 production amounted to only 10 per cent of free world output. This comparison had been boosted to 19 per cent by last May.

Communist output in 1952 was equivalent to only 21 per cent of United States production. Crude output by the Soviets in May was equivalent to 53 per cent.

Such a comparison may seem discouraging to the free world but one factor favorable to the United States is not included in the figures.

The Russian bloc, from all indications, is producing at capacity or near capacity levels. Estimated capacity in the United States today is in excess of 3 million barrells a day.

All the production gains made by U.S. producers since 1952, however, have not gone into idle capacity. Although plagued with problems of oversupply, the domestic industry averaged 7,192,000 barrels a day in May.

This was 40 per cent above the 1952 domestic level of 5,106,000 but well below the all-time high of 7,818,000 barrels daily set in early 1957.

Other nations have recorded numerous production records the past year but the United States has kept its output from 350,000 to 1,200,000 barrels a day below its all-time high the past five years.

The United States produced 50 per cent of the free world's 1952 crude oil. Domestic output last May amounted to only 36 per cent.

Production gains made in eight other free world areas are far in excess of the 40 per cent gain recorded in the U.S.

Comparisons of 1952 and 1956 reports compiled by the Oil & Gas Journal indicate this growth:

Venezuela boosted its output in 10 years from 1,844,000 to 3,211,000 barrels, a gain of 73 per cent.

Four Middle East nations have moved into the million-barrels a day category—Kuwait, 1,849,000, up 64 per cent; Saudia Arabia, 1,449,000, up 73 per cent; Iran, 1,279,000, up 80 per cent, and Iraq, 1,005,100, up 150 per cent.

A daily average of 615,000 barrels in the Far East is 80 per cent above 1952.

Canada's output of 647,000 barrels a day is 250 per cent above 1952, and booming North Africa's 741,000 barrels daily represent an increase of nearly 1,5000 per cent.

SEES LONDON SIGHTS

Cheering British Crowds Mob Ike

LONDON (AP)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower took in the sights of old London Saurday like any American tourist and was mobbed by cheering crowds nearly everywhere he went.

At Westminster Abbey and the Houses of Parliament crowds pressed around his automobile shouting "Good Old Ike" and "Vive Ike" in several languages. Eisenhower, beaming with pleasure, leaned forward and shook hands with some girls through the open car window. Escorting motorcycle police had a job edging his car through the throng.

In the Abbey, which was jammed with summer tourists of all nations, Eisenhower stood with his wife and grandchildren before the grave of Britain's Unknown Solider. He laid a cross of white lillies, then stood to attention in silent salute.

For the next half hour the Eisenhowers toured the great Gothic Abbey, visiting the chapels of Edward the Confessor and Henry VII, pausing at the tombs of Britain's first Queen Elizabeth and the ill-fated Mary, Queen of Scots. They also saw the chair on which the present queen was crowned.

Making an unscheduled swing through the Abbey's Poet's Corner, the former president examined Chaucer's tomb, saw the busts of Dryden and Longfellow.

"I would like to spend a fortnight here," said Ike.

Later in a side aisle Eisenhower whipped out his spectacles and closely studied a wall tablet erected to the memory of Col. Joseph Chester, of Norfolk, Conn., a 19th Century graduate of Columbia University, New York, who edited the Westminster Abbey Register and died in London.

Perhaps tired by the pursuing crowds, Mrs. Eisenhower went home after the Abbey visit, but Ike pressed on tirelessly to Parliament. There he was avid for facts and figures.

"What is a back bencher?" he wanted to know as he stood in the green-seated House of Commons. He was told the term applies to a rank-and-file member without ministerial duties.

The Eisenhowers spent the morning at St. Paul's Cathedral. There they inspected the American Chapel given by the nation in memory of Americans who fell in World War II while based in Britain. Grandchildren David, 14, and Barbara Anne, 13, stayed an extra half hour to climb the 258 steps to the famed whispering gallery under St. Paul's Dome.

East Carroll Board Okays School Prayer

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special)—Students in East Carroll Parisn secondary schools may engage in spontaneous prayer provided the principal and faculty members agree.

That's the decision of the parish school board. The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled against a Board of Regents prayer recited in New York.

The board made its decision following a request submitted at its last meeting.

In other action at the meeting, the board refused a request for one-half day school sessions for Negroes.

Lon Heuer of the architectural firm of Rivers and Heuer was on hand to answer questions by board members concerning a planned building program.

It was noted that an estimated $1,500,000 would be asked for the program which includes additions to Griffin (Negro) High, conversion of Lake Providence High School gymnasium into a community auditorium, boys and girls gymnasium, an elementary school and cafeteria (including sewer disposal plant for 700 students), and new building at Monticello.

Crash At Baton Rouge Is Fatal

BATON ROUGE (AP)—A teenaged boy died and three others were hurt in a two-truck collision on the eastern fringes of Baton Rouge Saturday.

Richard F. McCrory, the dead youth, was one of three boys in a pick-up truck which collided with a trailer truck at an intersection.

The other two youths, Lelon Gill and David Watkins, both 15, were hospitalized.

Lee Roy Gray, 36, of Dade City, Fla., driver of the trailer truck, was treated for minor injuries and released.

Metal Workers Strike At U.S. Atomic Plant

DENVER (AP)—Metal workers struck Saturday at a top secret Atomic Energy Commission plant which President Kennedy had attempted to keep open.

The Denver Metal Trades Council, AFL-CIO, called out 1,580 union employes at 7 a.m. and others among the 2,600 employes began shutting down the plant at Rocky Flats northwest of Denver. It had been engaged in highly classified, round-the-clock defense work for 10 years and this was the first stoppage.

Strike threats had been postponed twice in the past month, once when President Kennedy personally intervened by asking union and management representatives to negotiate further in Washington and a second time when Secretary of Labor Arthur Goldberg appealed for a delay in the strike.

The dispute between the Metals Trades Council, representating 18 affiliated metal trades unions, and the Dow Chemical Co., which operates the plant for the AEC, centered on a seven-day shift which the management contended was necessary for continuous operation.

The union complained especially against a shift schedule calling for employes to work through Saturday and Sundays without overtime pay.

SEES LONDON SIGHTS

Cheering British Crowds Mob Ike

LONDON (AP)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower took in the sights of old London Saurday like any American tourist and was mobbed by cheering crowds nearly everywhere he went.

At Westminster Abbey and the Houses of Parliament crowds pressed around his automobile shouting "Good Old Ike" and "Vive Ike" in several languages. Eisenhower, beaming with pleasure, leaned forward and shook hands with some girls through the open car window. Escorting motorcycle police had a job edging his car through the throng.

In the Abbey, which was jammed with summer tourists of all nations, Eisenhower stood with his wife and grandchildren before the grave of Britain's Unknown Solider. He laid a cross of white lillies, then stood to attention in silent salute.

For the next half hour the Eisenhowers toured the great Gothic Abbey, visiting the chapels of Edward the Confessor and Henry VII, pausing at the tombs of Britain's first Queen Elizabeth and the ill-fated Mary, Queen of Scots. They also saw the chair on which the present queen was crowned.

Making an unscheduled swing through the Abbey's Poet's Corner, the former president examined Chaucer's tomb, saw the busts of Dryden and Longfellow.

"I would like to spend a fortnight here," said Ike.

Later in a side aisle Eisenhower whipped out his spectacles and closely studied a wall tablet erected to the memory of Col. Joseph Chester, of Norfolk, Conn., a 19th Century graduate of Columbia University, New York, who edited the Westminster Abbey Register and died in London.

Perhaps tired by the pursuing crowds, Mrs. Eisenhower went home after the Abbey visit, but Ike pressed on tirelessly to Parliament. There he was avid for facts and figures.

"What is a back bencher?" he wanted to know as he stood in the green-seated House of Commons. He was told the term applies to a rank-and-file member without ministerial duties.

The Eisenhowers spent the morning at St. Paul's Cathedral. There they inspected the American Chapel given by the nation in memory of Americans who fell in World War II while based in Britain. Grandchildren David, 14, and Barbara Anne, 13, stayed an extra half hour to climb the 258 steps to the famed whispering gallery under St. Paul's Dome.

East Carroll Board Okays School Prayer

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special)—Students in East Carroll Parish secondary schools may engage in spontaneous prayer provided the principal and faculty members agree.

That's the decision of the parish school board. The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled against a Board of Regents prayer recited in New York.

The board made its decision following a request submitted at its last meeting.

In other action at the meeting, the board refused a request for one-half day school sessions for Negroes.

Lon Heuer of the architectural firm of Rivers and Heuer was on hand to answer questions by board members concerning a planned building program.

It was noted that an estimated $1,500,000 would be asked for the program which includes additions to Griffin (Negro) High, conversion of Lake Providence High School gymnasium into a community auditorium, boys and girls gymnasium, an elementary school and cafeteria (including sewer disposal plant for 700 students), and new building at Monticello.

Crash At Baton Rouge Is Fatal

BATON ROUGE (AP)—A teenaged boy died and three others were hurt in a two-truck collision on the eastern fringes of Baton Rouge Saturday.

Richard F. McCrory, the dead youth, was one of three boys in a pick-up truck which collided with a trailer truck at an intersection.

The other two youths, Lelon Gill and David Watkins, both 15, were hospitalized.

Lee Roy Gray, 36, of Dade City, Fla., driver of the trailer truck, was treated for minor injuries and released.

Faulkner Novel Purchased For Stage Prospect

NEW YORK (AP) — The late William Faulkner's last novel, "The Reivers" has been purchased as a stage prospect by Producer David Merrick.

The book was read by Merrick during a plane flight shortly after publication. As soon as he landed in New York, the producer went directly to the publisher's office and his bid was accepted.

"The Reivers" is to be shaped into a musical comedy. The composer and adaptor have not yet been named.

FILM ABOUT SONGWRITER

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —Sammy Kahn, three - time Academy Award - winning lyricist, has been signed by Producer David L. Wolper to be the subject of a film, "Story of a Songwriter," which will become a segment in the new dramatic documentary television series, "The Story."

AMUSEMENTS

SCHEDULED HERE

'The Spiral Road,' Dramatic Story

When "The Spiral Road," Universal's dramatic story of Dutch doctors at work in jungle colonies, and starring Rock Hudson, Burl Ives and Gena Rowlands, opens at the Jim Theatre starting Wednesday, audiences here will see why this color picture must certainly go down in the records as the most unusual jungle film ever produced by Hollywood.

Robert Arthur, who produced the ambitious motion picture project which was directed by Robert Mulligan, revealed that not one single cliche of past jungle movies shows up on the screen in this motion picture adaptation of Jan de Hartog's famed best-seller novel.

NO MONKEY

"We don't even allow a single monkey to swing through our jungle trees," Arthur said.

In addition to the absence of monkeys in scenes of "The Spiral Road," the film fails to show a single scene of jungle animals. In fact, the only wild life shown in the motion picture features a horde of rodents burned out of a jungle village during efforts to rid the area of a plague epidemic, and four caged guinea pigs in a jungle medical laboratory.

"When we went to the equatorial jungle country of Surinam (Dutch Guiana) for our location scenes, we discovered their jungle was so thick that no animal larger than an ocelot could survive," Producer Arthur added. "If the real jungle had no big animals, we certainly had no use for them, either."

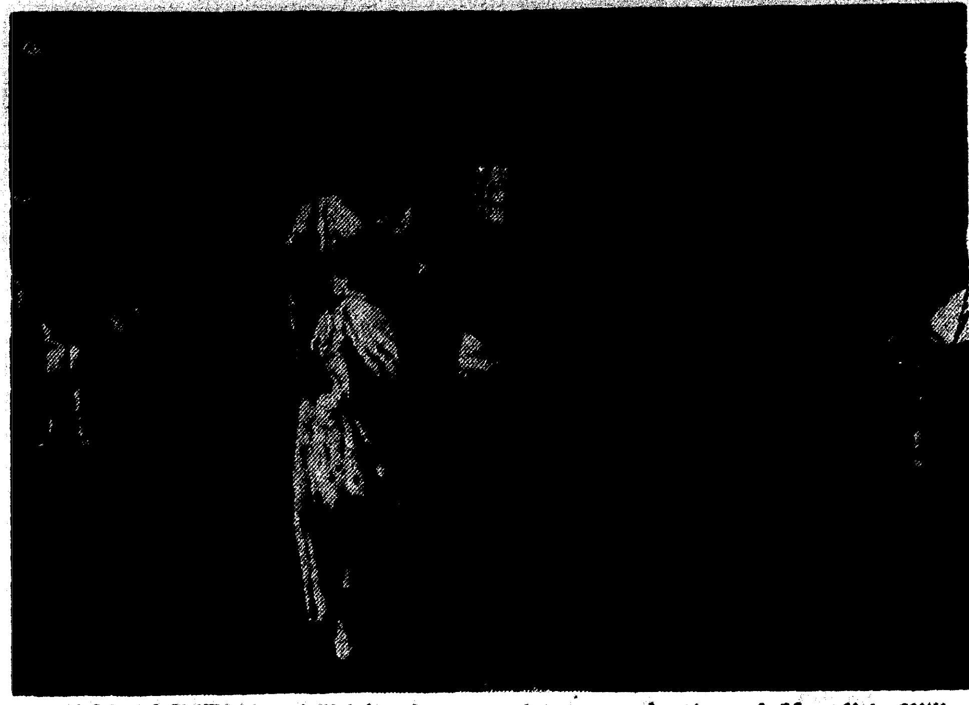
STRANGE DRAMA

In addition to the absence of jungle wild life, "The Spiral Road" presents a long list of un-Tarzan-like frills calculated to make it the strangest jungle drama in screen history.

For instance, no spear-carrying native bushmen appear; none of the stars wore pith helmets — both Rock Hudson and Burl Ives content themselves with wide-brimmed straw hats; none of the conversation is carried on in the jungle jargon popularly known as "taki-taki." Natives shown in the film converse in English, Dutch or Javanese; no jungle drums are ever heard either sending out awesome messages or providing rhythm for ceremonial dancing. The only music is provided by a military brass band and a country club dance orchestra; scenes of a safari into the jungle feature no native bearers or beaters. Hudson, as a doctor assigned to the jungle interior, travels there by plane, train and boat.

VOODOO

"But we haven't escaped all of the trademarks of jungle drama," director Robert Mulligan pointed out. "The Spiral Road" has voodoo and a witch doctor. However, our witch doctor wears none of that goopy makeup that film fans have always associated with voodoo scenes. If we slipped him into a sports jacket and slacks, he'd look like a fugitive from one of our American resort areas."



ROBERT PRESTON and Shirley Jones lead a bright - spangled, rip-roaring parade through the middle of River City, Iowa in Warner Brothers motion picture production of Meredith Willson's "The Music Man" which starts Wednesday at the Paramount Theatre.

ROCK HUDSON and Gena Rowlands are teamed as a young Dutch doctor and his bride in the jungles of the Netherlands East Indies as they star with Burl Ives in "The Spiral Road." The Universal - International color adventure drama, adapted from Jan de Hartog's great novel which starts Wednesday at Jim Theatre.

Composer Seeks Good Story For Musical Score

NEW YORK (AP) — Composer Harold Arlen is still hoping that a good book can yet be provided for "Free and Easy," a musical score he wrote several years ago.

The show was tested originally in Paris and failed badly, with the storyline getting major blame.

Arlen says the material is "very rich" with melody "but it needs a first-rate book."

Dance Troupes Are Imported For Show Tour

NEW YORK (AP) — Sol Hurok has lined up a troupe from India as the third exotic dance exhibit to be presented on transcontinental tour next season.

The Uday Shankar Hindu Dancers and Musicians, organized 10 years ago, make their initial bow at City Center Sept. 25. They will visit 24 other American and Canadian communities.

Hurok is also presenting Mexico's Ballet Folklorico and Russia's Bolshoie Ballet here in September.

THIS WEEK

'The Music Man' Will Open Here

Bursting at the seams with a breathtaking whirl of high-stepping harmonies, side - splitting shenanigans and rollicking romance, the dazzling Warner Bros. Technicolor presentation of Meredith Willson's "The Music Man" — already acclaimed "the happiest musical ever" — opens Wednesday at the Paramount Theatre.

Robert Preston, making his 883rd appearance in the title role, recreates the award - winning characterization which he originated on Broadway. Academy Award-winning actress Shirley Jones, in a return to the musical field in which she made her screen debut, stars opposite Preston. The lavish Warner Bros. presentation was produced and directed by Morton DaCosta, who staged the original production.

In warm and witty words and music, Willson delights audiences with an exuberant account of the fast - talking travelling salesman who storms into an Iowa town early in the century and sets out to sell the towns-people on buying instruments and uniforms for a boys band, promising to instruct the band himself — although he doesn't know a note of music.

His success in warding off the suspicious mayor and charming the prim librarian, who emerges a glowing beauty as she succumbs to him, crowds the screen with thrilling, fun-filled entertainment.

Endowing the Technirama production with unmatched eye - filling and ear - filling enjoyment, DaCosta and Willson have vastly enlarged the scope of the musical. For example, in the inspiring "Seventy Six Trombones" finale 26 principals, 16 stock players, 40 dancers, a boys band of 150 and nearly 500 extras fill the screen as the entire town of River City Joins in the glittering, triumphant parade.

When Willson and DaCosta discovered that Mason City, Ia., the author-composer-lyricist's hometown, no longer resembles the town of 1912 which he recalled when writing "The Music Man," River City was constructed on three-and-a-half acres of the Warner backlot.

But in addition to surrounding their music man with a facsimile town on the screen, they surrounded him with old friends from the stage production. From the Broadway cast, in addition to Preston are Paul Ford, as the town mayor, and The Buffalo Bills, the barbershop quartet, who co-star with Buddy Hackett and Hermione Gingold; and Peggy Mondo and Adnia Rice, who are featured as a pair of town gossips. From the national company of the show Willson and DaCosta selected Susan Luckey to recreate her role as Zaneeta, the mayor's daughter; Harry Hickox to once again play the anvil salesman.

Seminar Held On New Film For Release

Ted Hatfield, city manager for Paramount Gulf Theatres, in Monroe attended a seminar on the promotion and merchandising plans of the new 20th Century Fox production, "Five Weeks in a Balloon."

Held in New Orleans recently, the seminar was conducted by the picture's producer - director, Irwin Allen, who discussed all phases of promoting and merchandising his CinemaScope - DeLuxe Color presentation including the use of newspapers, television, radio, posters, free giveaways to patrons, record stores, theatre lobbies, etc. The picture is scheduled to open in the area some time in September.

AWARD WINNER

Allen, who also produced and directed last year's "Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea," won an Academy Award for his production of Rachel Carson's "The Sea Around Us."

Among those who attended the seminar were all theatre men from in and around the New Orleans, Memphis, and Atlanta area.

"Five Weeks in a Balloon" stars Red Buttons, Fabian, Barbara Eden, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, and Peter Lorre. It is based on the first novel ever written by the master story - teller, Jules Verne, and is an adventure - comedy designed for the entire family.

'The Spiral Road,' Dramatic Story

When "The Spiral Road," Universal's dramatic story of Dutch doctors at work in jungle colonies, and starring Rock Hudson, Burl Ives and Gena Rowlands, opens at the Jim Theatre starting Wednesday, audiences here will see why this color picture must certainly go down in the records as the most unusual jungle film ever produced by Hollywood.

Robert Arthur, who produced the ambitious motion picture project which was directed by Robert Mulligan, revealed that not one single cliche of past jungle movies shows up on the screen in this motion picture adaptation of Jan de Hartog's famed best-seller novel.

NO MONKEY

"We don't even allow a single monkey to swing through our jungle trees," Arthur said.

In addition to the absence of monkeys in scenes of "The Spiral Road," the film fails to show a single scene of jungle animals. In fact, the only wild life shown in the motion picture features a horde of rodents burned out of a jungle village during efforts to rid the area of a plague epidemic, and four caged guinea pigs in a jungle medical laboratory.

"When we went to the equatorial jungle country of Surinam (Dutch Guiana) for our location scenes, we discovered their jungle was so thick that no animal larger than an ocelot could survive," Producer Arthur added. "If the real jungle had no big animals, we certainly had no use for them, either."

STRANGE DRAMA

In addition to the absence of jungle wild life, "The Spiral Road" presents a long list of un-Tarzan-like frills calculated to make it the strangest jungle drama in screen history.

For instance, no spear-carrying native bushmen appear; none of the stars wore pith helmets — both Rock Hudson and Burl Ives content themselves with wide-brimmed straw hats; none of the conversation is carried on in the jungle jargon popularly known as "taki-taki." Natives shown in the film converse in English, Dutch or Javanese; no jungle drums are ever heard either sending out awesome messages or providing rhythm for ceremonial dancing. The only music is provided by a military brass band and a country club dance orchestra; scenes of a safari into the jungle feature no native bearers or beaters. Hudson, as a doctor assigned to the jungle interior, travels there by plane, train and boat.

VOODOO

"But we haven't escaped all of the trademarks of jungle drama," director Robert Mulligan pointed out. "The Spiral Road" has voodoo and a witch doctor. However, our witch doctor wears none of that goopy makeup that film fans have always associated with voodoo scenes. Palmer Increases Classic Lead To 6 Shots Despite 'Bad Round'

Arnie 'Slips' To Even Par On Third Day

ARKON, Ohio (AP) — Front-running Arnold Palmer staggered a bit during the third round of the American Golf Classic Saturday, but quickly regained his composure with three birdies on the last seven holes for a par-equalling 70, stretching his lead to six strokes with a 54-hole total of 206.

The big hitter from Pennsylvania, seeing his advantage shrink to two strokes after the first 11 holes, put on another of his charges before an immense gallery and all but wrapped up the $50,000 tournament and top prize of $9,000.

Going into the round, Palmer held a five-stroke lead over Don January. A double bogey 6 on the No. 8 gave Palmer a 2-over-par 37 on the front nine. But he came in with a 2-under 33 on the back nine.

GEIBERGER SHOOTS

Al Geiberger, 24, from Carlton Oaks, Calif., seeking his first tournament victory, shot a 32-34—66 to move into a second place tie with Bog Goalby, each having 212 for the three rounds.

Goalby, winner of the Insurance Open at Hartford last week, put on the pressure. He trailed Palmer by six strokes going into the round and had a 36 on the front nine. Playing in the same threesome, Goalby birdied both the 10th and 11th, while Arnie was taking a bogey and a par as his lead shrunk to two strokes.

Scores of the leaders after 54 holes of the $50,000 American Golf Classic.

Giants Trim Margin To 3.5 Games

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Lefty Billy Pierce, with the aid of a pinch home run by Willie McCovey and the clutch relief hurling of Stu Miller, won his 200th major league game Saturday as the San Francisco Giants edged Los Angeles 5-4.

That cut the National League-leading Dodgers' margin over the runner-up Giants to 3½ games.

McCovey batted for Pierce in the Giant sixth and hit his 18th homer with two mates aboard.

McCovey's shot handed Dodger starter Don Drysdale his first loss after 12 straight wins. Larry Sherry finished.

PIERCE'S 11TH WIN

It was Pierce's 11th victory in his first season as a National Leaguer. He's lost three. In the six innings he worked, he struck out two and gave up three hits. He didn't walk a man.

In their winning sixth, the Giants opened with a double by Felipe Alou. Davenport was hit by a pitched ball and McCovey's homer followed.

Giants' trainer Frank Bowman said Davenport was hit in the left hand but the injury did not appear to be serious.

The fireballing Drysdale was going for his 22nd victory. Despite the loss, his 21-5 mark is tops in either league.

The Dodgers vaulted to a 3-0 lead in the first inning. Jim Gilliam was safe on Charlie Hiller's fielding error. Pierce hit Willie Davis, putting men on first and second and Tommy Davis followed with his 19th home run.

FOR AFL FRANCHISE

New Orleans' Football Appetite To Be Tested

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Preseason exhibition games are usually designed to test rookie players, but next Saturday's American Football League game here may provide a good indication of New Orleans' appetite for professional football.

New Orleans has been mentioned off and on as a possibility for an AFL franchise, should the two-year-old league expand or reshuffle its present eight teams.

City Park Stadium, site of the Aug. 18 game between the AFL champion Houston Oilers and last year's Eastern Division runnerup Boston Patriots, probably would be the home field of any professional team here. It now seats 26,000 but there has been talk of enlarging it.

While financial sucess of Saturday's contest would not guarantee an AFL team for New Orleans, a flop at the gate might end this city's dreams of getting a professional team — at least for the present.

Certainly the promoters have a lot going for them.

They have two of the AFL's top teams, including the only champion the fledging loop has ever had.

CANNON RETURNS

And they have Billy Cannon, Louisiana State University's great Heisman Trophy winner, making his first appearance in his home state as a professional.

Cannon, who led LSU to the national championship in 1958 and was twice an All - America, reached maturity as a professional in 1961 — his second professional season — and led the AFL in rushing. He's one of the big reasons the Oilers are favored here.

Raiders Edge Oakland

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Fullback Alan Miller, a former Boston player, scored two touch-edged the Boston Patriots 21-20, in their American Football League exhibition game Saturday.

Miller's second score, a two-yard run in the third period that capped an 84-yard drive, tied the downs as the Oakland Raiders score at 20-20 and Jackie Simpson's point after proved to be the margin of victory.

Quarterback Don Heinrich, acquired in an off season trade from the Dallas Cowboys of the National League, set up both of Miller's TDs with poised passing.

The Patriots had taken a 10-0 first period lead in a 21-yard end run by halfback Ron Burton that capped a 50-yard drive and a 28-yard field goal by Gino Cappelletti.

Early in the second period, Miller opened Oakland's scoring, ending a 69-yard drive from a half yard out. During the drive Heinrich hit on three passes to end Jim Nixon for 36 yards.

Colavito Carries Tigers To 7-2 Win Over Yanks

NEW YORK (AP) — Roger Maris' ground single to right in the 10th inning drove in Bobby Richardson with the tie-breaking run as the New York Yankees salvaged the night game of a Saturday day-night double - header with Detroit 3-2. The Tigers won the day game 7-2 behind the lusty hitting of Rocky Colavito.

Richardson blooped a one-out ground rule double down the right field line to open the winning rally. A fan reached over the railing and touched the ball. Maris, who had homered earlier in the game, followed with a sharp grounder that bounced off Norm Cash's glove and the Yanks pulled it out.

Colavito had a hand in eight of the nine Tiger runs in the twin bill. He drove in six with two three-run homers and scored the seventh after a double in the first game.

In the second, he drove in Detroit's first run with a first-inning double after Billy Bruton had reached base on an interference ruling against Yogi Berra and Al Kaline singled. Cash's sacrifice fly drove in the other and the Tigers had a quick 2-0 lead.

The Yanks got one back in the fourth when Maris walked, went to second on a long fly and scored on Dale Long's single. Maris' 26th homer leading off the sixth tied it.

49ers Beat Vikings

SEATTLE (AP)—The arm of John Brody, the toe of Tommy Davis and the football instinct of elderly Leo Nomellini carried the San Francisco 49ers to a 30-24 National Football League exhibition game victory Saturday over the Minnesota Vikings.

Playing as if this opening test would decide the championship, both teams used their rookies sparingly and went almost the full route with their No. 1 quarterbacks—Brody for San Francisco and Fran Tarkenton for Minnesota.

Twice the 49ers produced 92-yard scoring plays and the Vikings made the game's first tally on a 73-yard run by Glenn Shaw seven minutes into the opening quarter.

Browns Edge Lions

DETROIT (AP)—Jim Ninowski dazzled his former teammates with a bagful of passing tricks and threw two touchdown strikes Saturday night as the Cleveland Browns edged the Detroit Lions 17-14 in a National Football League exhibition.

Ninowski clearly outplayed Milt Plum in the battle of traded quarterbacks before 34,241 fans. The ex-Lion quarterback tossed passes of 37 and 13 yards to Ray Renfro for the Browns' two touchdowns.

But it was a 12-yard field goal by old pro Lou Groza early in the third quarter that made the difference.

FOR AFL FRANCHISE

New Orleans' Football Appetite To Be Tested

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Preseason exhibition games are usually designed to test rookie players, but next Saturday's American Football League game here may provide a good indication of New Orleans' appetite for professional football.

New Orleans has been mentioned off and on as a possibility for an AFL franchise, should the two-year-old league expand or reshuffle its present eight teams.

City Park Stadium, site of the Aug. 18 game between the AFL champion Houston Oilers and last year's Eastern Division runnerup Boston Patriots, probably would be the home field of any professional team here. It now seats 26,000 but there has been talk of enlarging it.

While financial sucess of Saturday's contest would not guarantee an AFL team for New Orleans, a flop at the gate might end this city's dreams of getting a professional team — at least for the present.

Certainly the promoters have a lot going for them.

They have two of the AFL's top teams, including the only champion the fledging loop has ever had.

CANNON RETURNS

And they have Billy Cannon, Louisiana State University's great Heisman Trophy winner, making his first appearance in his home state as a professional.

Cannon, who led LSU to the national championship in 1958 and was twice an All - America, reached maturity as a professional in 1961 — his second professional season — and led the AFL in rushing. He's one of the big reasons the Oilers are favored here.

Raiders Edge Oakland

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Fullback Alan Miller, a former Boston player, scored two touchedged the Boston Patriots 21-20, in their American Football League exhibition game Saturday.

Miller's second score, a two-yard run in the third period that capped an 84-yard drive, tied the downs as the Oakland Raiders score at 20-20 and Jackie Simpson's point after proved to be the margin of victory.

Quarterback Don Heinrich, acquired in an off season trade from the Dallas Cowboys of the National League, set up both of Miller's TDs with poised passing.

The Patriots had taken a 10-0 first period lead in a 21-yard end run by halfback Ron Burton that capped a 50-yard drive and a 28-yard field goal by Gino Cappelletti.

Early in the second period, Miller opened Oakland's scoring, ending a 69-yard drive from a half yard out. During the drive Heinrich hit on three passes to end Jim Nixon for 36 yards.

Arnie 'Slips' To Even Par On Third Day

ARKON, Ohio (AP) — Front-running Arnold Palmer staggered a bit during the third round of the American Golf Classic Saturday, but quickly regained his composure with three birdies on the last seven holes for a par-equalling 70, stretching his lead to six strokes with a 54-hole total of 206.

The big hitter from Pennsylvania, seeing his advantage shrink to two strokes after the first 11 holes, put on another of his charges before an immense gallery and all but wrapped up the $50,000 tournament and top prize of $9,000.

Going into the round, Palmer held a five-stroke lead over Don January. A double bogey 6 on the No. 8 gave Palmer a 2-over-par 37 on the front nine. But he came in with a 2-under 33 on the back nine.

GEIBERGER SHOOTS

Al Geiberger, 24, from Carlton Oaks, Calif., seeking his first tournament victory, shot a 32-34—66 to move into a second place tie with Bog Goalby, each having 212 for the three rounds.

Goalby, winner of the Insurance Open at Hartford last week, put on the pressure. He trailed Palmer by six strokes going into the round and had a 36 on the front nine. Playing in the same threesome, Goalby birdied both the 10th and 11th, while Arnie was taking a bogey and a par as his lead shrunk to two strokes.

Ruston Blasts Kelly 8-1 To Even Playoff

RUSTON (Special)—The Ruston Ramblers smashed the Kelly Truckers of Bossier City 8-1 here Saturday night to even the North Louisiana Amateur League playoffs at one win apiece. Kelly ripped Ruston 12-3 in the opening game.

Now the series switches to Bossier City Monday night for the final contest.

Lefthander John Porter went all the way to win for Ruston, scattering nine hits over the route.

Three Rambler homers spelled the end to Kelly hopes of wrapping the playoff up in two straight games.

Kelton Bacon got the first, a 355-foot solo blast in the second. Frank Betts followed in the sixth to the same spot, with one man on, and George Garrett lifted a two-run homer to left-center in the seventh.

Righthander Bobby Lockwood, Kelly starter, was the loser. Lockwood was lifted in the seventh for Kile Stevenson, who finished the game.

BOMBERS WIN NIGHT GAME

Colavito Carries Tigers To 7-2 Win Over Yanks

NEW YORK (AP) — Roger Maris' ground single to right in the 10th inning drove in Bobby Richardson with the tie-breaking run as the New York Yankees salvaged the night game of a Saturday day-night double - header with Detroit 3-2. The Tigers won the day game 7-2 behind the lusty hitting of Rocky Colavito.

Richardson blooped a one-out ground rule double down the right field line to open the winning rally. A fan reached over the railing and touched the ball. Maris, who had homered earlier in the game, followed with a sharp grounder that bounced off Norm Cash's glove and the Yanks pulled it out.

Colavito had a hand in eight of the nine Tiger runs in the twin bill. He drove in six with two three-run homers and scored the seventh after a double in the first game.

In the second, he drove in Detroit's first run with a first-inning double after Billy Bruton had reached base on an interference ruling against Yogi Berra and Al Kaline singled. Cash's sacrifice fly drove in the other and the Tigers had a quick 2-0 lead.

The Yanks got one back in the fourth when Maris walked, went to second on a long fly and scored on Dale Long's single. Maris' 26th homer leading off the sixth tied it.

49ers Beat Vikings

SEATTLE (AP)—The arm of John Brody, the toe of Tommy Davis and the football instinct of elderly Leo Nomellini carried the San Francisco 49ers to a 30-24 National Football League exhibition game victory Saturday over the Minnesota Vikings.

Playing as if this opening test would decide the championship, both teams used their rookies sparingly and went almost the full route with their No. 1 quarterbacks—Brody for San Francisco and Fran Tarkenton for Minnesota.

Twice the 49ers produced 92-yard scoring plays and the Vikings made the game's first tally on a 73-yard run by Glenn Shaw seven minutes into the opening quarter.

Browns Edge Lions

DETROIT (AP)—Jim Ninowski dazzled his former teammates with a bagful of passing tricks and threw two touchdown strikes Saturday night as the Cleveland Browns edged the Detroit Lions 17-14 in a National Football League exhibition.

Ninowski clearly outplayed Milt Plum in the battle of traded quarterbacks before 34,241 fans. The ex-Lion quarterback tossed passes of 37 and 13 yards to Ray Renfro for the Browns' two touchdowns.

But it was a 12-yard field goal by old pro Lou Groza early in the third quarter that made the difference.

Giants Trim Margin To 3.5 Games

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Lefty Billy Pierce, with the aid of a pinch home run by Willie McCovey and the clutch relief hurling of Stu Miller, won his 200th major league game Saturday as the San Francisco Giants edged Los Angeles 5-4.

That cut the National League-leading Dodgers' margin over the runner-up Giants to 3½ games.

McCovey batted for Pierce in the Giant sixth and hit his 15th homer with two mates aboard.

McCovey's shot handed Dodger starter Don Drysdale his first loss after 12 straight wins. Larry Sherry finished.

PIERCE'S 11TH WIN

It was Pierce's 11th victory in his first season as a National Leaguer. He's lost three. In the six innings he worked, he struck out two and gave up three hits. He didn't walk a man.

In their winning sixth, the Giants opened with a double by Felipe Alou. Davenport was hit by a pitched ball and McCovey's homer followed.

Giants' trainer Frank Bowman said Davenport was hit in the left hand but the injury did not appear to be serious.

The fireballing Drysdale was going for his 22nd victory. Despite the loss, his 21-5 mark is tops in either league.

The Dodgers vaulted to a 3-0 lead in the first inning. Jim Gilliam was safe on Charlie Hiller's fielding error. Pierce hit Willie Davis, putting men on first and second and Tommy Davis followed with his 19th home run.

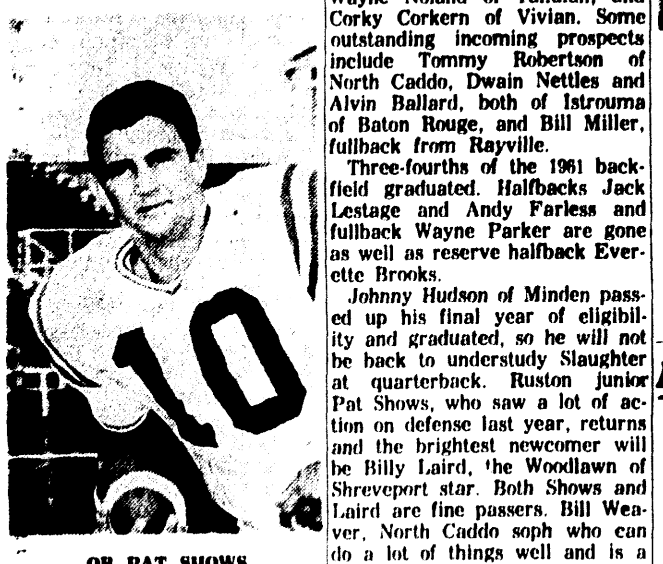
Bulldogs Expect Better Backfield

(Second in a series of three articles on Louisiana Tech's football prospects this fall. Today's is a look at the backfield situation).

RUSTON (Special) — Youth will prevail in the Louisiana Tech backfield during the upcoming grid campaign, but it will be sandwiched around "the old pro" who makes the attack go —Mickey Slaughter.

Other positions in the backfield will be up for grabs with start of fall practice. Junior Paul Labenne, the club's top returning ball carrier, punt and kickoff returner, likely will open at left halfback.



QB PAT SHOWS

Other letterman backs include halfbacks Mickey Strother, and Bob Ashley and fullbacks Ronnie Carson and Wally Martin. Carson of Jonesboro, on the basis on his fine frosh campaign, could beat out Martin, a junior with a lot of potential. Two redshirts, Charles Miller of Sicily Island and Gerald McDowell of Sulphur, could surprise.

Seeking halfback slots will be sophs Jack Odom of Fair Park, Ken Tidwell of North Caddo, Wayne Noland of Tallulah, and Corky Corkern of Vivian. Some outstanding incoming prospects include Tommy Robertson of North Caddo, Dwain Nettles and Alvin Ballard, both of Istrouma of Baton Rouge, and Bill Miller, fullback from Rayville.

Three-fourths of the 1961 backfield graduated. Halfbacks Jack Lestage and Andy Farless and fullback Wayne Parker are gone as well as reserve halfback Everette Brooks.

Johnny Hudson of Minden passed up his final year of eligibility and graduated, so he will not be back to understudy Slaughter at quarterback. Ruston junior Pat Shows, who saw a lot of action on defense last year, returns and the brightest newcomer will be Billy Laird, the Woodlawn of Shreveport star. Both Shows and Laird are fine passers. Bill Weaver, North Caddo soph who can do a lot of things well and is a great competitor, is also in the quarterback picture.

There is every reason to believe the backfield situation at Tech will be improved, with Slaughter at the helm again.

Preps Start Grid Work This Week

Pre-season football operations at four Twin-City high schools gets underway this week, with two of the schools begining activity on Monday.

Physicals for Ouachita Parish and West Monroe High gridders have been set for Monday evening. Actual football practice won't start until Wednesday, the first date allowed by the High School Athletic Association.

Head Coach Bob Ellen announced all boys planning to tryout for football at Ouachita should report to the OPHS stadium Monday evening at 5:30 to take their physical examinations. The call is for freshmen as well as varsity players, Ellen said.

West Monroe physicals will be given at Rebel Stadium at 7:30 p.m. the same day. Head Coach Cecil Pirkey asked all varsity and junior varsity aspirants to be present.

Coach Bill Ruple, mentor of the state champion Neville High Tigers, has set 7 a.m. Wednesday morning as the reporting time for his gridders. Ruple requested all football players report to the stadium at that time to receive equipment.

At Southside High, Coach Charles Denman has designated 2:30 p.m. Wednesday as time to start workouts. Equipment will be issued then and the Pelicans will have at it. Because school has already started at Southside Denman plans one-a-day drills only at first, but will probably work some at night later on.

Team physicians, Dr. A. B. Gregory and Dr. Claude Smith will give West Monroe's Rebels their examinations Monday. The same night, the West Monroe Quarterback Club, with Vern Pleasant the new president, has an organizational meeting.

The Rebels kickoff two-a-day drills at 8:30 Wednesday morning. Time of the second Wednesday session will be determined following the workout.

Two-a-day workouts begin at Ouachita Wednesday morning. Ellen is scheduling all-day encampments for his Lions to run for two weeks.

"Our boys will remain on campus all day during the two weeks we are in training and will be served their noon meal at the school cafeteria," Coack Ellen said. "We'll have work periods and rest periods and try to think nothing but football for the two weeks we're getting ready for the season opener."

Ouachita and West Monroe open grid warfare August 31 in a jamboree game at Ouachita.

West Monroe hosts arch rival Neville and Ouachita entertains Bolton of Alexandria the following week, in the first regulation games of the season.

St. Matthew's Grid Coach Gerry Marchbank is entering the service Sept. 1 and, at present, school officials are uncertain whether they will field a team. St. Matthew's started football again last year, with a limited schedule, after several seasons of inactivity.

NFL Exhibition

tional Football League Exhibition victory over the Chicago Bears.

It was Atlanta's first NFL display since World War II and drew a crowd of about 11,000.

Brown, traded by the Bears during the off-season, threw a 35-yard touchdown pass to Buddy Dial in the first quarter. He also guided the Steelers into scoring range for a pair of Michaels field goals during the second quarter.

The payoff kicks by Michaels, a 235-pound former University of Kentucky All-America, were for 48 and 18 yards. They put the Steelers ahead to stay.

Michaels also played a strong game as defensive end and thwarted a Chicago touchdown bid in the fourth quarter when he intercepted Bill Wade's pass at the Steeler 25 and raced 27 yards to haul the Steelers out of danger.

Something you should think about if you're about to buy a truck:

If all trucks were built the same way, cost the same to keep up, were worth the same at trade-in . . . then probably the price tag would be your only concern. It can't be, of course, because some trucks have more quality than others. And marks of quality are the real keys to low cost.

Chevrolet trucks, for example, have double-wall construction, which gives bodies and cabs more strength. Cabs are insulated against heat, cold and noise. A big part of road shock, which shortens truck life, is damped out by Chevrolet's suspension system; it also makes riding in the truck a pleasure. Pickup bodies and cabs are separated to eliminate stress between them.

Value such as this has induced more people to invest in Chevrolet trucks every year since 1937.

This can be a good time to buy a modern new Chevrolet truck

Late summer traditionally is the season for all-around savings on a new Chevrolet truck . . . selection is still good . . . deliveries are prompt . . . and Chevrolet dealers are doubly anxious to put you into a new vehicle in order to make way for next year's models. Coupled with the efficient performance a new Chevrolet truck will give you, it seems evident that you couldn't buy at a better time.

Come in and take full advantage of it!

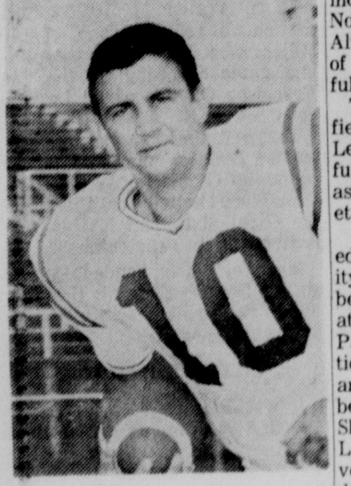
Bulldogs Expect Better Backfield

(Second in a series of three articles on Louisiana Tech's football prospects this fall. Today's is a look at the backfield situation).

RUSTON (Special) — Youth will prevail in the Louisiana Tech backfield during the upcoming grid campaign, but it will be sandwiched around "the old pro" who makes the attack go —Mickey Slaughter.



QB PAT SHOWS

Other positions in the backfield will be up for grabs with start of fall practice. Junior Paul Labenne, the club's top returning ball carrier, punt and kickoff returner, likely will open at left halfback.

Other letterman backs include halfbacks Mickey Strother, and Bob Ashley and fullbacks Ronnie Carson and Wally Martin. Carson of Jonesboro, on the basis on his fine frosh campaign, could beat out Martin, a junior with a lot of potential. Two redshirts, Charles Miller of Sicily Island and Gerald McDowell of Sulphur, could surprise.

Seeking halfback slots will be sophs Jack Odom of Fair Park, Ken Tidwell of North Caddo, Wayne Noland of Tallulah, and Corky Corkern of Vivian. Some outstanding incoming prospects include Tommy Robertson of North Caddo, Dwain Nettles and Alvin Ballard, both of Istrouma of Baton Rouge, and Bill Miller, fullback from Rayville.

Three-fourths of the 1961 backfield graduated. Halfbacks Jack Lestage and Andy Farless and fullback Wayne Parker are gone as well as reserve halfback Everette Brooks.

Johnny Hudson of Minden passed up his final year of eligibility and graduated, so he will not be back to understudy Slaughter at quarterback. Ruston junior Pat Shows, who saw a lot of action on defense last year, returns and the brightest newcomer will be Billy Laird, the Woodlawn of Shreveport star. Both Shows and Laird are fine passers. Bill Weaver, North Caddo soph who can do a lot of things well and is a great competitor, is also in the quarterback picture.

There is every reason to believe the backfield situation at Tech will be improved, with Slaughter at the helm again.

USL baseball coach Dan "Sonny" Roy strengthened 1963 prospects this week with the signing of Richard Storms, ace shortstop for Ruston's American Legion fifth district champions. The hard-hitting product of Ruston High signed a letter-of-intent to enter Southwestern next month and pursue a pre-law course while displaying his diamond talent for Coach Roy's Bulldog nine. In the past American Legion season Storms posted a hefty .390 batting average as Ruston stunned Monroe for the Fifth District crown.

Preps Start Grid Work This Week

Pre-season football operations at four Twin-City high schools gets underway this week, with two of the schools begining activity on Monday.

Physicals for Ouachita Parish and West Monroe High gridders have been set for Monday evening. Actual football practice won't start until Wednesday, the first date allowed by the High School Athletic Association.

Head Coach Bob Ellen announced all boys planning to tryout for football at Ouachita should report to the OPHS stadium Monday evening at 5:30 to take their physical examinations. The call is for freshmen as well as varsity players, Ellen said.

West Monroe physicals will be given at Rebel Stadium at 7:30 p.m. the same day. Head Coach Cecil Pirkey asked all varsity and junior varsity aspirants to be present.

Coach Bill Ruple, mentor of the state champion Neville High Tigers, has set 7 a.m. Wednesday morning as the reporting time for his gridders. Ruple requested all football players report to the stadium at that time to receive equipment.

At Southside High, Coach Charles Denman has designated 2:30 p.m. Wednesday as time to start workouts. Equipment will be issued then and the Pelicans will have at it. Because school has already started at Southside Denman plans one-a-day drills only at first, but will probably work some at night later on.

Team physicians, Dr. A. B. Gregory and Dr. Claude Smith will give West Monroe's Rebels their examinations Monday. The same night, the West Monroe Quarterback Club, with Vern Pleasant the new president, has an organizational meeting.

The Rebels kickoff two-a-day drills at 8:30 Wednesday morning. Time of the second Wednesday session will be determined following the workout.

Two-a-day workouts begin at Ouachita Wednesday morning. Ellen is scheduling all-day encampments for his Lions to run for two weeks.

'Our boys will remain on campus all day during the two weeks we are in training and will be served their noon meal at the school cafeteria," Coack Ellen said. "We'll have work periods and rest periods and try to think nothing but football for the two weeks we're getting ready for the season opener."

Ouachita and West Monroe open grid warfare August 31 in a jamboree game at Ouachita.

West Monroe hosts arch rival Neville and Ouachita entertains Bolton of Alexandria the following week, in the first regulation games of the season.

St. Matthew's Grid Coach Gerry Marchbank is entering the service Sept. 1 and, at present, school officials are uncertain whether they will field a team. St. Matthew's started football again last year, with a limited schedule, after several seasons of inactivity.

Something you should think about if you're about to buy a truck:

If all trucks were built the same way, cost the same to keep up, were worth the same at trade-in . . . then probably the price tag would be your only concern. It can't be, of course, because some trucks have more quality than others. And marks of quality are the real keys to low cost.

Chevrolet trucks, for example, have double-wall construction, which gives bodies and cabs more strength. Cabs are insulated against heat, cold and noise. A big part of road shock, which shortens truck life, is damped out by Chevrolet's suspension system; it also makes riding in the truck a pleasure. Pickup bodies and cabs are separated to eliminate stress between them.

Value such as this has induced more people to invest in Chevrolet trucks every year since 1937.

This can be a good time to buy a modern new Chevrolet truck

Late summer traditionally is the season for all-around savings on a new Chevrolet truck . . . selection is still good . . . deliveries are prompt . . . and Chevrolet dealers are doubly anxious to put you into a new vehicle in order to make way for next year's models. Coupled with the efficient performance a new Chevrolet truck will give you, it seems evident that you couldn't buy at a better time.

Come in and take full advantage of it!

DIXIE YOUTH BASEBALL

Little Boys Will Get New Name

Little Boys Baseball nears the end of a "Year of Decision" and league leaders from throughout the south will be here next Saturday to start opening ceremonies for the seventh annual Little Boys Dixie World Series in West Monroe August 20-25.

It will mark the last year in which the program will be known as Little Boys and the league will prepare to be known as Dixie Youth Baseball in 1963.

Commissioner Danny Jones of North Charleston, S.C., who will be here within the week to reign in his official capacity at the series, has issued a statement of policy, intent, and praise to all league members concerning the season and the future:

"Following the adverse decision of the copyright and patent board in Washington, D.C., in which we lost the registered mark of Little Boys Baseball, the members of the board of directors selected the name Dixie Youth Baseball from a long list of suggested names after several mail ballots and a conference with the officials of Dixie Boys Baseball, a program for 13 and 14-year-old boys.

'The new name will take effect following completion of the 1962 Dixie World Series in West Monroe, La. All league officials should begin making plans immediately for removing the name Little Boys Baseball and in some cases 'Little League' from their fields, advertisements, stationery, bank accounts, incorporation papers, etc.

"There will be no change in the insignia of the baseball superimposed in the Confederate Flag— only the name Dixie Youth Baseball, Inc., will replace our present name. As commissioner of the program, I wish to thank the officials of Dixie Boys Baseball and national board member W. E. Marioneaux of Winnsboro, La., for their cooperation in helping us with the selection of our new mark.

"The current board will have to make several important decisions at our annual meeting in Monroe, La., next weekend. Among motions to be considered are moving the pitcher's mound two feet further back, similar to softball, adoption of a regulation home plate, and a possible change in the ratio of players by age on each team.

"For the seventh consecutive year our program has shown an increase in the number of franchised leagues and teams. This was made possible through outstanding promotional work of our state and national directors.

"From 348 leagues of 1,371 teams in 1961, the LBB program grew to 390 leagues of 1,927 teams this year.

"On behalf of the board, I wish to thank Mr. Marvin Smith (president of West Monroe and Louisiana state LBB organization) and his world series committee for the fine work they have done in preparing for the seventh annual Dixie Little Boys World Series. This, I am sure, will be another outstanding event and a credit to our program and the city of West Monroe."

Tournament play opens in West Monroe Monday week, August 20, with champions of Louisiana and Mississippi meeting in the 1 p.m. opener of the double elimination event. Champions of South Carolina and Virginia-Georgia (the latter determined by a bi-state tournament) meet in the second game at 3 p.m. Opening day's night session matches Alabama and Florida at 6 o'clock and Tennessee with West Monroe at 8 o'clock. As host city, West Monroe got an automatic entry along with the Louisiana champion. West Monroe did not compete for the state title, but did hold a Dixie Host tournament for all-star teams of the city's four leagues. South All-Stars won the host role.

SWEETHEART of the Dixie Little Boys World Series in West Monroe, which begins Aug. 20, will be Glenda Hebert, 12-year - old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Hebert of 323 Elmwood in West Monroe. Miss Hebert, a student at West Monroe Junior High, was selected Aug. 1 and will reign over the World Series, which matches state champions of Little Boys Baseball.

HITS 50 MARK IN MAY

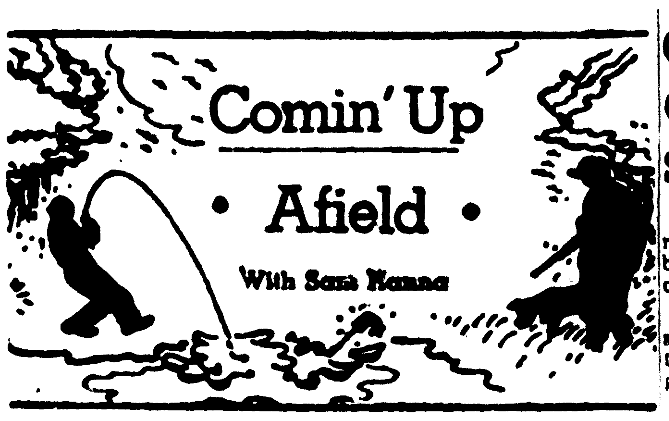
Snead May Quit Heavy Golf Play

ROSCOE, N.Y. (AP) — Sweet-swinging Samuel Jackson Snead pondered the question a moment, then answered: 'Heck, I don't want to play heavy tournament golf any more. I hit the 50 mark in May and I'd like to enjoy myself from now on. In fact, put this down . . . par for the course of life is 70 like the Bible says and jes' this once I'd like to go way over par."

Sam was caught on the run at an exhibition he was playing at the Tennanah Lake Country Club here, along with his manager, Gary Nixon, Tony Cabot, band leader and golfer, and the home pro, the sparse red top, Alex O'Laughlin.

Rated the picture golfer of the last three decades, Sam has won 110 major tournaments, including the Masters three times, the PGA three times and the British Open. three times and the British Open When you talk to Sam the National Open is a closed chapter. Check the record if you don't know why.

"Four or five major tournaments a year is enough for me," said Sam as he squinted out at a fairway that had a nasty dogleg to the right.



Coming Duck Season

If the U. S. Fish — Wildlife Service approves a recommended 40 - day duck season for the Mississippi Flyway, it will surprise a lot of people.

All signs indicated that Louisiana and her sister flyway states will be lucky if we get as much as 20 days like last year.

The wildlife service met with representatives of the flyway councils at Washington earlier in the week where council recommendations were made, including the 40 - day season for Louisiana and Arkansas.

Arkansas Director Nelson Cox, as chairman of the Mississippi Flyway Council, was the official spokesman for the council at the Washington conference.

This is what he told us on the phone.

"Their discussion indicated that our recommendations were a little liberal. I don't believe that they will be as liberal."

Cox explained that the federal service produced surveys of the nesting conditions in Canada, indicating that conditions are "slight to moderate" on the decrease.

But he added, "The late hatch could easily contribute to better conditions."

Richard Yancey, Louisiana's assistant director, also attended the conference.

Dick had this to say:

"There is a wide gap between the thinking of the state and the Fish and Wildlife Service as to what the hunting season should be. We feel that a more liberal hunting season is in order."

Dick explained that the service is now considering the proposals recommended by the councils and other organizations, including the Audubon Society, which recommended that the season be closed all together.

"It doesn't sound too good," he said, "but we're still working, doing all we can."

Dick says the service is making a mistake by chopping the seasons in that by doing so public interest is killed. He was referring, of course, to the sale of duck stamps, the proceeds from which go toward the purchase of wetlands and the management of waterfowl.

Yancey also pointed out that in the marsh country of South Louisiana, as well as as in other areas of the Mississippi Flyway, hunting clubs spend money on the upkeep of waterfowl areas.

"We will actually be hurting the future of waterfowl by reducing the seasons or closing them," he explained.

Meantime, by the middle of this week, duck hunters should have an indication of what's in store, since the wildlife service is scheduled to hand down the frameworks to the states by August 15 or 16th.

Remember, the states have authority to set the seasons only within the frameworks as determined by the federal government, since ducks fall under the migratory laws.

While the federal government's latest report said the waterfowl production is 17 per cent less than last year, Nelson Cox said the Arkansas technicians who worked Canada this year found conditions to be "as well or better than last year."

Dove Hunters Note

Lloyd Voorhees, president of the Ouachita Wildlife Unit, of Monroe came up with a timely suggestion this week.

He pointed out that dove hunters, with three weeks left before the season opens on September 1, should get out now and locate a place to hunt.

"You know when the hunter waits until the last minute to find a place to shoot doves, chances are he'll do something to make the landowner mad," Voorhees said.

Hunters should keep in mind that in most cases their hunting success depends on their relations with the man who owns the property.

"A smart dove hunter will find his place to hunt early, get acquainted with the landowner and obtain permission before the opening day." Voorhees emphasized.

You can pretty well tell now where the doves will be on opening day by taking a drive through the country. Where there is feed with a nearby waterhole, there'll be doves, more than likely.

Don't wait until the last minute.

Little Man's Corner

Fishing was a blistering sport over the week, but a few of the little men braved the temperatures to make news afield.

At Jonesville, J. C. Oxley is making big plans for a fishing rodeo to be held August 27 to September 1 in conjunction with the Louisiana Soybean Festival.

Prizes will be awarded to the anglers landing the largest bass, bream and white perch.

The contest will be open to any citizen of Louisiana, so if you're interested, contact J. C. Oxley at Jonesville.

And from Monroe, the P. L. (Buddy) Foreman family spent a few days with the W. B. Scriber family of Winnsboro at Lake Bruin. They caught a lot of bream.

Bill Scriber, 13, and Dennis Foreman, 14, landed some turtles, grinnel and catfish on a trotline.

Buie Scriber almost landed a big bass, which hit a bream that Buie had hooked and left in the water alongside the boat.

In the Jena area, Joe Sanders has been having good luck with the bass on Little River. But the best story of the week came from Lake St. John where five-year-old Freddie Boyekin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Boyekin, landed a five-pound bass.

At Lake Providence, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Wells have had good luck with the catfish in the River Chute below town. Mr. and Mrs. Jim Matthews caught several limits of white perch in Gassoway.

Another Lake Providence fisherman, Doug Cheatham, and Sellers Aycock of Rayville got the limit of bream at a pond near Rayville.

Billy Ray Joyner's party killed a wild hog on an island in the Mississippi River. They also killed a nice size rattler with seven rattlers.

Two Winnsboro fishermen, Walter Woods and A. J. Earle, landed some bream in Lake St. Joseph.

Locally, a black bear and two small cubs were reported seen several days ago on land being farmed by W. A. Calloway in the Bosco Community. One of Calloways farm hands said the bears came out of the nearby wooded area of Lafourche Swamp.

City Recreation Group Closes Summer Activity

Eleven leagues participated in the baseball program with 58 teams participating.

Plans are now being made by officials of the department to begin the fall touch football program and anyone interested in the touch league is asked to contact the Recreation Department at 1700 Oaklawn Drive, or phone, 325-3895.

Mike Cooley, Lehigh's football coach, directed the school's tennis team to the Middle Atlantic Conference title in 1961, his first year as tennis coach.

"We will actually be hurting the future of waterfowl by reducing the seasons or closing them," he explained.

Meantime, by the middle of this week, duck hunters should have an indication of what's in store, since the wildlife service is scheduled to hand down the frameworks to the states by August 15 or 16th.

Remember, the states have authority to set the seasons only within the frameworks as determined by the federal government, since ducks fall under the migratory laws.

While the federal government's latest report said the waterfowl production is 17 per cent less than last year, Nelson Cox said the Arkansas technicians who worked Canada this year found conditions to be "as well or better than last year."

Dove Hunters Note

Lloyd Voorhees, president of the Ouachita Wildlife Unit, of Monroe came up with a timely suggestion this week.

He pointed out that dove hunters, with three weeks left before the season opens on September 1, should get out now and locate a place to hunt.

"You know when the hunter waits until the last minute to find a place to shoot doves, chances are he'll do something to make the landowner mad," Voorhees said.

Hunters should keep in mind that in most cases their hunting success depends on their relations with the man who owns the property.

"A smart dove hunter will find his place to hunt early, get acquainted with the landowner and obtain permission before the opening day," Voorhees emphasized.

You can pretty well tell now where the doves will be on opening day by taking a drive through the country. Where there is feed with a nearby waterhole, there'll be doves, more than likely.

Don't wait until the last minute.

Little Man's Corner

Fishing was a blistering sport over the week, but a few of the little men braved the temperatures to make news afield.

At Jonesville, J. C. Oxley is making big plans for a fishing rodeo to be held August 27 to September 1 in conjunction with the Louisiana Soybean Festival.

Prizes will be awarded to the anglers landing the largest bass, bream and white perch.

The contest will be open to any citizen of Louisiana, so if you're interested, contact J. C. Oxley at Jonesville.

And from Monroe, the P. L. (Buddy) Foreman family spent a few days with the W. B. Scriber family of Winnsboro at Lake Bruin. They caught a lot of bream.

Bill Scriber, 13, and Dennis Foreman, 14, landed some turtles, grinnel and catfish on a trotline.

Buie Scriber almost landed a big bass, which hit a bream that Buie had hooked and left in the water alongside the boat.

In the Jena area, Joe Sanders has been having good luck with the bass on Little River. But the best story of the week came from Lake St. John where five-year-old Freddie Boyekin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Boyekin, landed a five-pound bass.

At Lake Providence, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Wells have had good luck with the catfish in the River Chute below town. Mr. and Mrs. Jim Matthews caught several limits of white perch in Gassoway.

Another Lake Providence fisherman, Doug Cheatham, and Sellers Aycock of Rayville got the limit of bream at a pond near Rayville.

Billy Ray Joyner's party killed a wild hog on an island in the Mississippi River. They also killed a nice size rattler with seven rattlers.

Two Winnsboro fishermen, Walter Woods and A. J. Earle, landed some bream in Lake St. Joseph.

Locally, a black bear and two small cubs were reported seen several days ago on land being farmed by W. A. Calloway in the Bosco Community. One of Calloways farm hands said the bears came out of the nearby wooded area of Lafourche Swamp.

Historical Church Scene Of Duerson-Rawls Vows

Bartholomew Methodist Church, one of Louisiana's oldest landmarks was the setting for the candlelight ceremony which united in marriage Miss Linda Kay Rawls and the Reverend George Andrew Duerson, Saturday night, August 11. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lucian Eldrich Rawls of Bastrop, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Andrews Duerson of Shreveport, are parents of the bridegroom.

The Rev. Edward Haug performed the double ring ceremony beneath a white arch, entwined with smilax. Branched candleabra, draped with ivy and holding white tapers formed a background for pedestal baskets of white gladioli and leatherleaf fern which flanked the altar in keeping with the theme of green and white. A white prayer bench completed the scene.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father, who gave her in marriage. She wore a full length gown of silk mist taffeta and French Chantilly lace. The lace bodice featured a scoop neckline, enhanced by a single strand of pearls and fitted sleeves tapered to points over her hands. The taffeta skirt belled into a full sweep, caught up in front with a self-fabric rose, revealing a lace underskirt. Back of the gown extended into a chapel train. Her fingertip veil of illusion was held in place by a seed pearl headpiece and she carried a Brussels lace handkerchief with a bouquet of white pompons centered with a white orchid.

Miss Betty Lou Arnell, organist, presented a prelude of appropriate wedding music and accompanied Miss Charlotte Lowrey, who sang "Whither Thou Goest," and at conclusion of the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer."

Miss Diane Rawls, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Misses Laura Beth Thornton, Memphis, Tenn., and Joyce Yeldell, recently of Van Nuys, Calif., cousins of the bride. Their short gowns of emerald silk mist taffeta repeated the style of the bridal gown, with skirts swept up in front to reveal roses and underskirts of matching fabric. Circular veils fell from roses which matched those of the skirts and they wore emerald linen shoes and white wrist length gloves. The attendants carried bouquets of green and white pompons.

Mr. Duerson served his son as best man. Groomsmen were Kearney Duerson of Pensacola, Fla., and Woodie Jackson, Shreveport, cousins of the bridegroom.

Miss Pat Ford, Monroe, and Mrs. Jimmy Anding, Lake Charles, wearing mint green gowns, styled identical to those of the bride's attendants, lighted candles.

Mrs. Rawls was wearing embroidered beige organza over taffeta with beige accessories for her daughter's wedding. The bridegroom's mother chose a frock of mauve silk organza with lace appliques over taffeta, with matching shoes and feather hat.

RECEPTION

The green and white theme was continued in the church social room where the reception was held. An arrangement of white pompons centered the table, covered with an Italian cutwork cloth. Crystal candelabra with pale green tapers stood on either side of the central arrangement. A green and white tiered and columned cake was served from one end of the table with lime punch in a crystal bowl opposite. Mrs. Freddie Russell and Mrs. Nixie Neel served the cake and alternating at the punch bowl were Mrs. Eunice Strong and Mrs. Larry Richard.

A small table holding the bride's book was lighted by a memory candle. Miss Linda Griggs registered the guests. Misses Beverly Rawls, Jan Neel, Alice Yeldell and Sue Shirley were tea girls and Mrs. Menice Rawls Sr., acted as circulating hostess.

Handbags For School Lead Varied Life

High scorers in the fashion class this fall are large, spacious bags of smooth, grained and sueded leather that combines the roominess which a busy coed needs with the style and color sparkle she prizes.

Her favorite handbag shape this semester is a long, lean leather envelope with an easily grasped short handle — ideal for an armful of books. Simple, almost severe in line, envelopes depend on the lustrous beauty and rich suppleness of the leather to highlight matched separates, clean cut fall suits and fluid coats.

Other silhouettes popular with teenage girls are the huge leather totes or "feed bags" that hold everything, including her lunch. Pouches, satchels, clutches and a variety of boxes are favored, too.

A smart girl frequently carries a daytime clutch which doubles in leather as a dressy date bag. Leather colors this fall include gold, which complements all the fall apparel colors, sparkling greens, deep plums and earth browns.

ed in marriage Miss Linda Kay Rawls and the Reverend George Andrew Duerson, Saturday night, August 11. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lucian Eldrich Rawls of Bastrop, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Andrews Duerson of Shreveport, are parents of the bridegroom.

The Rev. Edward Haug performed the double ring ceremony beneath a white arch, entwined with smilax. Branched candleabra, draped with ivy and holding white tapers formed a background for pedestal baskets of white gladioli and leatherleaf fern which flanked the altar in keeping with the theme of green and white. A white prayer bench completed the scene.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father, who gave her in marriage. She wore a full length gown of silk mist taffeta and French Chantilly lace. The lace bodice featured a scoop neckline, enhanced by a single strand of pearls and fitted sleeves tapered to points over her hands. The taffeta skirt belled into a full sweep, caught up in front with a self-fabric rose, revealing a lace underskirt. Back of the gown extended into a chapel train. Her fingertip veil of illusion was held in place by a seed pearl headpiece and she carried a Brussels lace handkerchief with a bouquet of white pompons centered with a white orchid.

Miss Betty Lou Arnett, organist, presented a prelude of appropriate wedding music and accompanied Miss Charlotte Lowrey, who sang "Whither Thou Goest," and at conclusion of the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer."

Miss Diane Rawls, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Misses Laura Beth Thornton, Memphis, Tenn., and Joyce Yeldell, recently of Van Nuys, Calif., cousins of the bride.

Bartholomew Methodist Church, one of Louisiana's oldest landmarks was the setting for the candlelight ceremony which unit-

Their short gowns of emerald silk mist taffeta repeated the style of the bridal gown, with skirts swept up in front to reveal roses and underskirts of matching fabric. Circular veils fell from roses which matched those of the skirts and they wore emerald linen shoes and white wrist length gloves. The attendants carried bouquets of green and white pompons.

Mr. Duerson served his son as best man. Groomsmen were Kearney Duerson of Pensacola, Fla., and Woodie Jackson, Shreveport, cousins of the bridegroom.

Miss Pat Ford, Monroe, and Mrs. Jimmy Anding, Lake Charles, wearing mint green gowns, styled identical to those of the bride's attendants, lighted candles.

Mrs. Rawls was wearing embroidered beige organza over taffeta with beige accessories for her daughter's wedding. The bridegroom's mother chose a frock of mauve silk organza with lace appliques over taffeta, with matching shoes and feather hat.

RECEPTION

The green and white theme was continued in the church social room where the reception was held. An arrangement of white pompons centered the table, covered with an Italian cutwork cloth. Crystal candelabra with pale green tapers stood on either side of the central arrangement. A green and white tiered and columned cake was served from one end of the table with lime punch in a crystal bowl opposite. Mrs. Freddie Russell and Mrs. Nixie Neel served the cake and alternating at the punch bowl were Mrs. Eunice Strong and Mrs. Larry Richard.

A small table holding the bride's book was lighted by a memory candle. Miss Linda Griggs registered the guests. Misses Beverly Rawls, Jan Neel, Alice Yeldell and Sue Shirley were tea girls and Mrs. Menice Rawls Sr., acted as circulating hostess.

White tulle rice bags tied with emerald ribbon were given out by Misses Carol Russell, Donna Yeldell, Susan Kelly and Mary Kelly Richard.

Handbags For School Lead Varied Life

High scorers in the fashion class this fall are large, spacious bags of smooth, grained and sueded leather that combines the roominess which a busy coed needs with the style and color sparkle she prizes.

Her favorite handbag shape this semester is a long, lean leather envelope with an easily - grasped short handle — ideal for an armful of books. Simple, almost severe in line, envelopes depend on the lustrous beauty and rich suppleness of the leather to highlight matched separates, clean - cut fall suits and fluid coats.

Other silhouettes popular with teenage girls are the huge leather totes or "feedbags" that hold everything, including her lunch. Pouches, satchels, clutches and a variety of boxes are favored, too.

A smart girl frequently carries a daytime clutch which doubles in leather as a dressy date bag. Leather colors this fall include gold, which complements all the fall apparel colors, sparkling greens, deep plums and earth browns.

Ah, summer! Ideal season to have an out-of-town grandmother with whom to spend some time. A popular pair here this week were PATTIE and ANNE PIERSON of Alexandria, guests of their grandparents, the ELMER SLAGLES, and great-grandmother, MAE WOOTEN on South Grand street.

Anna invited a group of contemporaries for lunch with the visitors at home on Monday. 'Twas a pink party, with pink magic lilies used throughout the house and pale pink crepe myrtle centered the dining table. After a first course of strawberries floating in pink punch, served in the living room, the girls served their plates from the buffet and were seated at three smaller tables.

The menu included chicken breasts in mushroom sauce, stuffed baked potatoes, English peas, blushing pears with cream cheese, and a pink and white marshmallow and cherry dessert.

Guests invited to share this party with Pattie and Anne were SUSAN JOHNS, MARGARET ANN MILES, ELAINE HANNA, BETSY TAYLOR, J. LEE LAMB of Cookeville, Tenn., NITA ROBERSON, BONNIE BANCROFT, MARIANNE SALISBURY, LIL SHAW, and ANN MURPHY.

Tuesday morning Marianne invited a group for an informal party at her house. Games, cards, and snacking were the order of the day . . . Later that afternoon, Betsy was hostess for swimming and hamburgers at Bayou DeSiard Country Club.

Lil's compliment to the visitors was a bayou party at her home on the Loop Road Wednesday from eleven until two. A picnic lunch consisting of fried chicken, devilled eggs, potato chips, lady fingers and Brownies was served on the lawn facing the water. Swimming and water skiing highlighted the day for fourteen girls who attended.

That evening, Ann Murphy invited a group for supper at home, also in honor of Pattie and Anne's visit. A plate featuring shrimp salad and congealed salads was served, followed by homemade peach ice cream for dessert.

PARTY OF THE SEASON for grown - ups was the Revelers' summer party at the Paragon Club last Saturday night. After a slow start, they danced all night. Jerry Lane and his orchestra got things underway at nine p.m., and played for "regular dancing" until 12:30 a.m. Next on the schedule, the Roller Coasters took over for a two hour session of Rock and Roll and the Twist. Quite the biggest and longest gala to be held hereabouts in blows and stretches.

CAROL WASCHKA, who leaves this week end to make her home in Alexandria, has been honored at several parties given by her friends in the junior high set. Monday afternoon SUSAN STONE invited about sixteen girls for an afternoon of badminton, cards, and games. The buffet featuring tuna sandwiches, chocolate chip cookies, and bottled soft drinks, was open all afternoon.

Thursday evening DOROTHY CULPEPPER surprised Carol with a supper party at her home. Ten boys and girls attended the party, which featured badminton outside while hamburgers barbecued, and dancing to the hi-fi later.

August seems to be the favorite month for travelling. Several parties from hereabouts are scattered around the country at this writing. The LOUIS MASUR family are in New York, where Esther, Lynn, Louis III, and Mrs Masur, Sr., will visit Louis's sister, MRS. STANLEY ALBERT in Scarsdale. Louis himself will fly on to Amsterdam and Israel, return to Marseille by boat, and return to New York from Paris. The whole family will come home together about September 1.

At the other side of the continent, Seattle is drawing numbers of visitors to its World's Fair this summer. Just back from these parts are the BEN MARSHALLS. Joy, Vee, and Bif stopped off in Wyoming for a visit with BILLIE JACKSON in Casper while Bill and Ben went on to the fair.

A trip to fair highlighted the trip taken by LILLIE WOOD, ELIZABETH ATKINSON, MARY ANN and LINDA. They were away a month, making stops in Estes Park, Colorado; Sun Valley, Idaho; Yellowstone; Lake Louise, Canada; and Mount Rushmore, North Dakota; in addition to several days at the Fair.

Another place in the west which always attracts visitors is Las Vegas. The LON HEUERS and HELEN and PASCHAL NORRIS flew out last week end in the latter's plane for four days at this fabulous oasis. They report that shows and people - watching here are unsurpassed.

Due home today from a two week's trip to the Rockies are the CAVITT COOKSTONS and daughter ELIZABETH. They were to tour some, but spend most of their time at Estes Park.

A lady party leaving this week for Mexico includes LOUISE KLAM, CHARLOTTE and ASHLEY HAMILTON. They plan about two weeks of sightseeing South of the Border.

New Orleans is close and never dull. The BOB BRIGHTS spent last week end in the Crescent City, accompanied by children KITTY and JIMMY.

Florida ranks high on Monroyans' list of places to visit. One group which holds an annual houseparty in Destin is returning home today from a week on the coast. In the party this year were the ROY KELLYS, BEN COBBS, HENRY HAMMONDS, EVANS ETHRIDGES, and DR. and MRS J. A. MICHAUD of Bastrop. And all the children, of course.

Also on the Gulf Coast are the A. L. PETERS, who are mid-way through a two-week trip. They are visiting part of the time with their children SADYE LOU and CREDILLE CALHOUN in Largo, Florida.

Due home this week end after two and a half weeks in Florida are the BURT SPERRYS, their children SUSAN and BURT, and HEIDI ROWAN and NELSON WARNER, who were guests of the young people for the trip.

JUST TWO MORE chances to see "Anniversary Waltz" at Strauss Playhouse. This final offering of the summer season closes tomorrow night after an hilarious four-night run. KAY OSLIN and JIM NUCKELS portray the couple celebrating an anniversary, with LINDA BALLENGER and BOBBY SMITH as their children. JEEFE FEEJEE CARMACK and GARLAND MOORE are seen as Kay's parents. Others in the cast are HARRELL LARY, PAT PEYTON, and JUNE SHERMAN.

In lieu of a poem today, here is a collection of Swedish folk sayings, full of pithy truth.

No one has so big a house that he does not need a good neighbor.

He is a friend to none who is a friend to all.

A peacock has too little in its head and too much in its tail.

Guests should not forget to go home.

He who has nothing but virtues is not much better than he who has nothing but faults.

He who buys what he doesn't need steals from himself.

Wisdom is in the head and not in the beard.

Don't throw away the old bucket until you know whether the new one holds water.

Being young is a fault which improves daily.

A life without love, a year without summer.

Better to suffer for the truth than be rewarded for a lie.

Envy shoots at others and wounds herself.

MISS SONJA STOVER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Stover of Monroe, will wed Lance Corporal Donald Dean Bracey, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Bracey of Oak Grove on August 18 at 6 p.m. in Forest Baptist Church. Mr. Bracey is stationed at Memphis with the Marine Aviation Detachment.

Browns Rank First

The brown family returns to the number one spot for fall. It divides its honors with such neutrals as pale camel tones and a creamy beige. Fur-colors such as beaver, nutria and otter are in the top ranking browns.

Arrange Flowers In Bread Loaf For Cook-Out

If you're having friends in for a "cook-out," try an unusual do-it-yourself flower arrangement that promises to surprise and delight your guests, and to help make your patio dinner a long-remembered affair.

Arrange a mass of brilliant summer flowers in a loaf of French bread! Simply hollow it out, line the inside with aluminum foil, and partially fill with blocks of a commercial foam flower holder pre-saturated with water, the Society of American Florists suggests.

Americanism Is Theme For Jr. Girls Unit

Members of the Junior Girls Unit of Rodney J. Hobbs Auxiliary 1809 met Saturday, August 4 at the Post Home with Miss Rita Simmons presiding.

In keeping with the Americanism program, Miss Simmons reported that an American Flag was donated by the group to their adopted home for the aged on July 4. The group also studies observes patriotic holidays and American history throughout the year and learn proper usage of the flag.

On Sunday, July 29 the Junior Girls Unit held a field trip to the National Battlefield Park in Vicksburg, Miss., for purpose of continuing study of American history.

Members were requested to collect costume jewelry, old nylon hose and western paper back books for the Veterans hospitals in Shreveport and Alexandria.

Short Gloves Back In Style

With sleeves slimmer and longer, the shorter glove becomes a basic style, while longer gloves rise up to meet the shorter sleeves of the late-day fashions.

Gloves, in kid and suede leathers, dress up Sunday go-to-meeting costumes as well as Saturday night outfits. Neutral colors and longer lengths predominate, with occasional jeweling, scalloped cuffs and cut-out designs adding fashion spice.

Americanism Is Theme For Jr. Girls Unit

Members of the Junior Girls Unit of Rodney J. Hobbs Auxiliary 1809 met Saturday, August 4 at the Post Home with Miss Rita Simmons presiding.

In keeping with the Americanism program, Miss Simmons reported that an American Flag was donated by the group to their adopted home for the aged on July 4. The group also studies observes patriotic holidays and American history throughout the year and learn proper usage of the flag.

On Sunday, July 29 the Junior Girls Unit held a field trip to the National Battlefield Park in Vicksburg, Miss., for purpose of continuing study of American history.

Members were requested to collect costume jewelry, old nylon hose and western paper back books for the Veterans hospitals in Shreveport and Alexandria.

Short Gloves Back In Style

With sleeves slimmer and longer, the shorter glove becomes a basic style, while longer gloves rise up to meet the shorter sleeves of the late-day fashions.

Gloves, in kid and suede leathers, dress up Sunday go-to-meeting costumes as well as Saturday night outfits. Neutral colors and longer lengths predominate, with occasional jeweling, scalloped cuffs and cut-out designs adding fashion spice.

IN SEVERAL CITIES

Church Groups' Attitudes Cited

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

How are Protestants, Catholics and Jews getting along with one another in America's plural society?

Not very well, according to a candid study published last week by the Union of American Hebrew Congregations.

The study was made by Eugene J. Lipman, rabbi of Temple Sinai in Washington, D.C., and Albert Vorspan, director of the Commission on Social Action of Reform Judaism. They took a close look at interfaith relationships in ten U.S. cities, ranging in size from New York to Muncie, Ind., and in geography from Boston to Los Angeles.

Their findings are set down with great frankness in a 344-page report entitled "A Tale of Ten Cities."

CONFLICTS WIDESPREAD

"The time has come for Americans to stop beguiling ourselves about the realities of our interfaith relationships," the authors assert. Despite much talk about increased understandings and declining prejudice, "religious tensions and conflicts are widespread in America today.

The study pinpoints many issues which are generating interfaith friction. The list includes birth control, bingo, censorship, child adoption, humane slaughter laws, and Sunday closing.

But the most serious source of religious discord, it reveals, is deep-seated disagreement about church-state relations in the field of education.

"Jews are militantly, occasionally almost hysterically sensitive to religious teaching in public schools," the authors report. But Catholics and most Protestant groups are unwilling to see the public schools become "Godless." And as the uproar over the Supreme Court's recent prayer decision demonstrated, they also can get pretty emotional about it.

"The most ominous reef in the whole sea of interreligious relations," the authors say "is the question of government aid to sectarian schools." Catholics feel that their parochial schools are entitled to public support in the costly task of educating one-eighth of the nation's children. But to protestants, "This is the key church-state issue," and the line against tax support for sectarian schools must be held at all costs.

As a start toward genuine "religious coexistence," they suggest that leaders of the three faiths seek opportunities to cooperate in social action projects. They cite examples from the ten cities they studied to show that interfaith effort on behalf of commonly approved civic cause is "the most promising door to improved relationships."

Church Of God Giving Reaches All-Time High

The Church of God has announced an all-time high of $1,439,000 in giving by over 2,300 congregations is the United States and Canada during the 1961-62 fiscal year.

Rev. Paul Tanner, executive director of World Service Division, which promotes the fund raising and stewardship programs of the movement, said it exceeded the previous year's total by $69,000.

Three special national offerings — at Easter, on Christ's World Service Day in June and Christmas — established new totals during the year.

The 1962-63 budget goal of the church, which has general offices here and a constituency of some 250,000 in almost 40 countries and geographical areas of the world, is $1,600,650.

YMCA BUILDS

NEW YORK (AP) — Young Men's Christian Associations around the world have raised $11,118,692 towards a goal of $16,000,000 in a "Building for Brotherhood" campaign for 116 building projects in 33 countries. So far 26 building projects have been completed and construction is underway on 52 others.

NAZARENE GIVING

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Once again, the Church of the Nazarene heads the list for per capita giving among Protestant denominations with 100,000 members or more, latest figures show. Members gave, on the average, $142.33 each to the church last year.

IN SEVERAL CITIES

Church Groups' Attitudes Cited

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

How are Protestants, Catholics and Jews getting along with one another in America's plural society?

Not very well, according to a candid study published last week by the Union of American Hebrew Congregations.

The study was made by Eugene J. Lipman, rabbi of Temple Sinai in Washington, D.C., and Albert Vorspan, director of the Commission on Social Action of Reform Judaism. They took a close look at interfaith relationships in ten U.S. cities, ranging in size from New York to Muncie, Ind., and in geography from Boston to Los Angeles.

Their findings are set down with great frankness in a 344-page report entitled "A Tale of Ten Cities."

CONFLICTS WIDESPREAD

"The time has come for Americans to stop beguiling ourselves about the realities of our interfaith relationships," the authors assert. Despite much talk about increased understandings and declining prejudice, "religious tensions and conflicts are widespread in America today.

The study pinpoints many issues which are generating interfaith friction. The list includes birth control, bingo, censorship, child adoption, humane slaughter laws, and Sunday closing.

But the most serious source of religious discord, it reveals, is deep-seated disagreement about church-state relations in the field of education.

"Jews are militantly, occasionally almost hysterically sensitive to religious teaching in public schools," the authors report. But Catholics and most Protestant groups are unwilling to see the public schools become "Godless." And as the uproar over the Supreme Court's recent prayer decision demonstrated, they also can get pretty emotional about it.

"The most ominous reef in the whole sea of interreligious relations," the authors say "is the question of government aid to sectarian schools." Catholics feel that their parochial schools are entitled to public support in the costly task of educating one-eighth of the nation's children. But to protestants, "This is the key church-state issue," and the line against tax support for sectarian schools must be held at all costs.

As a start toward genuine "religious coexistence," they suggest that leaders of the three faiths seek opportunities to cooperate in social action projects. They cite examples from the ten cities they studied to show that interfaith effort on behalf of commonly approved civic cause is "the most promising door to improved relationships."

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Many Colors And Designs

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

Several members of the Home Gardener Club with their president, Mrs. S. W. Raby, presented a flower arrangement show for the T. V. and Garden Center that was most outstanding.

These arrangements were not judged, but, those of you who saw it were asked to be the judge. Don't you agree with me that this was a blue ribbon show? This show was dedicated to an elderly member, or rather, charter member who had helped to organize the club years ago. She is Mrs. L. A. Smith, who celebrated her 94th birthday Friday.

CLIPPED BAMBOO

Mrs. S. W. Raby made an asymetrical triangle design using clipped bamboo in a tiered fashion for her main line. This line was filled in with "hen and chicken" succulents, graduating from the larger ones in the low focal area to the smaller ones for height in the design. The container was pineapple-shaped-blue into greenish tan color, placed on a round teakwood footed base.

The foliage of the bamboo and the purple wandering Jew was used as a filler. This design, oriental in feeling, would be very longlasting for the den or the living-room coffee table.

Mrs. K. R. Young used a light tan dock (dried) for the line material in her triangle design. The tallest placement was one dark brown cattail with the foliage. The container used was a ceramic urn-type in colors of rust into pale blue which blended perfectly with the colors of the dried materials.

The focal area was achieved by the placement of one large dried magnolia blossom, accented on each side by dried sea grape leaves. These leaves dry a golden brown into tan color and are flexible, making them so useful for arranging. Legend tells us that the early Florida settlers used them in place of writing paper.

SHRUB

The seagrape is a shrub or small tree that grows along the coast near salt water. Another coast material used in this arrangement was the roots of the cedar, found in the hot sand dunes of Florida. These had been cleaned so thoroughly that the color was the true cedar brown, thus blending beautifully with the colors in the other materials. This would make a wonderful longlasting den or family room arrangement.

Two ladies, Mrs. M. V. Clark and Mrs. G. C. Williams, made a very colorful triangle design using equisedium and aspidestra to form the basic line. The container was a low green bowl. Deep pink zinnias formed the focal area in a triangular pattern within the main line. Cerese celosia and small equisedium were used as filler throughout the design. Variegated caladium leaves were used low in the design blending in color with the rose colored zinnias. It was a very pleasing design for the buffet.

Mrs. M. W. Montgomery used red barberry to create the triangle line of her oriental design in a smoked glass modern compote container. Ginger lilies within the line at the focal area formed the center of interest. Liarope blossoms were used to accent the primary-vertical line, blending perfectly with the lavender color of the ginger lilies. Rocks were added to cover the holder, thus creating more feeling of the oriental art. This pleasant color combination would be ideal in almost any room, especially on the low coffee table of the living room.

Mrs. Montgomery made a second arrangement, also, a triangle, using three sansivera stalks, tiered, to form the main line of the design in a soft green compote container. Golden glow was used as the main flower following the lines within the triangle and massed at the focal area. As a filler she used variegated euonymous and low in the design she used acuba japonica foliage. It was very colorful and an ideal arrangement for a large entrance table or buffet.

GINGER LILIES

Mrs. K. R. Young chose ginger lilies with their foliage to form her second design, a symmetrical one. The container was a soft white into green urn on a round black base. The ginger leaves formed the basic line. The ginger lily blossoms were placed high in the design contrasted by a large cluster of chartreuse greencelosia. The materials in this design are long-lasting and this would be very colorful in a bedroom or on a console table in the entrance hall.

The last design for this lovely show was made by Mrs. W. R. Moseley who created a conversational piece, very interesting materials. She combined a weathered root with deep queen yucca leaves to form a modified triangle design. This formed the background for her Chinese figurine which was placed on a rock as though standing by the water's edge. This natural scene was created in a low round bowl. The outer edge was mauve colored while the lining of the bowl was a yellow-chartreuse. Adding to this setting was a piece of wood's fungus and moss at the base of the yucca leaves. The whole design was placed on a woven bamboo mat, giving it proper balance. Mrs. Moseley made the figurine herself from clay, tinting it in natural colors of tan and greens. It was a real work of art, and very interesting for a conversational arrangement.

Wednesday, the program will be brought to you by Mrs. John Lewis, flower show judge of the Louisiana Garden Club Federation of the Fifth District, a very accomplished arranger and teacher. A real treat is in store for us. She will demonstrate basic lines in flower arranging.

Camera Notes

By TOM HENSHAW

Have you ever muttered coarse four-letter words under your breath when, in the middle of an interesting picture-taking session, you had to stop everything and change a roll of film?

It used to bug me, too, until I came across a little Ansco booklet that described in some detail the contortions the old timers used to go through just to take a snapshot in bright sunlight.

The old timers in this case were Mathew Brady, Timothy O'Sullivan, Alexander Gardner and other pioneer photographers who followed the Blue and Gray armies during the Civil War.

NOT IRATE

Brady and his contemporaries never cursed while they were changing film. They didn't have time. They were too busy making their own film and rushing it through exposure to development.

The old boys who traveled in the wake of the Civil War armies never ventured farther than a good sprint from their darkroom wagons and film was the reason why.

In case you'd like to try to duplicate the century-old efforts of Brady and his cohorts, here is how to make a collodion wet plate and take a picture with it in the approved manner of the Civil War.

You start out with a spotlessly clean glass plate. Pour over it a thick collodion solution. You make that by dissolving nitrated cotton in alcohol and ether and adding a soluble iodide.

When the collodion feels tacky to the touch, bathe the plate in a silver nitrate solution to sensitize it. Then place the plate in a holder — and get ready to run.

The holder has to be placed in the camera and the plate exposed while it is still damp and it has to be hustled back to the darkroom and developed before it dries, too.

OTHER DETAILS

If, after glancing over the details of plate-making, you are still interested in experimenting, the old boys reportedly exposed their plates from five to 30 seconds, which means you'll be dealing with an intriguing ASA minus rating.

Just for kicks, I set a light meter at ASA 1 and calculated the exposure at 10 seconds at f 8 on a dull day or five seconds at f 16 in bright sunshine.

The long exposure times possibly explains why many negatives of Civil War battles were underexposed and how photographer O'Sullivan came to have three cameras shot out of his hands in the front lines.

So the next time you're bugged by having to change film at a crucial moment, think of Mathew Brady huddling in a sprinting position over a collodion wet plate in his darkroom wagon.

And the next time you bewail the fact that you can't snap a black cat in a coal mine at midnight, think of O'Sullivan holding a 30 second exposure while shot and shell whiz around him.

You never had it so good.

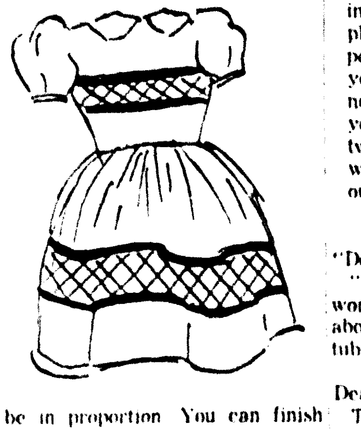
"Dear Eunice:

"Do you have any suggestions on how to lengthen a child's dress at the waist? When I lower the hem, it still doesn't help the bodice length."

Mrs. J. K.

Dear Mrs. J K

A very attractive way to lengthen a dress is to insert a strip of contrasting fabric in a print, plaid, or another color about 4 to 6 inches above the lower edge of skirt. The same idea can be carried out in the bodice, just below the armhold, with a narrower strip. The width of your contrasting fabric would depend on the size of the garment, it must be in proportion. You can finish each side of this strip where it is joined to the dress with rick-rack, or self-corded binding. The dress will last much longer and probably be more attractive than it was originally.



If you are making the dress from scratch, you could take a tuck in the bodice just above the waistline and lengthen the bodice by releasing this tuck.

ALTER SLEEVE

"Dear Eunice Farmer

"Will you please answer this in your column? Can a 'raglan' type sleeve in a ready made dress be changed to a set-in sleeve? Could any reasonably good seamstress do this alteration? My mother says 'no,' but I don't see why not."

Mrs. G. W. S.

Dear Mrs. G. W. S.

Unfortunately this alteration cannot be done successfully because of the way the sleeve has been cut. If you feel this type of sleeve is unattractive on you, try to buy only garments with set-in sleeves. Better yet—how about trying to sew?

EXTRA POCKET

"Anyone who makes sport shirts for men or boys who carry pencils, pens, or pipes in their pockets, should find my idea for making double pockets in shirts usable. The inside pocket is about one-third to one-half the width of the top pocket. Reinforce the top of the inner pocket and set it about ¼ inch below the top of the pocket and to the inner edge. You'll have no more ragged pocket hems showing up long before the shirt is worn out. And the men folks will say 'bless you'."

This suggestion for shirt pockets won for Mrs. J. F. Mackey, Norton, Tex., the week's prize Tailor Trix pressing board. And may I also add my little tip to go along with her winning idea.

Place a strip of firm, light weight fabric, about one inch wider than the pocket, on the wrong side of the shirt. This strip should be about two inches wide and should be placed on the line where your pocket will be placed. When you reinforce each of the corners at the top of the pocket, you will be stitching through two thicknesses of fabric, which will help avoid tearing out from extra strain.

REFOLD JERSEY

"Dear Eunice

"Could you give me a few words of advice in your column about cutting out a pattern from tubular jersey (wool)?"

Mrs. M. H.

Dear Mrs. M. H.

The most important hint I can give you would concern the crease that appears on both edges of the tubular jersey. Often it is so deep that it is impossible to remove, and it invariably ends up at the center front of your garment.

Instead of cutting your garment the way the fabric is folded, refold the fabric. Place the two crease lines OVER each other, which means that the center area of the fabric will now be your new fold line. Any parts of your garment that are cut on this new fold line will not have the crease in them. You will find the grain also will be more even. Sometimes it has a tendency to stretch a little on the folded edges.

Please send your suggestions to Sew Simple. Time to think about Fall Sewing, there should be many, many new ideas to share.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Lily Beauty Of Formosa

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

It was a happy day for Southern gardens when the famous old horticultural firm of James Veitch sent Charles Maries to China, Japan and Formosa in 1907.

On this trip, Maries sent home the seeds of many wonderful plants from all three of these countries. After having walked up and down mountains from one end of Japan to the other, collecting seeds and plants, his seeds were shipwrecked in sight of the shore.

Nothing daunted, he simply back-tracked and collected them all over again. Botanists and gardeners are nothing, if not patient.

COLLECTED SEEDS

Maries paid a very short visit on this trip to Formosa where he collected the seeds of a new lily in sight of Mt. Morrison. This is the white long trumpeted lily that blooms for us here in the south in late summer.

Not very many plants grow from the seashore right up to the tops of mountains 12,000 feet high. They usually are limited to at least a few thousand feet. Not so lilium formosanum, it covers Mt. Morrison from top to bottom where William R. Price observed in 1912 that there were many different forms of the trumpets which grew on tall stems six or eight feet high in the lowlands and gradually became shorter and shorter-stemmed as one ascended the mountain.

Today, we have in cultivation the shorter Formosa lilies as "Price's Variety." There are many other different types in lily catalogues, too. One thing we can boast about here in the South, however the tall types of Formosa lily like the St. Louis strain bred by Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer Burroughs of that city like us even better than they like their native home.

In the southern states, they will attain up to 12 feet of height when they bloom in late summer. (Those who file this column can refer to my own 12-foot lilies of several years back in August.)

A still stranger thing about this nearly tropical lily is that, although it is very susceptible to lily viruses, it is able to exist, side-by-side with that old virus carrier, the tiger lily.

Aphids carry viruses from one lily to the other, and these two are some of the worst for infection; so much so that many lily fanciers would not be caught with either of these species in their gardens.

However, there is a garden I know where the two live happily together and spread themselves all over the place from seeds and bulbils. In late July, the tigers have finished just in time for the Formosas to open up underneath bushes, out in the open and almost anywhere.

The 12-footers referred to above grew in my garden for several seasons until aphids finally infected them. After a trip to Europe, I found them nearly gone. However, there must have been resistant seedlings, because they have never completely disappeared. Some plants manage to seed themselves back into the garden each year in one place or the other.

School Year Resolutions Time's Here

By DAVID NYDICK

It's time now to make some resolutions for the coming school year. One should be able to help guide your child with homework, but don't do it for him.

Home assignments are an integral part of the education process. They fall into different categories. Some assignments are for practice while others are creative and require research, critical thinking, and the growth of ideas. There are, also, basic assignments which may be preparatory as background for a future lesson.

Parents rarely have control over the actual assignments. Their responsibility can be called supplementary. Teachers desire parental cooperation but they do not want responsibility taken away from the student.

The concept of learning through discovery is basic to parental help. Do not specifically correct an arithmetic problem. Do discuss the method for solving the problem and suggest reevaluation. You can help a student learn by asking searching questions which will help him to think.

Practice type assignments require only limited assistance. The concepts have been taught in the classroom. The child should be encouraged to seek assistance when it is introduced by the teacher. In such cases, the parent can help by following procedures indicated in the student's textbook. This will avoid confusion of methods. It is also possible that through discussion the child will be reminded of the classroom instruction. In any case, help should be aimed at understanding how to solve the problem rather than a memorization of steps. The teacher is pleased to give further explanation to an interested student and parent.

Bolshoi Readies 3 Showpieces

NEW YORK (AP) — Three new showpieces are being prepared by the Bolshoi Ballet for its return visit to this country and Canada beginning in September.

The major item is a full-length presentation, "Spartacus," with music by Aram Khachaturian and a cast of 200 performers. Shorter numbers are "Paganini" and "Ballet School."

TV ANNIVERSARY

Garry Moore and his tall sidekick, Durwood Kirby, are observing their 12th year as television network team. They got together as a TV duo in June, 1950 when Garry, now starred with an Emmy-winning variety hour on CBS-TV, began his daytime series on the same chain.

Pot Plants For Patio

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

If the area around your patio has the worn out appearance at this time of the year and you want to brighten it up, try flowers in portable pots. These are the latest in garden fashion. But be sure that you have a good drainage so the plant won't "drown" during a rainy spell, and it should have a wide base so it won't tip over in the wind. Also, select a container that will hold enough soil for the size of the plant.

For plenty of color the rest of the summer use cockscomb, plumbago, geranium, petunias, lantanas and marigolds.

PLANT FEEDING

If you want fall bloom from your roses, give them a feeding during this month. Roses, as well as most all flowers, will grow and bloom better if faded flowers are removed regularly to prevent the formation of fruit.

Clean up your iris bed this month by cutting dead tips from the foliage and work some bone meal into the soil. If you have not transplanted your iris, do so this month.

Other perennials which can be divided and replanted in August and early fall months include: Day lilies, ajuga and phlox. If you do this work in the fall your plants will be stronger and will bloom better than those divided in spring.

COTTONS

If you and your family, Mrs. Homemaker, are planning a trip and you want to take clothes that will look nice with little care, choose cottons. Today our modern cottons will travel and meet the neatness requirement. If your garments have a few wrinkles when you unpack them, just hang them up for a short time and the wrinkles will fall out.

The new cottons are treated with chemicals which give them a resin finish. Be sure to wash in warm or cold water. Hot water may cause creases and wrinkles that are very hard to remove. These new cottons may be hand or machine washed, but there is no need for strong detergents.

If you, Mrs. Homemaker, want to launder your feather pillows at home, it can be done with excellent results according to our home management specialist, Mrs. Hissong. She advises washing two pillows together for a balanced load and to use warm water and a detergent in the washer. The directions for washing are first, be sure the pillows get thoroughly wet, you may have to push them down into the water. Wash for five minutes, turn the pillows over in the washer by hand and agitate another five minutes.

Spin dry or extract the water by hand, but do not use the wringer. An automatic dryer is ideal for drying pillows. Allow them about two hours drying time at regular fabric setting, but after the first hour remove the pillows and shake feathers out of corners. Then complete drying. If you want to dry the pillows on the line be sure to choose a clear day when the air is dry, but do not dry them in direct sunlight. Pin the pillows to the line and turn them often while drying, fluffing each time.

FITTED SHEETS

You will be seeing something new in fitted sheets. New corners that slip on easily to eliminate lifting, tugging and broken fingernails. The new corners will cut corners in bedmaking and save wear and tear on sheets.

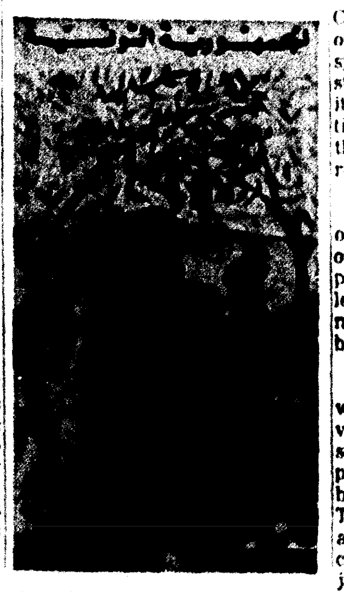
One company will have the new corners in fitted sheets in the stores by August. The corners are preshrunk for permanent fit and will be available in all sizes from cot to king width with no price increase.

Another company makes stretch corners with triangles of elasticized tubing at all four tuck points, so that any corner can be first or last to go over the mattress. The corners expand to fit the mattress so that sheets are pulled even with slight variations in mattress sizes. Built in "give" at the four pressure points diminishes strain on the sheet body from excessive pull to eliminate torn corners.

Stamp News

By SYD KRONISH

Tunisia celebrates the fifth anniversary of its independence with a set of six new stamps featuring regional costumes, reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency. The new set will depict three subjects. Two of the stamps will show richly robed women of Gabes supporting water jugs on their shoulders. The sand dunes of the desert and the tents of nomads are seen in the background. Two other stamps depict women from the Mahdia region. One woman wearing a long flowing dress dances in the foreground, while several women in the background play musical instruments. The third set of two, illustrates a woman of Hammamet seated on the beach surrounded by such products as oranges, lemons, mandarins and seashells.



These stamps were released on July 25, to mark the day on which the Tunisian Constituent Assembly deposed the Bey and formed a Republic with Habib Bourguiba as President.

Brazil has issued a new 100 Cruzeiros pink and red stamp honoring the centennial of the metric system in that country. The stamp has a white border within its perforations. The denomination appears in a red tablet at the bottom and the wording is red with a pink background.

Indonesia reports the issuance of a new set of stamps commemorating the 4th Asian games. Depicted on the stamps are the following sports: table tennis, badminton, volley ball, tennis and basketball.

Another country issuing stamps with a sports theme is Yugoslavia, which has just released a set to commemorate the European Athletic Championships to be held in Belgrade, Sept. 12-16. The stamps show such athletic activities as the pole vault, discus throw, long distance run and javelin throw. Women athletes appear on stamps sprint racing, hurdling and high jumping.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Many Colors And Designs

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

Several members of the Home Gardener Club with their president, Mrs. S. W. Raby, presented a flower arrangement show for the T. V. and Garden Center that was most outstanding.

These arrangements were not judged, but, those of you who saw it were asked to be the judge. Don't you agree with me that this was a blue ribbon show? This show was dedicated to an elderly member, or rather, charter member who had helped to organize the club years ago. She is Mrs. L. A. Smith, who celebrated her 94th birthday Friday.

CLIPPED BAMBOO

Mrs. S. W. Raby made an assymetrical triangle design using clipped bamboo in a tiered fashion for her main line. This line was filled in with "hen and chicken" succulents, graduating from the larger ones in the low focal area to the smaller ones for height in the design. The container was pineapple-shaped-blue into greenish tan color, placed on a round teakwood footed base.

The foliage of the bamboo and the purple wandering Jew was used as a filler. This design, oriental in feeling, would be very longlasting for the den or the living-room coffee table.

Mrs. K. R. Young used a light tan dock (dried) for the line material in her triangle design. The tallest placement was one dark brown cattail with the foliage. The container used was a ceramic urn-type in colors of rust into pale blue which blended perfectly with the colors of the dried materials.

The focal area was achieved by the placement of one large dried magnolia blossom, accented on each side by dried sea grape leaves. These leaves dry a golden brown into tan color and are flexible, making them so useful for arranging. Legend tells us that the early Florida settlers used them in place of writing paper.

SHRUB

The seagrape is a shrub or small tree that grows along the coast near salt water. Another coast material used in this arrangement was the roots of the cedar, found in the hot sand dunes of Florida. These had been cleaned so thoroughly that the color was the true cedar brown, thus blending beautifully with the colors in the other materials. This would make a wonderful longlasting den or family room arrangement.

Two ladies, Mrs. M. V. Clark and Mrs. G. C. Williams, made a very colorful triangle design using equisedium and aspidestra to form the basic line. The container was a low green bowl. Deep pink zinnias formed the focal area in a triangular pattern within the main line. Cerese celosia and small equisedium were used as filler throughout the design. Variegated caladium leaves were used low in the design blending in color with the rose colored zinnias. It was a very pleasing design for the buffet.

Mrs. M. W. Montgomery used red barberry to create the triangle line of her oriental design in a smoked glass modern compote container. Ginger lilies within the line at the focal area formed the center of interest. Liarope blossoms were used to accent the primary-vertical line, blending perfectly with the lavender color of the ginger lilies. Rocks were added to cover the holder, thus creating more feeling of the oriental art. This pleasant color combination would be ideal in almost any room, especially on the low coffee table of the living room.

Mrs. Montgomery made a second arrangement, also, a triangle, using three sansivera stalks, tiered, to form the main line of the design in a soft green compote container. Golden glow was used as the main flower following the lines within the triangle and massed at the focal area. As a filler she used variegated euonymous and low in the design she used acuba japonica foliage. It was very colorful and an ideal arrangement for a large entrance table or buffet.

GINGER LILIES

Mrs. K. R. Young chose ginger lilies with their foliage to form her second design, a symmetrical one. The container was a soft white into green urn on a round black base. The ginger leaves formed the basic line. The ginger lily blossoms were placed high in the design contrasted by a large cluster of chartreuse greencelosia. The materials in this design are long-lasting and this would be very colorful in a bedroom or on a console table in the entrance hall.

The last design for this lovely show was made by Mrs. W. R. Moseley who created a conversational piece, very interesting materials. She combined a weathered root with deep queen yucca leaves to form a modified triangle design. This formed the background for her Chinese figurine which was placed on a rock as though standing by the water's edge. This natural scene was created in a low round bowl. The outer edge was mauve colored while the lining of the bowl was a yellow-chartreuse. Adding to this setting was a piece of wood's fungus and moss at the base of the yucca leaves. The whole design was placed on a woven bamboo mat, giving it proper balance. Mrs. Moseley made the figurine herself from clay, tinting it in natural colors of tan and greens. It was a real work of art, and very interesting for a conversational arrangement.

Wednesday, the program will be brought to you by Mrs. John Lewis, flower show judge of the Louisiana Garden Club Federation of the Fifth District, a very accomplished arranger and teacher. A real treat is in store for us. She will demonstrate basic lines in flower arranging.

Camera Notes

By TOM HENSHAW

Have you ever muttered coarse four - letter words under your breath when, in the middle of an interesting picture - taking session, you had to stop everything and change a roll of film?

It used to bug me, too, until I came across a little Ansco booklet that described in some detail the contortions the old timers used to go through just to take a snapshot in bright sunlight.

The old timers in this case were Mathew Brady, Timothy O'Sullivan, Alexander Gardner and other pioneer photographers who followed the Blue and Gray armies during the Civil War.

NOT IRATE

Brady and his contemporaries never cursed while they were changing film. They didn't have time. They were too busy making their own film and rushing it through exposure to development.

The old boys who traveled in the wake of the Civil War armies never ventured farther than a good sprint from their darkroom wagons and film was the reason why.

In case you'd like to try to duplicate the century - old efforts of Brady and his cohorts, here is how to make a collodion wet plate and take a picture with it in the approved manner of the Civil War:

You start out with a spotlessly clean glass plate. Pour over it a thick collodion solution. You make that by dissolving nitrated cotton in alcohol and ether and adding a soluble iodide.

When the collodion feels tacky to the touch, bathe the plate in a silver nitrate solution to sensitize it. Then place the plate in a holder — and get ready to run.

The holder has to be placed in the camera and the plate exposed while it is still damp and it has to be hustled back to the darkroom and developed before it dries, too.

OTHER DETAILS

If, after glancing over the details of plate - making, you are still interested in experimenting, the old boys reportedly exposed their plates from five to 30 seconds, which means you'll be dealing with an intriguing ASA minus rating.

Just for kicks, I set a light meter at ASA 1 and calculated the exposure at 10 seconds at f-8 on a dull day or five seconds at f-16 in bright sunshine.

The long exposure times possibly explains why many negatives of Civil War battles were underexposed and how photographer O'Sullivan came to have three cameras shot out of his hands in the front lines.

So the next time you're bugged by having to change film at a crucial moment, think of Mathew Brady huddling in a sprinting position over a collodion wet plate in his darkroom wagon.

And the next time you bewail the fact that you can't snap a black cat in a coal mine at midnight, think of O'Sullivan holding a 30 second exposure while shot and shell whiz around him.

You never had it so good.

If you and your family, Mrs. Homemaker, are planning a trip and you want to take clothes that will look nice with little care, choose cottons. Today our modern cottons will travel and meet the neatness requirement. If your garments have a few wrinkles when you unpack them, just hang them up for a short time and the wrinkles will fall out.

The new cottons are treated with chemicals which give them a resin finish. Be sure to wash in warm or cold water. Hot water may cause creases and wrinkles that are very hard to remove. These new cottons may be hand or machine washed, but there is no need for strong detergents.

If you, Mrs. Homemaker, want to launder your feather pillows at home, it can be done with excellent results according to our home management specialist, Mrs. Hissong. She advises washing two pillows together for a balanced load and to use warm water and a detergent in the washer. The directions for washing are first, be sure the pillows get thoroughly wet, you may have to push them down into the water. Wash for five minutes, turn the pillows over in the washer by hand and agitate another five minutes.

Spin dry or extract the water by hand, but do not use the wringer. An automatic dryer is ideal for drying pillows. Allow them about two hours drying time at regular fabric setting, but after the first hour remove the pillows and shake feathers out of corners. Then complete drying. If you want to dry the pillows on the line be sure to choose a clear day when the air is dry, but do not dry them in direct sunlight. Pin the pillows to the line and turn them often while drying, fluffing each time.

FITTED SHEETS

You will be seeing something new in fitted sheets. New corners that slip on easily to eliminate lifting, tugging and broken fingernails. The new corners will cut corners in bedmaking and save wear and tear on sheets.

One company will have the new corners in fitted sheets in the stores by August. The corners are preshrunk for permanent fit and will be available in all sizes from cot to king width with no price increase.

Another company makes stretch corners with triangles of elasticized tubing at all four tuck points, so that any corner can be first or last to go over the mattress. The corners expand to fit the mattress so that sheets are pulled even with slight variations in mattress sizes. Built in "give" at the four pressure points diminishes strain on the sheet body from excessive pull to eliminate torn corners.

Stamp News

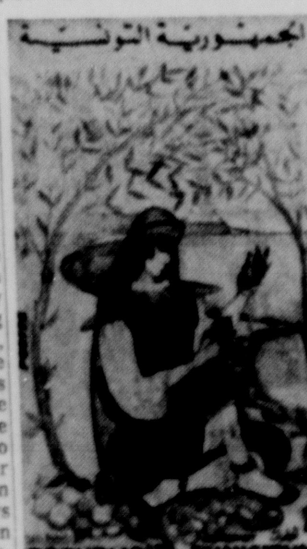
Tunisia celebrates the fifth anniversary of its independence with a set of six new stamps featuring regional costumes, reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency. The new set will depict three subjects. Two of the stamps will show richly robed women of Gabes supporting water jugs on their shoulders. The sand dunes of the desert and the tents of nomads are seen in the background. Two other stamps depict women from the Mahdia region. One woman wearing a long flowing dress dances in the foreground, while several women in the background play musical instruments. The third set of two, illustrates a woman of Hammamet seated on the beach surrounded by such products as oranges, lemons, mandarins and seashells.



These stamps were released on July 25, to mark the day on which the Tunisian Constituent Assembly deposed the Bey and formed a Republic with Habib Bourguiba as President.

Brazil has issued a new 100 Cruzeiros pink and red stamp honoring the centennial of the metric system in that country. The stamp has a white border within its perforations. The denomination appears in a red tablet at the bottom and the wording is red with a pink background.

Indonesia reports the issuance of a new set of stamps commemorating the 4th Asian games. Depicted on the stamps are the following sports: table tennis, badminton, volley ball, tennis and basketball.

Another country issuing stamps with a sports theme is Yugoslavia, which has just released a set to commemorate the European Athletic Championships to be held in Belgrade, Sept. 12-16. The stamps show such athletic activities as the pole vault, discus throw, long distance run and javelin throw. Women athletes appear on stamps sprint racing, hurdling and high jumping.

Accessories Accent Fashion

This is the season for restrained, simple fashions in coats, suits and dresses. Simple daytime dresses, overblouses, skimmers and coat dresses take to accessories like maple syrup to pancakes.

This is the season to have fun with fashions and fashion fun really begins with wardrobe-making accessories.

Handbags are smaller in size this fall; most popular shapes are the satchel, box bags, elongated bags with an envelope look and the perennially popular clutch bag.

Once again the shoulder bag seems to be due for a revival-to complement the chic, relaxed look of daytime fashions.

Treat Small Fry

Please your small fry! Use a doughnut cutter when you are cutting out cookies from rolled dough; bake both the rings and the "holes." Give the youngsters the small cookies, a bowl of frosting, sprinkles and raisins or peanuts and let them go to work.

Add Chives

Chopped chives do wonders for a plain lettuce salad.

Tito Advocates New Meet Of JFK, Premier

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) —President Tito advocates a new meeting of President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev as a way to lessen distrust and improve understanding.

Tito expressed his views on a wide range of world problems in an interview given to two American visitors Tuesday and published Saturday by the official news agency Tanjug.

The interview was obtained by Drew Pearson, a Washington columnist, and Mrs. Agnes E. Meyer, author and widow of board chairman Eugene Meyer of the Washington Post.

Tito said another meeting of Kennedy and Khrushchev, who had an informal talk in Vienna in June 1961, would be a good thing even without "great agreements."

As reported by Tanjug Tito said, "The meeting and contact alone would contribute to reducing distrust and to better learning of mutual strivings."

Tito also said Red China at present is acting independently in world politics while the Soviet Union, on the question of Formosa and the Indian-Chinese border disputes, acts appeasingly . . . to prevent conflicts."

Astronaut Says Soviet Lead In Space Is Thin

SHAWNEE, Okla. (AP)—U. S. Astronaut Leroy Gordon Cooper Jr. says the Soviet Union's latest man-in-space achievement does not necessarily put the Soviets in the lead in the space race.

"They still have bigger boosters," said Cooper, after flying in to Tinker Air Force Base from Memphis, Tenn., on a routine jet training flight.

He left immediately for Shawnee and a homecoming welcome. He'll help dedicate an armed services reserve center named for his late father, an Army colonel.

Navy Pilot Sets Illegal Low-Flying Record

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP)—A U.S. Navy pilot set an illegal low-flying record Friday by sipping his helicopter under a partially completed bridge over Scotland's River Forth.

The sudden roar of the chopper frightened laborers working on the 300-foot high span. Ferry boat passengers gazed up in alarm from the river. Minutes later telephones buzzed angrily in the offices of local authorities.

They promptly complained to the 6,600 - ton U.S.S. Tanasli, which arrived in the Forth Friday from Norfolk, Va., and which had sent the helicopter out for a maintenance check to Edinburgh Airport.

The pilot was 2-year-old Lt. Donald Calder. A Navy spokesman said he comes from New Jersey but declined to say what town.

"We can only assume he did it for kicks," the spokesman said. "He will probably see the ship's captain. I don't think the captain's too pleased but I can't say at this stage what will happen."

Calder charted his own route to the airport, the bridge was in his road and he went straight underneath it, the spokesman said.

Astronaut Says Soviet Lead In Space Is Thin

SHAWNEE, Okla. (AP)—U. S. Astronaut Leroy Gordon Cooper Jr. says the Soviet Union's latest man-in-space achievement does not necessarily put the Soviets in the lead in the space race.

"They still have bigger boosters," said Cooper, after flying in to Tinker Air Force Base from Memphis, Tenn., on a routine jet training flight.

He left immediately for Shawnee and a homecoming welcome. He'll help dedicate an armed services reserve center named for his late father, an Army colonel.

'Neutralists' Defy Control By Ben Bella

Algiers, Algeria, (UPI) — Powerful "neutralist" military forces controlling Algiers and a wide area around it have refused to bring their troops under strongman Ahmed Ben Bella's control, reliable sources said Saturday.

Ben Bella summoned the Council of Willaya (military district) four to the headquarters of his political bureau Saturday for talks on conversion to peacetime use of the military forces which his chief aide, Mohammed Khider, ordered in a broadcast Friday night.

But after the meeting Saturday afternoon, sources close to the military council said it as sticking to its position as outlined tt Sunday.

"Until the constituent assembly is elected and until the installation of Algerian institutions, the (National Liberation Army) ALN and the (National Liberation Front) FLN must remain vigilant guardians, guarantors of the revolution," the council said then.

This meant the Willaya Four Council was not willing to go along immediately with the political bureau, dominated by Ben Bella, in its demand for conversion of the revolutionary fighting units into a peacetime national army, or into political cadres or into useful trades.

Friday night his chief lieutenant, Mohammed Khider issued a declaration that was unmistakeably an order to the tough—and in many cases, undisciplined — 55,000-man ALN to submit to the bureau's authority.

136 Miles Under Construction On Louisiana Interstate Highway System

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Louisiana has completed 60 miles, mostly in heavily traveled areas, of its planned 686-mile interstate highway system. Another 136.1 miles is under construction.

A study of records furnished by Highway Director Ray Burgess showed Saturday the completed mileage cost $61 million, and that under construction $143 million.

The system's total cost over the next decade is expected to come to $1 billion.

The figures furnished by Burgess were pegged to the fiscal year - end June 30. The mileage completed and under construction came to 196.1 and the construction cost $204 million.

Burgess emphasized the Louisiana Highway Department is using its federal and state funds where the need is most urgent, where the traffic is greatest. This means in the urban areas where the costs of right of way and structures and standards are higher.

Rural roads in Louisiana, Burgess said, largely are able to take care of traffic along the projected interstate routes, so the state is going to build the country mileage later in the program.

An overall look at costs showed $297.8 million committed to the program already, and during the 1962-63 fiscal year the state expects to put in another $2 million as federal and state funds become available.

The state already has spent $198.3 million. Of this, $65.5 million was for right of way, $12.4 million for engineering and $120.4 million for construction.

Funds laid aside for specific use total $99.5 million. This is broken down into $11.5 million for right of way, $4.4 million for engineering and $83.6 million for construction.

The total of federal government apportionment is $325.3 million, of state matching funds $35.7 million, bringing the figure for available interstate funds to $361 million.

Only $297.8 million is obligated to the program since the federal government has attached strings to $63.2 million until it is definitely able to furnish this sum.

When looking at the $82 million expected to be in the program this fiscal year, $14.5 million is to be put into right of way, $2.5 million into engineering and $65 million into construction.

Here is a breakdown of mileage completed and under construction and their costs

Interstate 10 in the greater New Orleans area has 1.6 miles complete at cost of $10.2 million, and 7.9 miles under construction at cost of $31.2 million.

Interstate 10 in the Baton Rouge area has 2.2 miles complete at cost of $3.8 million and 1.9 miles under construction at cost of $13.5 million.

Interstate 10 between the Texas line and Lafayette has 10.5 miles complete at cost of $22.5 million and 58.1 miles under construction at cost of $48.3 million.

Interstate 10, across the southern part of the state, has a total of 14.3 miles complete at cost of $36.5 million and 67.9 miles under construction at cost of [illegible] million.

Interstate 20 in the Shreveport area has some substructure complete at cost of $1.1 million and 3.4 miles under construction at cost of $11.4 million.

Interstate 20 in rural areas has 32 miles complete at cost of $18.2 million and 36.3 miles under construction at cost of $30.2 million.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:

I think this idea tops them all, especially since I have nine kids (all under 12 years old) and each one enjoys it.

Cardboard cartons from the grocery store are wonderful FREE playthings! My oldest boy discovered this.

They make wonderful tables for painting, drawing and pasting. They can be discarded after being soiled — no need to wash and clean them like mother has to do when the children use the breakfast or card table.

Just cut a hole in one side of the cardboard box so the child can get his knees under the box comfortably. Such a box usually is strong enough for the children to eat on. My children love to have summer lunch on them in the yard.

These homemade tables are especially good for bedtrays, even for an adult who is ill. Cut openings on opposite sides of the box. This will allow the sick person's legs to remain stretched out.

I use a butcher knife to cut the boxes.

And, Heloise, the nicest part about such boxes is that they come in different sizes. Big ones for the oldest and tiny ones for the baby. The younger children love to decorate their "desks" with crayons!

Our girls love to paste pictures all over theirs. It keeps all the kids busy and out of mother's hair while I do my washing and ironing.

—Happy Mother

DEAR HELOISE:

For those who have a beautiful iron skillet and want to get the black scale off the bottom . . . the answer is laughably simple!

Just place the skillet in a wood fire for a few hours and the scale will turn into a fine ash and fall right off. The skillet will be like new but will need reseasoning by greasing with a little oil a few times.

I put my skillets in my fireplace (any open fire will do) with a few sticks of wood and light the fire. When the ashes have cooled, the skillet will be clean as the proverbial whistle.

—Mrs. A. R. Sager

DEAR HELOISE:

Don't let babies sleep directly on a rubber pad. Put the pad between the sheet and the mattress.

These sheets must be changed at least once a day so why let baby suffer by sleeping against the pad?

For those who do not like this method: insert the rubber sheet in a pillowslip, exactly as if you were inserting a pillow. Lay the rubber-lined pillowslip in the crib and put the little fellow right on top of it. The slips are easily changed.

—J. F. D.

DEAR HELOISE:

Talcum powder will remove grease spots from clothing.

I have used this method on black grease; also on fried meat grease spots that popped on my clothing while cooking.

I just sprinkle powder (I use baby powder) on the grease spot and sorta rub it in with my finger and roll the garment up. Next morning, I wash as usual.

I have used this on cotton, Dacron and other fabrics. Once on a very badly-stained shirt, I had to repeat this method twice.

—Betty

DEAR HELOISE:

Instead of the agonizing chore of stringing beans (the pole bean variety), my husband suggested that I use my potato peeler.

I break off each end of the bean and then peel the two sides where the strings are with the potato peeler. This might seem to waste some of the bean, but it sure beats having to string your beans by hand.

Using this method . . . your beans are absolutely stringless.

—Mrs. C. W. Glover

DEAR HELOISE:

The corks that come in the caps of soda bottles can be removed from the bottle caps with a needle and used.

After they're thoroughly dry . . . glue them on the bottom of those ash trays and vases that scratch your table tops. I usually put about three or four on the bottom of every piece of bric-a-brac in my home.

They may be cut in different shapes to fit any object, such as a narrow metal picture frame. Easy.

—Jack Steinmetz

DEAR HELOISE:

You may think this a bit sissy but we are three bachelors who use powder puffs when applying paste shoe polish.

They are thick enough so that the polish doesn't come through on our hands and they pick up and spread just the exact amount of polish on shoes without leaving a streak.

Oh, yeah, Elmer said to tell you that he also uses them to remove the shine from his bald head. And, Heloise, this is not a joke. It is most serious and if bald-headed men doubt it . . . they should try it. They know how oily their heads get. Use no powder with this. Just plain—and without shoe polish!

—Bob, Richard and Harry

DEAR HELOISE:

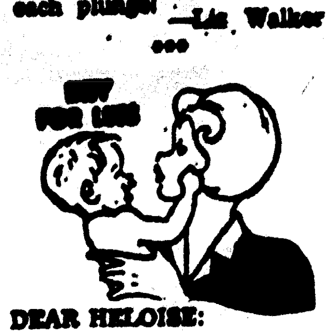
When using a plumber's plunger to do your laundry in your sink or a pail (or even a tub for that matter), try punching a few holes about the size of a dime in the top of it.

Then as you plunge your clothes up and down to get them clean . . . you can work the gadget completely under water and the results are much better.

The dirty water goes up through the little holes with each plunge!

—Liz Walker

***



DEAR HELOISE:

Great for saving money for mama — take an empty baby-powder can, fill it with corn starch and use it as a baby powder, especially during the summer months.

—M.R.R.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:

I think this idea tops them all, especially since I have nine kids (all under 12 years old) and each one enjoys it.

Cardboard cartons from the grocery store are wonderful FREE playthings! My oldest boy discovered this.

They make wonderful tables for painting, drawing and pasting. They can be discarded after being soiled — no need to wash and clean them like mother has to do when the children use the breakfast or card table.

Just cut a hole in one side of the cardboard box so the child can get his knees under the box comfortably. Such a box usually is strong enough for the children to eat on. My children love to have summer lunch on them in the yard.

These homemade tables are especially good for bedtrays, even for an adult who is ill. Cut openings on opposite sides of the box. This will allow the sick person's legs to remain stretched out.

I use a butcher knife to cut the boxes.

And, Heloise, the nicest part about such boxes is that they come in different sizes. Big ones for the oldest and tiny ones for the baby. The younger children love to decorate their "desks" with crayons!

Our girls love to paste pictures all over theirs. It keeps all the kids busy and out of mother's hair while I do my washing and ironing.

—Happy Mother

SKILLET SCALE

DEAR HELOISE:

For those who have a beautiful iron skillet and want to get the black scale off the bottom . . . the answer is laughably simple!

Just place the skillet in a wood fire for a few hours and the scale will turn into a fine ash and fall right off. The skillet will be like new but will need reseasoning by greasing with a little oil a few times.

I put my skillets in my fireplace (any open fire will do) with a few sticks of wood and light the fire. When the ashes have cooled, the skillet will be clean as the proverbial whistle.

—Mrs. A. R. Sager

COOL IDEA

DEAR HELOISE:

Don't let babies sleep directly on a rubber pad. Put the pad between the sheet and the mattress.

These sheets must be changed at least once a day so why let baby suffer by sleeping against the pad?

For those who do not like this method: insert the rubber sheet in a pillowslip, exactly as if you were inserting a pillow. Lay the rubber-lined pillowslip in the crib and put the little fellow right on top of it. The slips are easily changed.

—J. F. D.

REMOVING SPOTS

DEAR HELOISE:

Talcum powder will remove grease spots from clothing.

I have used this method on black grease; also on fried meat grease spots that popped on my clothing while cooking.

I just sprinkle powder (I use baby powder) on the grease spot and sorta rub it in with my finger and roll the garment up. Next morning, I wash as usual.

I have used this on cotton, Dacron and other fabrics. Once on a very badly-stained shirt, I had to repeat this method twice.

—Betty

STRINGING BEANS

DEAR HELOISE:

Instead of the agonizing chore of stringing beans (the pole bean variety), my husband suggested that I use my potato peeler.

I break off each end of the bean and then peel the two sides where the strings are with the potato peeler. This might seem to waste some of the bean, but it sure beats having to string your beans by hand.

Using this method . . . your beans are absolutely stringless.

—Mrs. C. W. Glover

CORKING IDEA

DEAR HELOISE:

The corks that come in the caps of soda bottles can be removed from the bottle caps with a needle and used.

After they're thoroughly dry . . . glue them on the bottom of those ash trays and vases that scratch your table tops. I usually put about three or four on the bottom of every piece of bric-a-brac in my home.

They may be cut in different shapes to fit any object, such as a narrow metal picture frame. Easy.

—Jack Steinmetz

ONE FOR THE BOOKS

DEAR HELOISE:

You may think this a bit sissy but we are three bachelors who use powder puffs when applying paste shoe polish.

They are thick enough so that the polish doesn't come through on our hands and they pick up and spread just the exact amount of polish on shoes without leaving a streak.

Oh, yeah, Elmer said to tell you that he also uses them to remove the shine from his bald head. And, Heloise, this is not a joke. It is most serious and if bald-headed men doubt it . . . they should try it. They know how oily their heads get. Use no powder with this. Just plain—and without shoe polish!

—Bob, Richard and Harry

LAUNDRY HINT

DEAR HELOISE:

When using a plumber's plunger to do your laundry in your sink or a pail (or even a tub for that matter), try punching a few holes about the size of a dime in the top of it.

Then as you plunge your clothes up and down to get them clean . . . you can work the gadget completely under water and the results are much better.

The dirty water goes up through the little holes with each plunge!

—Liz Walker

BUY FOR LESS

DEAR HELOISE:

Great for saving money for mama — take an empty baby-powder can, fill it with corn starch and use it as a baby powder, especially during the summer months.

—M.R.R.

Tear Gas Battle Erupts At Berlin Wall

Red Astronauts Stay In Orbit In Twin Flight

MOSCOW (AP)—Two Soviet astronauts hurtled on through space today in an historic double flight that once more put the Soviet Union ahead in the race to the moon.

Tass said the two spaceships traveled so close to each other the astronauts could see each other and converse by radio.

Tracking of the Vostoks in Japan and Ohio indicated they were about 75 miles apart—a hair's breadth in terms of outer space—much of Sunday. But the Sohio Research Center in Cleveland said that by Sunday night they had moved 385 miles apart.

Moscow radio said that by noon —4 a.m. EST—Maj. Andrian Nikolayev, 32, in Vostok III, had made 33 orbits and journeyed more than 828,444 miles since his blastoff early Saturday.

Vostok IV carrying Lt. Col. Pavel Popovich, 31, went up on Sunday and had orbited 17 times and covered about 444,000 miles.

The cosmonauts' morning hours were devoted to breakfast, setting-up exercises, and then scientific observations, physiological and vestibular (ear) tests and psychological tests, it said.

Nikolayev had far surpassed the 17-orbit record set by Soviet Maj. Gherman Titov a year earlier in Vostok II.

The double flight marked a fantastic feat of Soviet rocketry that the United States does not hope to match until at least next year. The ability to send up a second space ship 24 hours after the first one had gone up, and bring it into orbit in the vicinity of the first ship marked an important advance toward the day when satellites can join in space for construction of a space platform from which a moon shot can be made.

British scientists also said the Soviet accomplishment could lead to the early development of military satellites that would home on such spy-in-the-sky satellites as the U.S. Midas and Samos and destroy them.

Soviet announcements so far gave no indication when the two

Cattle Sprayed With Cotton Poison; 100 Die

HARRISONBURG (Special) — One hundred head of cattle died over the week end as the result of an apparent mixture of cotton poison with cattle spray, authorities reported today.

The Catahoula Parish sheriff's department said that E. B. Knotts of Peck in north Catahoula Parish was the owner of the cattle.

The cattle were sprayed with insecticide Friday, but the spray instrument used apparently still had a certain amount of cotton poison in it, which resulted in the death of the cattle, authorities said.

They were sprayed Friday morning and by Friday afternoon 85 had died. Fifteen more were dead the next morning.

A conservative estimate placed the loss at approximately $10,000.

Knotts was reported to have some 400 cattle.

Authorities said spray - guns were used to spray the cattle.

Catahoula Parish County Agent E. E. Johnson was on his way this morning to Knott's farm to consult with him on the situation.

France-Bound

Waiting orders to leave soon for France is Lt. Doyle Malone whose wife plans to join him at an army post not yet designated. The army officer is here on leave after completing Ordnance Officers Orientation course and Officers General Supply School at Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Aberdeen, Md. Lieutenant Malone completed requirements for the bachelor's degree in general business and was commissioned a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army last January at Northeast Louisiana State College.

West Monroe Chamber of Commerce secretary Mrs. Evelyn Terrell goes on two-weeks vacation today. She plans to spend some time with her sister, Mrs. R. R. Thompson, in Oklahoma City, Okla., and will return to West Moonroe with Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Posey and their two children of Brookhaven, Miss.

Crisis Easing Temporarily In Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—Argentina's military crisis, which brought the country near civil war, appeared at least temporarily resolved today. However, intense political maneuvering continued among the army officers.

Nearly all the loyalist and rebel troops who deployed for battle at the height of the four-day crisis were reported back at their bases and the country outwardly appeared calm.

CIVIL WAR

But one officer involved in the dispute said, "We are in a civil war, a cold civil war, but a civil war to the end."

The latest crisis was patched up with the swearing in Saturday of Brig. Gen. Cornejo Saravia, 53, as the country's new war secretary.

The appointment was generally considered a victory for the rebel faction led by Gen. Federico Toranzo Montero, who forced the resignation last week of Juan Bautista Loza as secretary of war.

Several candidates were proposed before Saravia, who once helped imprison former dictator Juan D. Peron, was accepted as a compromise. He is the fifth war minister since the military ousted President Arturo Frondizi last March and installed Jose Maria Guido as president.

At one point some rebel leaders called for Guido's overthrow and the creation of a "democratic military dictatorship" to run the country for five years.

The opposing troops never clashed, and the only fatality blamed on the crisis was a fireman cut down by bullets as he drove his truck across an army-held bridge to a power station fire. Three other firemen were injured.

Famed D'Evereux Is Purchased

Purchase price for the famous old home, its furnishings, and seven adjoining acres was announced Sunday at $135,000.

YEAR OLD TODAY

Berlin Wall Is More Permanent

By WILLIAM L. Ryan
AP Special Correspondent

When Joshua fought the battle of Jericho, the people shouted, the trumpets blared and the wall came tumbling down.

The modern battle of the wall, a year old today, is entering a new and sinister phase, with no modern Joshua in sight. The barrier cutting Berlin in half looks more permanent than ever.

When the wall went up, the Communists gambled that they could get away with it. Now, a year later, the Kremlin may consider the opportunity at hand for the next gamble for big stakes in Germany.

The wall was costly in terms of propaganda. Around the non-Communist world it was denounced as a monstrosity, a device designed to imprison people and turn East Germany into a concentration camp. Why, then, was it built?

West Berlin was to the Communists, as Premier Khrushchev put it, "a bone which sticks in the throat." Walter Ulbricht, Red leader of East Germany, claimed it had cost his regime, in 1961 alone, 40 per cent of what would have been its national income because of the steady drain of young skilled labor, specialists and intellectuals who fled West. The wall was a galling demonstration of Communist failure.

For years Berlin was the escape route for hundreds of thousands. Hundreds of refugees fled westward every day. In 1961 alone, before the wall went up, 195,000 East Germans escaped to West Germany.

Soblen Seeks Second Habeas Corpus Writ

Will Go To High Court On Tuesday

LONDON (UPI) — Dr. Robert Soblen's lawyers said today they will ask Britain's high court for another writ of habeas corpus aimed at keeping the convicted Soviet spy from being sent back to the United States and life in prison.

Soblen's attorneys said they would fight "tooth and nail" an order by the home office that the psychiatrist be deported, despite Israel's El Al Airline's refusal to fly him to New York. They said they would carry the fight to the high court Tuesday.

The British government admitted Soblen, now in his 44th day on English soil, would not be deported "for a few days at least."

Soblen, 61, now seeks his second writ of habeas corpus from the high court. He was granted the first writ in challenging the validity of his detention here, but was turned down in a plea to be sent to the country of his choice.

He jumped $100,000 bail in New York last June 25 and fled to Israel to avoid beginning his prison term for wartime spying. Israel deported Soblen, but he wounded himself on a New York-bound El Al flight and had to be removed for hospitalization here July 1.

El Al has refused three orders by the British government to resume Soblen's self - interrupted flight to the United States. This resulted in the latest order that Soblen be deported "on a plane leaving the United Kingdom."

The Israeli foreign ministry said in Tel Aviv Sunday night that if El Al had obeyed the order to fly Soblen to the United States it would have been "in contradiction" to Israeli law.

The ministry said in a statement that when Soblen was expelled from Israel the country's "part in the case was terminated."

Negroes Tried To Integrate Albany Churches

ALBANY, Ga. (AP)—Singly or in small groups, Negroes tried to worship at segregated white churches in this racially troubled city but only one got past the doors on an otherwise relaxed Sabbath.

A Negro woman, Doris Derby, 22, was admitted to St. Paul's Episcopal church. Two other Negroes attended Mass at St. Teresa's Catholic church, but members of their race have worshipped there before.

TOLD TO LEAVE

Two churches turned Negroes away. A white New York minister, the Rev. Ralph Lord Roy, led two Negroes to Trinity Methodist church. He said they were asked to come back some other time.

Two Negroes who tried to attend Central Baptist church said a white man told them they would have to leave or he would summon a policeman.

The president of the Albany Movement W. G. Anderson, said it was "sacrilegious that worshippers are turned away from a house of God."

He disclosed plans for a major drive in Albany to register Negro voters and said his organization would "continue to test public facilities."

HERE ARE the Soviet Union's four cosmonauts shown during a period of their training to become spacemen. They are, from left, Andrian Nikolayev, now piloting Vostok III about the earth; Pavel Popovich, who is taking part in the current dual space flight in Vostok IV; Yuri Gagarin and Gherman Titov. No Need To Re-Examine Space Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three congressional experts have agreed that there is no need to re-examine the U.S. space program because of Russia's twin orbital shot.

Instead, they feel that the U.S. program is moving ahead and will move even faster when more powerful booster rockets are developed.

The legislators — Sens. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., and Pessard L. Holland, D-Fla., and Rep. Olin E. Teague, D-Tex. — did not appear dismayed Sunday that the United States might be behind in the race.

FEASIBLE PLAN

"We have some very solid, feasible technical plans in the same field as the Russians have," Magnuson said. "The fact that one is ahead of the other doesn't necessarily mean anything."

Magnuson and Holland are members of the Senate Space Committee. Magnuson's subcommittee approved a $3.7 billion space budget on Saturday.

Teague, a member of the House Space Committee, said, "our space program is on solid ground."

Holland saw the Soviet feat as a new challenge to the United States. He said it was a step leading up to an effort to rendezvous two capsules in space, a technique the United States also plans to attempt.

Teague said the Soviet Union had chalked up more spectacular space shots but that the United States had performed important technical feats.

And he disagreed with Magnuson's view that the Russian accomplishment had no military significance.

"Everything in space has a military significance," Teague said. "Whoever dominates space will dominate earth."

The Russian accomplishment may have some diplomatic ramifications.

William C. Foster, director of the U.S. disarmament agency, said there was some hope that it might make the Russians easier to negotiate with.

Two AF Pilots Parachute To Safety Sunday

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP) — Two Air Force pilots parachuted safely from their flaming T-33 jet trainer near England Air Force Base here Sunday night.

The Air Force said the plane was wracked by an explosion and caught fire. It identified the two pilots, who apparently escaped injury, as Col. H. B. Trimble and Capt. E. M. Mclaughlin.

The flaming plane crashed in a field about 2½ miles southeast of England AFB off Louisiana highway 28.

The pilots were held overnight at England for observation but officials said they were apparently uninjured. The plane was on a routine training flight from Little Rock AFB to Chennault AFB in Louisiana, the Air Force said.

An investigation was to be held to determine the cause of the explosion, AF officials said.

Labor Showdown Set At Meeting

CHICAGO (UPI)—The AFL-CIO National Executive Council opens its summer meeting today amid demands for showdowns with the Kennedy administration on the shorter work week and with the Teamsters union on raiding.

When both George Meany, AFL-CIO president, and his strongest rival for leadership, the United Auto Workers' Walter Reuther, favoring a reduction in the national work week, it was felt the 29-member council will endorse a cut in working hours as a means of cutting unemployment.

REDUCTION

July estimates indicated 5.3 per cent of the U.S. labor force remained jobless at the start of this month. This was a reduction from the June figure but most of the amount represented teen-agers who found jobs.

Pressure for militant action against James Hoffa's Teamsters, expelled from the AFL-CIO five years ago, will come from the Communications Workers of America (CWA) and the Seafarers International Union (SIU).

A CWA union trial board last week convicted 21 CWA leaders of conspiring to withdraw 18,000 members and affiliate them with the Teamsters. Joseph A. Beirne, CWA president, will demand that the AFL - CIO establish a rival Teamsters' union to raid the Hoffa organization.

The Seafarers have already clashed with the Teamsters in Chicago, granting a charter to a rival taxi drivers local which won bargaining rights for 4,000 cabbies from Teamsters Local 777.

In retaliation, during a recent jurisdictional clash with a Canadian seamen's union, the Teamsters offered at Detroit, Mich., to unload freighters picketed by the Seafarers.

Japanese Youth Sails Pacific In 19-Foot Boat

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A Japanese youth who crossed the Pacific alone in a 19-foot sailboat on a diet of Japanese rice, beer, sake and fresh fish wants to stay in the United States two years to learn English.

The plans of Kenichi Horie, 23, of Osaka, are somewhat clouded by the fact he arrived without passport, visa, immunization record, proof of financial stability or a sponsor.

While the U.S. Immigration Service, the Public Health Service and the Japanese consulate work on the problem, Horie is staying at the home of a consulate employe in amiable protective custody.

Horie sailed into San Francisco Bay Sunday after a three-month voyage from Osaka. The surprised U.S. Coast Guard escorted him to St. Francis yacht harbor and called for the immigration service.

WANTS TO STAY

With the aid of his Japanese-English dictionary Horie got across to officials his plan to stay two years and learn English. Then he passed around cups of sake to curious onlookers.

The Coast Guard studied the little sailboat with small cabin forward and found only a tiny radio-direction finder, sextant and a compass. No auxiliary engine or radio communications gear encumbered Horie.

"Obviously one hell of a navigator," mused one Coast Guard man.

Horie's family in Osaka was overjoyed at the news of his arrival.

The Japanese government, which had given him up for dead, said it was astounded.

Japan had denied Horie a passport on the ground the planned trip was suicidal. His family was against it, too, but explained that Horie was a determined, adventurous youth.

Horie proudly showed Coast Guardmen and reporters around his little sail boat.

His tiny cabin contained a soggy cardboard carton of books ranging from English grammars and Japanese novels to ukelele songbooks and navigation tables.

A red plastic water container was still more than half full. A side cupboard contained instant coffee, instant cream, tiny canned Japanese plums, glass vials of liquid vitamins and a can opener.

Troops Stripped By Ben Bella

ALGIERS (AP) — Ahmed Ben Bella's ruling Political Bureau today stripped guerrilla troops of their police and judicial powers in a move to bring them into a unified national army.

The six-man Political Bureau is dictating Algerian policy since Premier Ben Youssef Ben Khedda of the provisional regime stepped down to become a mere figurehead.

Reverse Riders Returning Home

BOSTON (AP) — Two Negro reverse "Freedom Riders" are on their way back to the South today after failing to get work in New Hampshire.

Ray Jones, 25, and Egbert Jones, 23, a half brother, went to Concord, N.H., where, they said, they found neither jobs nor a home which they claimed they had been promised.

They were attempting to hitch-hike back to the South.

FRANKLIN PARISH

Boy Held After Wild Night Chase

WINNSBORO (Special) — A 16-year-old Pioneer youth, lost in a silent, speechless world not of his making, today is imprisoned in the Franklin Parish jail after causing thousands of dollars of damages with a new-found love.

The youth is a deaf-mute authorities said. This morning between 2 a.m. and 2:30 a.m. he and his new-found love wrecked havoc in the parish.

According to authorities, he got into a large seed trailer - truck half filled with cotton seed, at the home of Norman Wells, who was to drive the material to Arkansas for J. L. Donnell of Swampers.

Wells lives at Crowville. His wife was awakened as the truck pulled out and her husband gave chase in an automobile as she called authorities.

Authorities said Wells overtook the truck about four miles south on the Winnsboro Road, but as he pulled up to the side of the truck, he was crowded into the ditch and his vehicle was wrecked.

Wells suffered an injured knee and back. He was treated at Rogers Clinic and released.

In the meantime, deputy sheriff J. L. Eldridge and Winnsboro policeman Louie Boyle and Marvin Bowlin headed toward Crowville and met the truck three miles north of Winnsboro. They turned and overtook the truck one mile north of Winnsboro and nar-

West Berlin Residents In Hate March

BERLIN (AP)—Border guards fought a fierce tear gas battle today as massed West Berliners screamed their hatred of the Red wall on its first anniversary.

The battle erupted in the Wilhelmstrasse, opposite the former Nazi Air Ministry. It is now the seat of East German government ministries.

East police shot a stream of water from a water cannon at West Berlin youths carrying a wooden cross along the wall.

Enraged West Berliners then hurled stones at the water cannon.

East guards then tossed tear gas grenades into the thickly massed crowd. The grenades went off with loud explosions and poured out clouds of stinging, choking gas.

GAS GRENADES

West Police immediately threw about 150 tear gas grenades over the wall. They fell all around two water cannon, which were enveloped in a thick cloud of gas.

The water cannon withdrew about 30 yards. The gasping, choking crews had to get out for fresh air.

West police were soaking wet, as were the youths carrying the cross.

A company of 100 West riot police was rushed to the scene. There were about 80 East police massed on the other side of the wall.

The West reinforcements were ordered up after thousands of Advance Peek At 1963 Plans Set Tonight

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy may offer an advance peek at his plans for a 1963 tax cut when he speaks to the nation tonight on taxes and the lagging economy.

Most observers in and out of government were convinced he would reject suggestions that a quick tax cut offers the best chance of averting any early recession.

Kennedy was likely to call attention in his 7 p.m. EDT television-radio address to his stalled requests for stand-by authority to cut taxes and launch a public works program in the event of a recession. If Congress should approve these proposals, the door would be kept open for a possible tax cut later this year.

Strong recommendations for quick tax reductions have come from such diverse quarters as the AFL-CIO adn the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

Those who were convinced that Kennedy would turn down the appeals said that for one thing, there is formidable congressional opposition to the idea of considering a deficit-expanding tax cut in the waning weeks of an election year session.

Circulation Continued In Severed Hand

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Blood continued to circulate in Joseph L. Meske's left hand today, more than 48 hours after surgeons sewed the severed hand back onto his forearm.

Meske, 52, who caught his hand in a punch press Friday, is reported in satisfactory condition at Sharp Memorial Hospital.

Physicians say it will be some time until they are certin the hand will remain alive.

Meske pulled his hand from beneath the punch press after it was amputated.

Another worker, Mark P. Doran, 57, ran to Meske, pressed the hand to the forearm and placed a tourniquet on Meske's arm. Then Doren drove Meske to the hospital.

A team of surgeons worked six hours reconnecting two major arteries, two veins, soft tissue and bones. They did not sew back a thumb severed in the accident.

A surgeon said blood clotting and infection are the major perils to the hand and that extensive surgery still will be necessary to connect bones, tendons and nerves.

Mercury Hits 102 Sunday; Another Hot One Forecast

The mercury soared to a record-smashing 102 in Monroe Sunday and little relief from the dry, scorching weather was in sight today.

The Federal Aviation Agency at Selman Field searched back through their records and said that Sunday was the hottest day on record in Monroe since August of 1954.

It was 102 once then, 103 for three days and 105 in July.

The mercury has consistantly been at or near 100 in this area for several days.

In Shreveport, the temperature was recorded as 107, hottest since 1936 when it reached 109 on August 10.

And at Winnfield, easily the "hottest little town" in the area, the mecury zoomed to 109 Sunday.

The forecast for today and Tuesday calls for more hot temperatures with the highest temperature 98 and the low 72. To make it doubly rough, the humidity index will reach a muggy 86.

The Weather Bureau, in a five-day forecast extending through next Saturday, forecast temperatures to average near to slightly above the seasonal normal. The bureau said it will be a little cooler the first part of the period but warmer again by mid-week.

Normal highs are in the low 90's and normal lows are near 70. Very little or no precipitation is indicated during the period.

The hot and dry weather continues its adverse effect on crops and pastures. Cotton is opening in most sections and although some picking has been in progress for a week or more, reports indicate that many farmers will start today.

This opening of the lower bolls is premature and much of the cotton still has undeveloped bolls. These undeveloped bolls need water and irrigation is suggested where possible.

Other Sunday temperatures include 104 at Calhoun, 103 at Columbia, 97 at Jonesville, 101 at Oak Ridge, 98 at St. Joseph, 98 at Tallulah and 101 at Winnsboro.

Poland Accused Of Violations By Wyszinski

WARSAW, Poland (AP)—Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski has accused Poland's Communist authorities of violating the constitution by shutting three Roman Catholic convents and nurseries.

The primate's protest letter, which broke a months-long lull in church-state relations, was read from Catholic pulpits throughout the Warsaw diocese.

Government officials have not given the reason for the shutdowns, but it was believed at least one nursery had been charged with violating a ban on religous classes by members of religious orders.

One person was critically injured in a three-car collision about three miles north of Monroe on U.S. 165 early Sunday.

A Bastrop woman, Mrs. Mary Farrar, 36, of route 3, Beavers Ferry Road, is in serious condition at St. Francis Hospital after suffering a crushed pelvis and numerous broken ribs in the accident. Her husband, Fred W. Farrar, was also injured but less seriously.

Drivers of the other two vehicles involved in the accident, both Negroes, were taken to the hospital for observation but released. Charges were filed against both.

Jackson backed his vehicle up to Black's car, intending to push him backward down the highway to get him started. The Farrar vehicle came along headed north at this time and hit the front of Jackson's car, which in turn smashed into Black's vehicle.

Troopers ticketed Jackson for being on the wrong side of the road and Black for having no driver's license.

Russia Is Described As Wasteland Of Suspicion

EDITOR'S NOTE — Felix R. McKnight, vice president and executive editor of the Dallas Times-Herald, is one of 13 U.S. editors who recently went on an 8,000-mile, 23-day tour of the Soviet Union. Following is a condensation of a series of articles he wrote on his findings.

By FELIX R. MCKNIGHT
Executive Editor,
Dallas Times-Herald

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The Soviet Union I saw is a wasteland of suspicion — simply because it has never been told the truth about the United States of America.

It is buried in doubt and distrust, thoroughly propagandized to view us as greedy war profiteers unconcerned about peace and the rights of man.

The Russian reads only what they want him to read and he does what he is told to do.

Only a few hours after our group of editors left an old DC3 type plane in the central Asian area of Samarkand, clutching Rosary beads and saying Methodist prayers because of a misbehaving right engine, it fell in the wilderness near Tashkent.

Sixteen were killed—one American from Detroit survived. But not a single word was printed in the newspapers. We learned of it through the American Embassy four days later.

Russians had not even been told about Telstar, the magnificent American achievement in international communications satellites, when I left the Soviet Union—although we were constantly needled about joining the Soviets in "Atoms for Peace."

The Soviet Union is a massive conglomeration of incredible contrast. It is vital and progressive in the impressive fields of science and technology—but it is pathetically primitive in the area of living.

No longer is there visible terror in the Soviet Union. Khrushchev deadened the fear of the midnight knock from the NKVD.

Nikita Khrushchev is wily, cunning, shrewd, tough, able — and determined. He stands 5 feet, 5 inches and a disproportionately small head sits atop a bulky body.

But he also stands tall and firm as premier of the U.S.S.R. and is likely to remain there for some time.

Now he has the people with him.

He has improved their lot tremendously in recent years through housing and the general elevation of living standards.

Master politician who plays a tough game of international politics, Khrushchev acts like a man who doesn't want war. But not for one minute does it mean that he will abandon the pressures that have kept the world off-balance.

The big goal is still there — world domination.

The man is wildly jealous of the United States and he will go to the limit to reach our levels. He spoke of it in his conference with us. From what I saw, he will never make it. The know-how just isn't there on too many things. The thinking, particularly on agriculture, is primitive and archaic.

Khrushchev is pushing, threatening, and goading to get their sagging agricultural program into some semblance of orderly production.

"What interests us most in America?" the premier asked in his July 13 conference with us. "It is oranization of farm production. In this field you have a great experience worthy of being studied. And the organization of agricultural work in the United States is better than in the Soviet Union. You have a better range of machinery, especially for stock farming."

But, of course, he added that "we will surpass you."

The Soviet Union, its eyes riveted on youth and the future, is bringing along the new generation in the country with tender hands. It lavishes the utmost, from kindergarten through college, on the pliable young.

In all of the Soviet Union, there are 739 higher educational institutions—and the lights burn long on the six-hour day, six-day week schedule. One of the most impressive sights in the Soviet Union is the University of Moscow.

Over the 15 republics of the Soviet Union there is a new skyline — thousands upon thousands of apartment houses.

It is the Russians' desperate drive to solve their gravest problem, housing.

If the goal is achieved 22 million apartments will be occupied by the end of 1965, conclusion of the current seven-year plan.

But construction in the main is appallingly bad and crude. Maintenance of the hastily built apartments and buildings is even worse. It is practically nil.

Mass transportation in the Soviet Union is skillfully handled, with equipment that outshines that of many American cities.

It is a fortunate man, indeed, who owns an automobile in the Soviet Union. Consequently, the burden falls on subways, motor-driven and electric buses, electric street cars, superb railroads and the one and only state-owned airline, Aeroflot.

Ninety-nine per cent of the Soviets rely on public transportation —and they get the best the state can offer.

What is the conclusion to be drawn after seeing, first hand, the fountain of communism in the Soviet Union?

Crises, tensions, and struggles for the minds of uncommitted peoples will be the world's sad lot for some time to come.

War? No signs of it — but the threat of it to plague mankind, perhaps interminably.

Communism, despite platitudes of "peaceful coexistence," plans faithfully to follow its original course—domination of the world.

Forecasters Expect 3 To 6 Hurricanes

BILOXI, Miss (AP) — Hurricane forecasters expect three to six hurricanes this season — less than in some recent years.

That's the opinion of Gordon Dunn, director of the national hurricane center for the U.S. Weather Bureau at Miami, Fla. Dunn spoke Saturday to a one-day conference on hurricane planning.

"We think the high frequency of hurricane activity will not reoccur this year," Dunn said, "but we still expect three to six before the season is over.

"This is no forecast," he added.

Dunn said weather conditions so far this summer have been very unfavorable for hurricane formation.

Wife Dies When Told Of Death

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Anna McHugh, 62, collapsed in her home and died of an apparent heart attack Sunday when she was told of the death of her husband less than an hour earlier.

The husband, Maurice, also 62, died in a hospital after suffering a skull injury in a fall down the back steps of their home last Friday.

Political Blind Spots Necessary

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy may have to develop some political blind spots in campaigning for Democratic candidates for the Senate and House.

While the President can go all-out in praise of the record of party office holders in several states, he will have to overlook some glaring defections from his New Frontiers program in urging the election of others.

In any widespread campaigning Kennedy may find himself calling for the defeat of Republicans who at times have given him vital support on issues he considers important to the success of his administration.

As a case in point, Kennedy will have to gloss over the solid backing given to him in international crises when he campaigns against Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen in Illinois.

Dirksen has fought many of Kennedy's domestic proposals. As an opposition leader in Congress he has criticized Kennedy's handling of international as well as domestic problems.

But when the chips were down in the Berlin crisis and the sending of troops to South Viet Nam, Dirksen and his House counterpart, Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, plugged the Republican guns that might have roared in protest.

Similarly, Kennedy may have some mental reservations in urging the replacement of Republican Sen. Jacob K. Javits in New York who helped frame the compromise version of the administration's bill for Social Security financing of health care for the elderly.

Kennedy has predicted that medicare will be a major issue in the campaign. If so, can he condemn the record of Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel of California, the deputy Senate Republican leader? Kuchel worked and voted for the compromise bill.

Kennedy will have to close his eyes to individual opposition to some of his major proposals in any campaigning he does for a number of Democrats up for re-election.

Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla., who got Kennedy's personal help in the primary, still is explaining his vote against the administration's health care bill. However, Smathers is not likely to need any presidential aid in the general election.

The President already has been to Arizona to endorse the re-election bid of Democratic Sen. Carl Hayden. That was before Hayden voted to kill the health care bill.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., has led the fight against a communications satellite bill the President has put on his must list for passage by this Congress. Morse has threatened to vote against the international trade bill unless Kennedy acts to aid the Northwest's ailing lumber industry.

Other opponents of the satellite bill who are running this year include Democratic Sens. Joseph S. Clark of Pennsylvania and Ernest Gruening of Alaska. Sen. John A. Carroll, D-Colo., voted last week to delay action on the bill.

Sen. Frank J. Lausche, Ohio, Democrat, voted for the health care compromise but has been critical of a number of other presidential proposals.

Report Of Soviet Troops In Cuba

The report of several thousand Russian troops landing in Cuba ties in closely with the fact that the Castro regime is in trouble. A Spanish broadcast from Miami last week reported the troop movement was in response to Castro's plea for help in the face of possible rebellion.

Official U. S. sources did not immediately confirm or deny the reports from Cuban travelers entering Florida. But the Spanish language broadcast for Cuban refugees in Florida indicated the information came from "persons in a position to know."

It is clear enough that the time is ripe for an organized show of dissatisfaction in Cuba. The [illegible] of the Cuban people has gone beyond the level of any participation in government. Free press and public elections are among the things of the past.

But Castro's Marxism, which promised [illegible] national programs in [illegible] are items as food, [illegible] obvious that everything has gone from bad to worse since the [illegible] regime and the subsequent communization of the country by Castro and [illegible] Russia and Red China.

[illegible] from inside [illegible] by U. S. concerns from the [illegible] and from a [illegible] in Havana. The tourist trade has virtually vanished and collectivization of agriculture and industry [illegible] a true show case of the [illegible].

These conclusions were put in writing by a group of competent experts, including technicians from Czechoslovakia. A copy of the study is now in the hands of a Cuban exile group in Florida. It is doubly significant in that it condemns the manner in which Castro, Guevara and other bearded comrades have ruined Cuba's economy.

Perhaps the [illegible] people rest on [illegible] Russia's dispatch of troops to Cuba. It would be a serious blow to Soviet prestige for the first Marxist [illegible] in the New World to fall apart from internal strife.

There is little doubt that Castro and his colleagues are caught up in serious economic problems. This is true regardless of whether Russian troops or teams of technicians have landed in Havana.

The people of the island have been outrageously misled by an avowed Marxist who promised freedom and brought firing squads and a police state. It makes little difference now whether the Soviets propose to take over from Castro or to support him in case of an impending revolution. The people, who used to live under a United States protectorate, can now expect only more of the same oppression which is characteristic of every communistic regime in the world.

Government Costs Continue To Rise

Last October, [illegible] ago — President Kennedy [illegible] all his Cabinet officers and federal agency heads to hold federal government employment to the minimum consistent with getting the job done.

This was commendable "belt tightening" action and was supposed to reduce the cost of running the government. But according to the latest report of Senator Harry Byrd, chairman of the joint committee on reduction of nonessential federal expenditures, costs have not retreated.

For example, in June of this year, civilian employment with the federal government rose by 34,921. Except for March, 1961, when the ranks were swollen with an army of census takers, this was the largest monthly employment increase in 10 years.

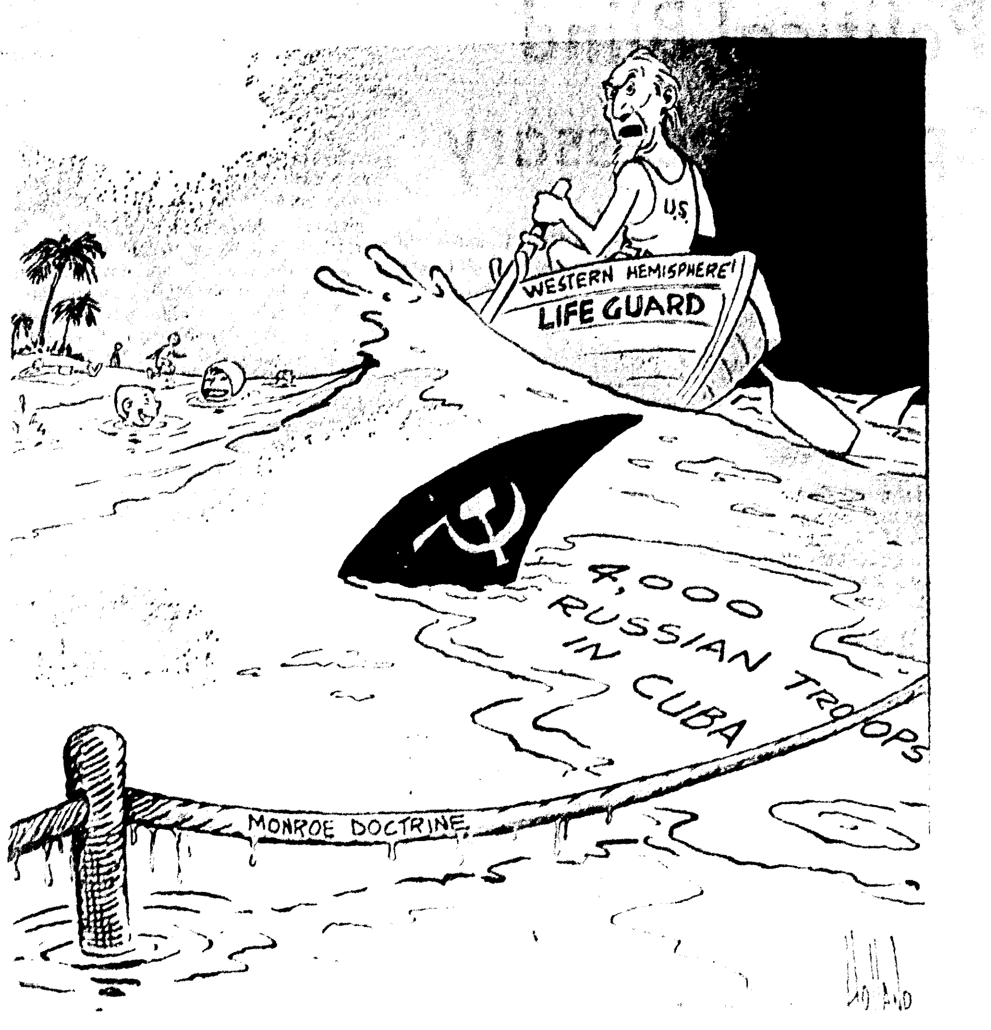
At the end of the fiscal year, the federal job total reached 2.5 million. This figure was 77,351 higher than for June, 1961, and the highest number of persons on the government payroll in 10 years.

During World War II with more than 3.5 million government civilian workers on the U. S. payroll, checks reached a total of $8 billion. In the years since, with inflation eating away at the value of the dollar, the figure reached $14 billion for the 2.4 million employes on the rolls as of June 30, 1962.

Health, Education and Welfare director Abraham Ribicoff took the President's message to heart and trimmed his departmental budget down to $76 million. At the end of the fiscal year, a Senate appropriations committee saw what he had done and wondered how such a thing could have happened. So the committee "restored" the HEW budget to around $135 million for the current fiscal year. No wonder Ribicoff resigned his post to run for the Senate.

It appears the government can't reduce expenses for spending more money just as some people "can't win for losing."

The Sharks Are Getting Bolder



Democratic Confab Speaker Hits 'Spy-Swatting'

By DAVID LAWRENCE

There is a faction in the Democratic party today which considers the fight against Communism in the United States as just a lot of nonsense.

If there is a renewed tendency in that direction it is quite possible that the Democratic party itself will be facing again the charge of being "soft on Communism" which led in part to its defeat in the 1952 Presidential and congressional elections.

It seems strange that the 13-state conference of western Democrats at Seattle should have given its time to listen to a speech by W. H. Ferry, vice president of the fund for the republic, denouncing as ineffective "spy-swatting" the efforts of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in combating communism.

MR. FERRY apparently differs with Attorney General Robert Kennedy in appraising the significance of the activities of the Communists in this country. For the attorney general has repeatedly said in public speeches that Communist subversives cannot be ignored.

Mr. Ferry said in one part of his speech:

"No one cares to have spies and saboteurs percolating through the republic, and if the FBI is not up to finding and prosecuting them, let us set up an agency that can."

Mr. Ferry talks as if all the FBI has to do to get rid of persons suspected of Communist activities is to arrest them, and that they will then, of course, be convicted and put in jail without much difficulty. But the truth of the matter is that Communist agents are not only subtle and skillful in their methods, but they know American laws very well and they have the benefit of resourceful American lawyers who manage to keep them out of jail.

ALSO, the Supreme Court of the United States has been of no little assistance on many occasions with its rulings that communism is just a kind of belief and that freedom of speech should protect those accused of furthering the Communist cause in public. It is a bit difficult to prosecute — and even for congressional and state legislative committees to investigate — when the arm of the law is thus weakened.

This means that the co-operation of the American people is most essential, and one of the most effective ways to combat communism is to educate the people concerning the insidious methods used to influence them through the press, the radio, the church, the school systems, the educational faculties and the labor unions. It is conceded that the number of Communists is small but that many innocent people have been duped and misled by the real Communist agents.

The problem nevertheless remains. It takes only one Klaus Fuchs to steal atomic secrets. The British government gave clearance to Fuchs when he came to the United States to work on the atomic bomb project, and this was accepted by the American government. Eventually, however, it was found that Fuchs conspired with others and gave information to the Communists that accelerated the time when the Soviet Union was capable of developing atomic weapons.

FOR THE past two weeks newspapers have been publishing the story of Robert Soblen who escaped from this country even though he was under $100,000 bail. He was a convicted spy sentenced to life imprisonment. But the FBI is powerless when a man is granted bail who never should have been given even temporary freedom. The FBI doesn't control the courts.

Mr. Ferry has been quite a controversial figure, and has for years taken an active part in belittling the Communist menace in this country. Not so long ago he tried to combat the efforts of the New Hampshire Legislative Committee which investigated alleged Communist infiltration of education institutions.

Mr. Ferry in his address before the 13-state Democratic party conference seemed to level his attack particularly at J. Edgar Hoover. This is not a new tactic. For many years now, many persons have been trying to damage the prestige of the head of the FBI but have not succeeded. Mr. Ferry said:

"Then Mr. Hoover warns against Soviet espionage in the U. S. This is an old line of the FBI chief, and its success year after year is a tribute to the trance into which sermons throw Americans, not excepting Congressmen. Mr. Hoover is, after all, our official spy-swatter. In these persistent reports about espionage and sabotage, is he delicately telling us that he isn't up to the job, that Red spies are running loose despite his best efforts. If in fact we are infested with these rascals as Mr. Hoover intimates, it might occur to many people that the country needs a more efficient spy-swatter."

Not content with his blows at the FBI and its efforts to ferret out Communist subversives, Mr. Ferry aimed a few swipes at American business and industry. He took issue with those who have suggested that President Kennedy now is trying to "woo" American business. Mr. Ferry said:

"INDUSTRY should not be wooed, but watched, and tolerated and reined in when it gets out of line . . . they (the corporations) are not there to be loved but to be used."

Mr. Ferry, as vice president of the fund for the republic, has a lot to say nowadays about how the money accumulated by the late Henry Ford should be spent. Mr. Ford was probably the best example of how one man can build up an individual enterprise that this country has ever seen. He might never have made the success he did if American business had been regulated to the extent that it is today. It's strange how often the funds bequeathed by men who are pilloried as "big business" are used by so-called "liberals" to create antagonisms against business as an institution.

Russian Cultural Thaw Proven False By Author's Arrest

By FULTON LEWIS, JR.

Under the enlightened rule of Nikita Khrushchev, Soviet authors have new freedom to think and write. There is behind the Iron Curtain a cultural thaw for the first time since the days of Stalin. So goes the current liberal line.

It would be difficult to convince a [illegible]-year old Soviet author named Michael Naritza of that. Naritza, a native of Leningrad, taught at the Institute of Arts in that city. He was arrested during the Great Purge in 1935 and spent five years in a prison camp. He was arrested again in 1949 and sentenced to a year in jail.

While in prison, Naritza began work on a novel, "The Song That Was Not Sung." He finished the work in 1960 and tried then to get it out of the Soviet Union.

HE GAVE copies to foreign tourists with a hand-printed note on the package which read — in Russian, German, French and English — "I beg you to transport this manuscript from our state and the Socialist states also. If you have no will or occasion to do this burn it, but do not let it be seen here and do not show it to any of our subjects. Take care from robbery."

When Naritza felt sure that a copy was safely abroad, late in 1960, he sent a copy to Premier Khrushchev with a letter explaining why he he had sent the manuscript from his native land. "Writers at home have no right to independent thought."

He asked permission to "Go with my family wherever I choose to go." Naritza has a wife and two sons, one of whom is married. He told Khrushchev:

"I do not know how hard it is for you to part from us, but as for us, we would leave the benefits of Socialism without the slightest regret."

In February, 1961, a copy of the manuscript was brought to the editors of "Grani," an anti-Communist, Russian-language magazine published in Frankfurt, Germany. In July, 1961, another copy was brought to them. They published the book last summer under the pen name N. Narymov. On October 13, 1961, Naritza was arrested by the Soviet Secret police. He has been held ever since. No date for his trial has been announced.

THE BOOK has since been published in German and in Greek. Negotiations are now underway for its publication in every European country and in Latin America. An American publisher has not yet been found.

Recent visitors of the Soviet Union have reported an intense interest in the book by Soviet writers. Some Red authors have even asked that copies of the book be smuggled to them. During a recent press conference in Rome, the well-known Soviet writer, Ilya Ehrenburg, admitted knowing of the book but refused to discuss the case.

INDIANA Congressman Richard Roudebush reports that high Administration officials attended a recent shin-dig at the Polish Embassy to celebrate the '8th anniversary of the Communist take over.

Among the American officials present: Secretary of Commerce Luther Hodges and State Department planner Charles Bohlen. Polish Ambassador Edward Drozniak told some of the guests that he was ecstatic over increased trade between Poland and the U.S.

"We are sending about 30 to 40 new products to the American market."

I'M TURNING IT UPSIDE DOWN WHILE I ASK THE BOSS FOR A RAISE.

Fan Drops In For Visit

By JIM BISHOP

It is evening. The dishes are done. Dad and I shoot a couple of racks of eight ball on the office pool table. He shuffles around in the big leather moccasins and banks the one ball cross-side. He makes it, but it isn't his type of shot. Kelly comes out and says that there is a fan of mine standing on the front porch.

"Fan?" I say, watching Dad make an identical shot on the seven ball. "You've heard the word," she says. "His name is Skip Rooney and he's staying at the Ship Ahoy. Says he's 13 years old and he's a fan. Maybe he wants to shake your hand or something."

Dad misses an easy one. He shakes his head and sits. "Did you tell him I'm in?" I say. My wife smiles. "Oh come now. Don't tell me you're above meeting a bona fide genuine fan."

"Send him in," I say. "Tell him I can say hello for a minute." Kelly disappears. She and Katherina Rook, our lovely housekeeper, are sitting with little Kathleen, who has a sore throat, a temperature, four comic books, two dolls, and a jar of candy in the same bed.

I MAKE my shot. There are footsteps and a boy stands in the doorway smiling. He has black hair, small dark eyes, an infectious grin which shows his teeth braces, long pants, a hint of dark down on his upper lip, and a belt that goes almost twice around his skinny hips. "My name is Skip Rooney," he says, holding out his hand. "My mother and I are staying next door at Ship Ahoy and I'm a fan and I read your stuff and my mother read 'The Day Christ Died' and I wonder if you mind if I stop in for a minute."

"No," I say, looking him over. "I don't mind. This is my father, Skip. John Bishop, this is Skip Rooney." My father gets to his feet, shakes hands, and sits. The boy smiles as he watches the game of pool. His eyes are alert, and, between shots, they glance at wall photos, awards, scrolls, some books on long shelves.

The kid puts me at my ease at once. "I've been thinking about a career," he said. "I graduated from school in June. Next comes high school and I'm going to be a comic." I chalk the cue carefully and stare at him. "Like Jerry Lewis," he says as an afterthought. I put the chalk down. "I do imitations already," he says.

I am impressed with Mr. Skip Rooney, aged 13. He has made decisions which college boys fear to approach. A good friend of mine, Frank Walter of Cornell, is 19, and can't make up his mind. We live in an age of fearful indecision. Boys no longer aspire to a high goal. They want to know what pays best with the least amount of study.

"SUPPOSE," I say, "you can't make it as a comic, Skip? I mean, what will you do if people don't think you are funny?" "Oh," he says, smiling modestly, "they will. I'll be funny. I write my own material already." I am stunned. While Skip chats, my father has run all the solid colored balls off the table, and now sinks the eight ball.

I start racking them. "Still," I say, "suppose." Young Mr. Rooney shrugs. "It won't happen," he says, "but if it does, I think I'll be a disk jockey. I can talk." I nod faintly. "I'm a witness to that, Skip." He shifts to the other foot as the balls are racked and Big John shatters the triangle with a hard shot.

"I don't want to take up your time," he says. Ordinarily, I would grasp at this straw, wish the stranger well, and go back to losing more slowly. However, this young man is decisive, energetic, and confident. I may not meet another one like him in a long time.

"Before you go," I say, "don't you think that the disk jockey idea is a little far-fetched? Everything depends on your voice, and whether people like to listen to it every day for hours on end. Have you given any thought to being a director if you fail at comedy?" He thinks. He looks at the black and white tile floor, rubs his chin, and then smiles again. "No," he says. "I didn't. But I am now. It's a good idea. Tell you why, Mr. Bishop. I've done a few plays already — you know, schoolkid stuff. But if I don't make it as a comic, or an actor, I can always try directing."

"IT'S THE most creative of all," I say, missing an easy hanger and scratching. "He's the man who transmutes the written word into faces and sounds and scenes. He takes the book and brings it to life." Skip nods. "Yeah," he says softly. "Yeah. He does."

Sewing For Dolls At A Profit

By MARTIN E SEGAL

Few persons over 65 play with dolls.

But we know of a woman in that age group who not only plays with dolls, but makes as much money doing so as she receives in Social Security benefits.

This Rochester, N. Y., woman — let's call her Mrs. Brown — has used her vivid imagination and skill with the needle to form a doll-making business. She restricts her output, not because she hasn't enough customers, but because she wants to keep it a part-time business.

About 10 years ago Mrs. Brown's physician suggested that she try sewing, to overcome stiffness in the joints of her hands. So she began using her needle on anything that required sewing or darning.

After Mr. Brown died, she visited around a lot. It relieved the loneliness. And she always tried to bring a little present to the families she visited.

One day, preparing to visit a niece who had a young child, Mrs. Brown looked around the house for a gift. Her sewing box and some scraps of gay cloth gave her an idea. That idea grew into her present business.

She hurriedly cut out, stuffed, and sewed a little rag doll. The eyes were buttons and the nose was a hook and eye.

NEXT TIME she visited a family with a child she made a rag dog. Soon, people began calling up for those delightful stuffed dolls.

Mrs. Brown was troubled at first because she wanted each doll to be unique. But after she had made a boy, a girl, a giraffe, a monkey, a hippopotamus and the rest of the ark animals, she didn't know what to do.

One of her child customers solved the problem. The little girl insisted she wanted "a doll just like the other one, but sad." So, instead of cutting all the red flannel mouths with upward curves, Mrs. Brown cut some with downward curves. She gave some rabbits blue eyes, and some red; some had upward pointing ears, some floppy. Some stuffed baby dolls had both eyes open, some had both eyes closed, and some had one eye open and one eye closed. And no child minded a bright purple lion or a pale pink mouse.

Today, three out of four of Mrs. Brown's rag dolls still go to individuals who stop by her house and pick out the shapes and faces that please them most. The remaining dolls go to a children's wear store that takes all she can supply.

At first, Mrs. Brown used as material the great store of worn out sheets and clothes and rags she had accumulated during 40 years of keeping house. Then she asked friends for their old rags. She found that torn nylon stockings make excellent, springy stuffing. But now she has to buy an occasional bale of washed rags.

Still, says Mrs. Brown, "It's almost scandalous how little the materials cost compared to the price of the toy. And I do my sewing while watching television."

(Your question on Social Security probably is answered in Mr. Segal's new "Security for You" booklet which you can obtain by sending 25 cents and a self-addressed, stamped, long envelope to SECURITY FOR YOU, GPO Box 1689, New York 1, N. Y.)

MY ANSWER

By BILLY GRAHAM

QUESTION: Can you tell me whether sin is a reality or an attitude of mind? H.K.

ANSWER: It is both. Read your current issue of any newspaper and you will see that sin is a tragic reality, common to men everywhere and universal all over the world. Search your own heart and mind and remember that there you will find jealousy, hate, lust, pride, covetousness, impatience, criticism, lying and many other evil things. These are sins too. As a matter of fact, many of the sins which men see and know about have their origin in the mind and their fruit in subsequent action. Sin, whether the outward manifestations of evil such as impurity, murder, stealing and the like, often spoken of as the sins of the flesh, or the inner sins of the mind and heart which may not be outwardly expressed and spoken of as the sins of the spirit; all of these are sin because they are contrary to God's holy will and a breaking of His law.

Sin is a tremendously deceptive and insidious thing. The apostle Paul wrote to the Ephesian Christians: "For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places." That is the reason that we all need a presence and a power greater than our own to overcome temptation and sin. Christ came into the world to solve this problem for us once and for all. Sin is a reality but Christ's saving power is also a reality.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

KNOCKING OFF 5 POUNDS

There must be millions of men and women who gain 5 to 10 pounds a year. This usually occurs gradually during the summer and winter. The majority consider dieting when told by others they are getting stout or when their clothes don't fit. This seasonal experience is noted frequently in the fall on switching from summer to winter suits and dresses and vice versa in the spring.

Many of these weight prone individuals were obese in the past. They enjoyed their new look and feeling of well being after slimming down. They also enjoy the good things of life and this is their limitations and have found it is easier to lose 5 or 10 pounds than 50. They don't wan to go thru that lengthy dietar program again.

How can this be done? Som return to a strict low caloric die Others cut their intake of food i half Still others avoid desser or substitute fresh fruit for pie cakes, and ice cream. No coc tails for two or three weeks oft solves the problem for those in t country club circuit.

Many persons also have foun it is easy to lose 5 pounds drinking a glass of Metrecal allied product for breakfast a lunch and eating the usual eve ing dinner. This plan is follow for a week of 10 days until t desired loss of weight is obta ed.

Fasting for intermittent peri is an alternative. This is bet tolerated by some persons th attempting to eat a little. Fast has been practiced since anc times to satisfy religious, so or personal aims.

The last two national fast d in this country were to mo President William Henry Ha son on May 14, 1841, and 1849 against the cholera epide Fasting four days by the pe may create a feeling of well ing and buoyancy. Therea weakness results from breakdown of certain fats in body.

It is obvious that all of t plans are somewhat foolish, pared with good eating its, practiced daily, to keep weight level on an even kee

Some Cloudy Skies Over U.S. Today

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There were a few wet spots and skies were cloudy in some sections but fair and warm weather prevailed in most of the nation today.

There was considerable cloud cover across the middle Mississippi Valley and the Great Lakes region. Rain fell in upper Michigan and showers dampened areas in the Ohio and Tennessee valleys.

Thundershowers spread across areas in western Oklahoma, the Texas Panhandle, southwest Texas and New Mexico. Heavy rain and hail pelted the Guymon, Okla. area, with nearly two inches of rain in a six-hour period.

Other showery areas included western Washington and the Florida keys.

Only minor temperature change were reported. The 60s and 70s prevailed across the major part of the country. The hottest spots were in the Southwest desert region with temperatures in the 90-100 degree range, with a high of 103 in Blythe, Calif.

Five Object To Rule About Neckties

BASILDON, England (AP) — Five young men walked into William Quick's pub wearing collars and neckties but no shirts. They were protesting Quick's refusal to serve any man in the saloon bar without a necktie.

"We think the rule is stupid," one of the shirtless ones, office worker David King, 23, said Sunday. "A man wants to relax in casual clothes when he goes for a drink."

Quick served the five but told them they would have to leave after one drink. They returned later with shirts and ties on.

"I found the affair amusing," said the owner, "but the rule remains.

"I want this to be a high class place. It's not proper to be without a necktie in front of the ladies."

Africans Stage Riot As Police Break Meeting

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (AP)—About 600 Africans staged a stonethrowing riot Sunday when police broke up an unauthorized trade union meeting.

Police broke up the meeting of the Southern Rhodesian Trades Union Congress by arresting its general secretary, T. Maluleke, who was addressing the crowd.

The crowd started stoning police vehicles and the police countered with tear gas.

Filet Mignon Said To Be Overrated

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Jumping to conclusions:

A filet mignon steak is a symbol of the good life to many, but actually it is one of the most overrated and tasteless of foods—an example of the victory of snobbery over real values.

If you had to choose between eating nothing but filet mignon and gravy, or nothing but rice and gravy, you'd probably last longer on the latter—and enjoy it more. Rice holds its flavor appeal longer than any other single food.

When he is with two women, the quickest way for a man to make an enemy is to light the cigarette of one—and forget to light the cigarette of the other. A wife will put up with a husband who beats her in private if he always lights her cigarette in public.

The thing fat men are most fastidious about is their feet. Their shoes usually have a better shine than those of skinny men.

A woman over 50 who tries to hide her years by wearing too much makeup looks no more foolish than a man over 50 who insists on playing tennis to prove he's still young.

An executive who brags that his door is open to anyone actually keeps that door open so that he can glance out at his pretty secretary.

Get Complete Brake Repairs At Luther's

When automobile brake linings become worn to the extent that they need replacing, do not neglect the other components of your brake system. Your brake drums may be warped or glazed from the intense heat generated by thousands of brake application or grit and carbon deposits may have cut grooves in the drum surface. When this happens, the drums should be machined and oversize brake linings fitted to the drum. If the drums are neglected, the result will be rapid wear of the new linings, noisy brakes, erratic brake action causing side pull when brakes are applied, or perhaps the brakes will become hard to apply.

Brake wheel cylinders should always be overhauled when worn brake linings are replaced whether the cylinder leaks fluid or not. New brake linings will change the position of worn rubber cups in the cylinder causing fluid leaks later that will ruin the linings. The cups should be replaced and the smooth inside surface of the wheel cylinder restored.

The brake master cylinder should be checked for proper operation and fluid leaks. Brake fluid absorbs moisture and the resulting corrosion of the metal parts of the system caused sludge and gum to form in the hydraulic system. The system should be purged and the brake fluid renewed.

Wheel bearings and hubs should be cleaned and greased. Grease seals should be inspected because grease leaking through a faulty seal will ruin brakes.

Neglect of any of the components of the brake system when the linings are replaced leaves you with an unsafe automobile.

Let LUTHER'S WHEEL ALIGNMENT SERVICE at 106 Olive Street in Monroe fix your brakes. Then you can rest assured that you have the stopping power and safety that was built into your car when it was new. The cost is not high although Luther's uses only the best material. Dial FA 2-3880 for free pickup and delivery or drive by Luther's for a fast, thorough inspection.

Get No-Roach To Rid Your Pet Of Ticks And Fleas

Ticks and fleas are a problem in the spring and summer. Once on a dog — they can invade a home. But it's so easy to control them now. All you do is get a bottle of Johnston's No-Roach . . . brush or sponge this colorless liquid where the dog sleeps and eats, and brush a few drops into his fur. The product is harmless to the dog, but will kill ticks and fleas.

Florida residents, where ticks and fleas are more abundant than elsewhere, have been using No-Roach for this purpose for years.

No-Roach is on sale at your favorite supermarket or drug store.

Housewives, of course, are very much aware of the great job No-Roach does in the kitchen to get rid of ants and cockroaches. All you do is brush Johnston's No-Roach on cabinets, baseboards, near sink — whereever you see these pests.

The colorless, odorless coating kills them and stays effective for months.

And you can also mix No-Roach with floor wax — four ounces to one pint of wax — and apply as usual, buffing lightly. Your floors will gleam, and any bug that walks across it is doomed to die.

MOON BASE PREDICTION

CHATTANOOGA (AP) — A space flight scientist says America has as good a chance "to establish a base on the moon as there was to establish one on the South Pole."

Conrad D. Swanson, assistant chief of advanced flight systems at the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., made the comment to the Chattanooga Engineers Club.

"It may be 30 years," he said, "before we have a permanent base on the moon."

NO-ROACH KILLS
ROACHES · ANTS

TO KEEP your dog free of fleas and ticks, just take a sponge or brush and rub No-Roach in his fur, and also brush where he sleeps. Relief will be forthcoming in about four nights. See story above.

Sawyer Specialist In Plastic Jobs

One of the more spectacular uses of fiberglass is the restoration of boats that have been severely damaged such as are shown in the above picture.

However, there are many industrial uses that are just as important if not more impressive. Sawyer Plastics already is engaged in the manufacture of aircraft, electrical and industrial parts and plans to tool for fiberglass agricultural tanks for ground equipment.

This is an extension of the aerial sprayer tanks.

Sawyer now makes the equipment for ground tanks that will be so constructed that it can be extended for the production of tubing, tanks and pipes six to eight feet in diameter.

This makes available for the first time in this area large diameter tubing for industrial disposal and transfer of corrosive liquids as well as storage.

Another interesting product that Sawyer Plastics has developed is an industrial plastic coating that withstands indefinite submersion with high chemical resistance.

This was developed primarily for swimming pools and foundation block walls for well curbing and to give concrete tile-like finish.

Sawyer Plastics invites any company in this area that they are not already serving to call for any problem or idea they may have involving the use or possible use of plastics.

Beauty Hopeful Does The Hula

LONG BEACH, Calif (AP) — Miss Tahiti set the pace with a tummy-twitching hula Sunday as pretty girls from 52 countries met Long Beach residents in the International Beauty Congress parade.

The girls were dressed in typical native costumes that included Miss Canada's short-skirted Mountie costume and Miss Tahiti's low-slung, moving grass skirt.

The Tahitian entry was Titana Flohr, 23.

Police estimated that 750,000 persons turned out for the parade. Thousands more saw it on local television.

booing, shouting persons massed along the wall.

A U.S. Army helicopter hovered over the crowd on the west side of the wall near Friedrichstrasse. People waved to the pilot, who waved back.

EAST BERLINERS

East Berliners tried to join in the demonstration. But Communist police kept them back. About 100 persons were seen being pushed back in the Unter den Linden and Wilhelmstrasse, in East Berlin.

Windows in buildings on the east side of the border were flung open as persons inside listened to the Western outcries of anger but Communist officials quickly shut the windows.

Workers in a big East Berlin printing plant just over the wall packed the windows and waved to the demonstrators in the West.

The din along the wall was tremendous.

The Communists brought up loudspeakers blaring martial music in an attempt to drown out the shouts from the West.

Western police said they heard the rumble of tanks in East Berlin and saw truckloads of steel-helmeted troops being deployed on streets leading to the wall.

At least 15,000 West Berliners were at various points on the wall, witnesses estimated.

Traffic and work had halted for three minutes in West Berlin to mark the anniversary.

The Freedom Bell, a model of America's Liberty Bell, tolled at the beginning and end of the brief period. But the bell was drowned out as West Berlin motorists continuously honked their horns.

Officials had wanted a silent demonstration. The motorists followed the suggestion of West Berlin newspapers which told them to sound their horns.

In a broadcast carried by all radio stations, Mayor Willie Brandt said: "In this minute we all remember the bitter injustice which has been done our city. We think about our relatives and friends, about our countrymen, who by brutal force are separated from us, and we honor the victims of the wall."

Wreaths were placed along the wall in memory of at least 37 people who have died on it during its year of existence.

One East German guard on the wall marked the day by jumping across the barricade to asylum in West Berlin.

Shrimp Boats Receive Annual Blessings

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gaily-decorated shrimp boats sailed by priests at Lafitte and at Yscloskey in Louisiana Sunday to receive the rites of the annual blessing of the fleet.

At Lafitte, several hundred lined the scores as Rev. H. C. Paul Daigle blessed the fishing fleet from aboard an anchored boat. A shrimp festival followed the ceremonies.

More than 75 shrimp vessels and oyster trawlers received the solemn blessing and sprinkling of Holy Water from Rev. Clement Schneider at Yscloskey.

Joseph Asavedo's boat, the Mally Dan, won a first place trophy as the best decorated vessel.

spaceships would be brought to earth.

An informed Soviet source said he believed the two cosmonauts would not come down today.

Sir Bernard Lovell, director of Britain's Jodrell Bank radio telescope, said in London Sunday he had been advised by Moscow sources that the flights would continue "a few days."

TOKYO (AP) — The Japanese radiowave research institute in Chiba, east of Tokyo, reported Monday that it had intercepted Soviet radio instructions to Russia's fourth spacecraft, Vostok IV, ordering it to prepare to return to earth.

A Japanese monitoring station near Tokyo said it had picked up Soviet radio instructions to Vostok IV to begin the return to earth at 2:00 a.m. EST. That hour passed with no indication either ship was coming down.

A U.S. tracking station near Johannesburg, South Africa, calculated from the orbits that both astronauts took off from a launching site in the Baikonur area near the Armenian border.

Robert Citron, chief of the Smithsonian Institution station, predicted the two ships would land near Krasny Kut, in the southeastern part of the Soviet Union.

Premier Khrushchev declared jubilantly that "by these flights the Soviet Union is the first to blaze the path to group flights in outer space."

His elation was echoed by the Soviet military newspaper Krasnaya Zvesda (Red Star), which said, "No matter what efforts it (the United States) is making, the gap between it and the U.S.S.R., far from being narrowed, is widening."

Soviet scientists hailed the flight as a triumph but avoided predictions about a moon trip.

Soviet mathematician Lazar Lyusternik told Tass the flight is evidence the Russians have developed a "new calculation technique."

The Soviet Academy of Sciences issued a statement hailing the double flight as "an outstanding contribution to the exploration and conquest of outer space by man."

"Scientists and technicians will learn from the cosmonauts what further improvements are needed in spaceships, in their control and recovery systems, in radio communications with the earth and between ships in space," it said.

Scientist R. Bayevsky said the method of taking biological data on the two spacemen had "been greatly expanded as compared with previous flights."

Writing in Pravda, Bayevsky said the recording devices had been reduced to capsule size in some instances.

He said special systems register the pulse and frequency of respiration.

rowly escaped being forced off the road as the big truck lumbered on to the intersection of Loop Road and Highway 17 in Winnsboro.

But here the chase ended. The truck overturned at the intersection and the trailer turned bottomside up, dumping its cargo.

It appeared the youth had a crushed left leg, Sheriff A. J. Stephens later related, and the boy was taken to Rogers Clinic in Winnsboro and on to E. A. Conway Memorial in Monroe.

He was released after his injury proved not serious and placed in custody of the sheriff's department. An abandoned gravel truck was found a mile south of Crowville and authorities were working on the assumption that the youth had taken it from Pioneer where it had been used on a job. The truck belonged to Ed Tickering of Wisner.

The truck was reported stolen Sunday. Sheriff Stephens said the youth would be released in custody of state juvenile authorities at Tallulah.

Meanwhile authorities familiar with the youth's history pondered where he could be placed for rehabilitation. He was lodged at Louisiana Training Institute in Monroe several months back, but officials doubted if LTI or the school for the deaf and dumb at Baton Rouge was the answer to the rehabilitation problem. Communication problems arise at LTI while proper authoritative measures might cause hardships for those in charge at Baton Rouge.

Where Busy Presses Print a $76 Million Annual Report

The clatter of giant presses, the smell of printer's ink, the sight of huge rolls of paper, the gleam of copper engraving plates—these are among the many evidences of Louisiana's dynamic printing and publishing industry.

This growing industry now accounts for an annual output valued in excess of $76 million. More than 300 printing and publishing firms operate in the state. Together, they produce 129 daily and weekly newspapers, numerous books, periodicals, pamphlets, and endless items for commercial needs. They provide employment for 7,000 people, and beyond the combined value of their output, they further stimulate Louisiana's economy through the printing of industrial, tourist and retail advertising.

Southern Bell is proud to supply the communications needs of this vital segment of Louisiana's economy. We salute the printing and publishing industry for its service of informing and entertaining the public and for its many other contributions to the general progress of our state.

Get Complete Brake Repairs At Luther's

When automobile brake linings become worn to the extent that they need replacing, do not neglect the other components of your brake system. Your brake drums may be warped or glazed from the intense heat generated by thousands of brake application or grit and carbon deposits may have cut grooves in the drum surface. When this happens, the drums should be machined and oversize brake linings fitted to the drum. If the drums are neglected, the result will be rapid wear of the new linings, noisy brakes, erratic brake action causing side pull when brakes are applied, or perhaps the brakes will become hard to apply.

Brake wheel cylinders should always be overhauled when worn brake linings are replaced whether the cylinder leaks fluid or not. New brake linings will change the position of worn rubber cups in the cylinder causing fluid leaks later that will ruin the linings. The cups should be replaced and the smooth inside surface of the wheel cylinder restored.

The brake master cylinder should be checked for proper operation and fluid leaks. Brake fluid absorbs moisture and the resulting corrosion of the metal parts of the system caused sludge and gum to form in the hydraulic system. The system should be purged and the brake fluid renewed.

Wheel bearings and hubs should be cleaned and greased. Grease seals should be inspected because grease leaking through a faulty seal will ruin brakes.

Neglect of any of the components of the brake system when the linings are replaced leaves you with an unsafe automobile.

Let LUTHER'S WHEEL ALIGNMENT SERVICE at 106 Olive Street in Monroe fix your brakes. Then you can rest assured that you have the stopping power and safety that was built into your car when it was new. The cost is not high although Luther's uses only the best material. Dial FA 2-3880 for free pickup and delivery or drive by Luther's for a fast, thorough inspection.

Get No-Roach To Rid Your Pet Of Ticks And Fleas

Ticks and fleas are a problem in the spring and summer. Once on a dog — they can invade a home. But it's so easy to control them now. All you do is get a bottle of Johnston's No-Roach . . . brush or sponge this colorless liquid where the dog sleeps and eats, and brush a few drops into his fur. The product is harmless to the dog, but will kill ticks and fleas.

Florida residents, where ticks and fleas are more abundant than elsewhere, have been using No-Roach for this purpose for years.

No-Roach is on sale at your favorite supermarket or drug store.

Housewives, of course, are very much aware of the great job No-Roach does in the kitchen to get rid of ants and cockroaches. All you do is brush Johnston's No-Roach on cabinets, baseboards, near sink — whereever you see these pests.

The colorless, odorless coating kills them and stays effective for months.

And you can also mix No-Roach with floor wax — four ounces to one pint of wax — and apply as usual, buffing lightly. Your floors will gleam, and any bug that walks across it is doomed to die.

MOON BASE PREDICTION

CHATTANOOGA (AP) — A space flight scientist says America has as good a chance "to establish a base on the moon as there was to establish one on the South Pole."

Conrad D. Swanson, assistant chief of advanced flight systems at the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., made the comment to the Chattanooga Engineers Club.

"It may be 30 years," he said, "before we have a permanent base on the moon."

TO KEEP your dog free of fleas and ticks, just take a sponge or brush and rub No-Roach in his fur, and also brush where he sleeps. Relief will be forthcoming in about four nights. See story above.

Sawyer Specialist In Plastic Jobs

One of the more spectacular uses of fiberglass is the restoration of boats that have been severely damaged such as are shown in the above picture.

However, there are many industrial uses that are just as important if not more impressive. Sawyer Plastics already is engaged in the manufacture of aircraft, electrical and industrial parts and plans to tool for fiberglass agricultural tanks for ground equipment.

This is an extension of the aerial sprayer tanks.

Sawyer now makes the equipment for ground tanks that will be so constructed that it can be extended for the production of tubing, tanks and pipes six to eight feet in diameter.

This makes available for the first time in this area large diameter tubing for industrial disposal and transfer of corrosive liquids as well as storage.

Another interesting product that Sawyer Plastics has developed is an industrial plastic coating that withstands indefinite submersion with high chemical resistance.

This was developed primarily for swimming pools and foundation block walls for well curbing and to give concrete tile-like finish.

Sawyer Plastics invites any company in this area that they are not already serving to call for any problem or idea they may have involving the use or possible use of plastics.

Beauty Hopeful Does The Hula

LONG BEACH, Calif (AP) — Miss Tahiti set the pace with a tummy-twitching hula Sunday as pretty girls from 52 countries met Long Beach residents in the International Beauty Congress parade.

The girls were dressed in typical native costumes that included Miss Canada's short-skirted Mountie costume and Miss Tahiti's low-slung, moving grass skirt.

The Tahitian entry was Titana Flohr, 23.

Police estimated that 750,000 persons turned out for the parade. Thousands more saw it on local television.

Soviet scientists hailed the flight as a triumph but avoided predictions about a moon trip.

Soviet mathematician Lazar Lyusternik told Tass the flight is evidence the Russians have developed a "new calculation technique."

The Soviet Academy of Sciences issued a statement hailing the double flight as "an outstanding contribution to the exploration and conquest of outer space by man."

"Scientists and technicians will learn from the cosmonauts what further improvements are needed in spaceships, in their control and recovery systems, in radio communications with the earth and between ships in space," it said.

Scientist R. Bayevsky said the method of taking biological data on the two spacemen had "been greatly expanded as compared with previous flights."

Writing in Pravda, Bayevsky said the recording devices had been reduced to capsule size in some instances.

He said special systems register the pulse and frequency of respiration.

Where Busy Presses Print a $76 Million Annual Report

The clatter of giant presses, the smell of printer's ink, the sight of huge rolls of paper, the gleam of copper engraving plates—these are among the many evidences of Louisiana's dynamic printing and publishing industry.

This growing industry now accounts for an annual output valued in excess of $76 million. More than 300 printing and publishing firms operate in the state. Together, they produce 129 daily and weekly newspapers, numerous books, periodicals, pamphlets, and endless items for commercial needs. They provide employment for 7,000 people, and beyond the combined value of their output, they further stimulate Louisiana's economy through the printing of industrial, tourist and retail advertising.

Southern Bell is proud to supply the communications needs of this vital segment of Louisiana's economy. We salute the printing and publishing industry for its service of informing and entertaining the public and for its many other contributions to the general progress of our state.

New Race On In National; Same Story For American

Giants Reduce Dodger Lead; Yankees Grow

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

It's a new race in the National League but the same old story in the American League.

The San Francisco Giants completed a three-game sweep of the NL's biggest series of the season with Sunday's 5-1 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers. That cut the Giants' deficit to 2½ games, ended talk of a Dodger runaway and probably means a sizzling pennant fight to the end.

The New York Yankees, meanwhile, opened up a 5½-game lead in the AL with their 2-0 triumph over the Detroit Tigers and already the figure filberts are computing that a .500-pace for the rest of the season would give the Yankees their second straight pennant under Ralph Houk.

Here's a capsule - outlook for both races: The Giants, with 44 games left have one more game to play than the Dogers and trail by only two games in the lost column. The Yankees would wind up with 94 victories if they won only 24 of their remaining 48 games—and that would mean the second-place Los Angeles Angels would have to play .650 ball to win.

Juan Marichal, 24-year-old right hander, pitched a four-hitter to win his 15th game of the season. Jose Pagan drove in three runs for the Giants.

YANK SINGLES WIN

Run - scoring singles by Roger Maris and Elston Howard produced both Yankee runs in the eighth inning before 42,996 at New York. Bill Stafford pitched a five-hitter to win his 10th game for the Yankees while Ron Kline suffered his fourth setback for Detroit.

The Cincinnati Reds whipped the New York Mets, 8-4; the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Chicago Cubs, 5-4; the Houston Colts defeated the Milwaukee Braves, 8-5, and the Philadelphia Phillies swept the St. Louis Cardinals, 7-3 and 9-7, in other NL games.

In the other AL action, the Minnesota Twins topped the Angels, 5-3; the Chicago White Sox shaded the Kansas City Athletics, 1-0; the Boston Red Sox downed the Baltimore Orioles, 4 - 1 and the Cleveland Indians rallied for a 5-3 triumph over the Washington Senators.

JAY WINS 18TH

Joey Jay won his 18th game for the Reds behind an eight-hit attack that included homers by Gordon Coleman, Leo Cardenas and Wally Post. Jay was belted for a three-run homer by Charley Neal in the first inning.

Bob Skinner drove in three runs with two homers and a single to lead the Pirates' 12-hit attack on four Cub pitchers. Relief pitcher Jack Lamabe picked up his second win for the Pirates while Don Elston was tagged with his seventh defeat. George Altman homered for the Cubs.

The Colts ended a seven-game losing streak but had to throw both Don McMahon and Russ Kemmerer into the game before halting a two-run Milwaukee rally in the ninth.

Cal McLish pitched a seven - hitter to raise his record to 8-2 in the first game and the Phillies completed the sweep by outslugging the Cardinals in the nightcap. Johnny Callison hit a two-run triple to highlight a game-winning three-run rally in the sixth inning of the first game and blasted a three-run homer in the eighth inning of the nightcap.

ERRORS HELP TWINS

Errors by Leon Wagner and pitcher Ryne Duren helped the Twins score two unearned runs in the seventh inning. Dick Stigman yielded a three-run eighth-inning homer to Felix Torres but went the route to win his seventh game.

Jim Landis' eighth-inning homer produced the only run of a pitching duel between the White Sox' Ray Herbert and Kansas City's Bill Fischer. The Athletics threatened in the eighth inning but Juan Pizarro struck out Jerry Lumpe to end the threat.

Eddie Bressoud's three - run homer was all that Earl Wilson needed to notch his ninth decision for the Red Sox. Wilson walked four and struck out nine in handing Milt Pappas his eighth defeat.

Gene Green's pair of two-run homers enabled the Indians to come from behind and give Jim Grant his 12th straight win in the Senators' home park. Grant hasn't been beaten at Washington in five years and has a 20-4 lifetime record against the Senators.

ALWORTH STARS

Revived Heinrich Igniting Pro Grid Hopes At Oakland

By JOE SARGIS
UPI Sports Writer

Don Heinrich, making a comeback after a year's absence, and rookies Lance Alworth, Jim Collier and Merlin Olsen among others were the stars of professional football's first big weekend of play.

The 31-year-old Heinrich left the coaching ranks with the New York Giants this season to give it one more whirl. And of his performance in Saturday night's 21-20 victory for the Oakland Raiders over the Boston Patriots, it seems that he may be the quarterback the lowly Raiders need to carry them out of the American Football League cellar.

Don, the Giants' No. 3 draft choice back in 1953 while he was still setting passing records at Washington, sparked Oakland's winning touchdown march which ended with fullback Alan Miller plunging over from the two-yard line late in the third period. Jackie Simpson then botted the extra point for the margin of difference.

Heinrich spent six seasons with the Giants and one as the No. 2 man for the Dallas Cowboys of the rival National Football League.

ROOKIES SPEED HELPS

Alworth, an outstanding halfback at Arkansas last year, and rookie Jerry Robinson of Grambling La.) put their speed to good use and helped set up two second quarter TD marches with quarterback Jack Kemp that led the San Diego Chargers to a 17 - 0 win over the Dallas Texans.

Olsen, the All-America lineman from Utah State, turned in an outstanding job on Washington as the Los Angeles Rams whipped the Redskins, 37-7, before a crowd of 65,201 in Memorial Coliseum. He played more than half the game on defense and before the game was over the Redskins were double and triple teaming him without notable success.

A total of eight games were played on Saturday night after the defending NFL champion Green Bay Packers beat the Dallas Cowboys, 31-7, and the Houston Oilers, defending champions in the AFL, downed the Denver Broncos, 31-17, on Friday night. In Sunday's lone game, the AFL Buffalo Bills beat the New York Titans, 20-10.

In the other Saturday night games, the New York Giants, Eastern Division champions in the NFL, frittered away an early lead and had to settle for a 21-21 tie with the St. Louis Cardinals in the first Hall of Fame game at Canton, Ohio; Jim Ninowski outdueled Milt Plum as the Cleveland Browns nipped the Detroit Lions, 17-14; a 92-yard touchdown pass from Bill Kilmer to Jim Johnson enabled the San Francisco Forty Niners to down the Minnesota Vikings, 30-24; the Baltimore Colts buried the Philadelphia Eagles, 56-28, and the Pittsburgh Steelers edged the Chicago Bears, 19 - 14, as Lou Michaels booted two field goals midway in the second quarter.

Collier, the big rookie end from Kentucky the Giants hope will replace Kyle Rote, caught a nine-yard TD toss from new quarterback Ralph Guglielmi for New York's third score and as things turned out enabled them to gain the tie with the Cardinals.

NO FIRSTS

Foreign Aquatics Stunned By Yanks

CHYAHOGA FALL, Ohio (AP)—West German and Japanese swimmers, stunned by a crew of record-happy Americans in the AAU Nationals, may get more surprises at the three-way international meet this weekend in Chicago.

The foreign aquatic aces, who failed to capture a single event in the three-day National Men's Outdoor championships which ended Sunday saw the U.S. swimmers better five listed world records and equal a sixth. In two other events, American records were set.

But U.S. swimmers and coaches agreed with Dr. Harold Henning, chairman of the AAU's swimming committee, that conditions were not the best at the 50-meter Waterworks pool.

Noting the Chicago meet pool offered a faster course, Dr. Henning predicted: "If the weather continues good, I think you'll see some new records."

The foreign guests could have it easier at Chicago, however, because of the absence of three Americans who were standouts here.

Ted Stickles has a bone chip and pulled tendons in his left elbow, and his arm goes into a cast today. Jim Counsilman, coach of the star-studded Indiana University squad, said the arm had been bad for several months and "We decided we couldn't put it off any longer."

Despite the bad elbow, Stickles bettered the listed world record in the 400-meter individual medley and won the 200-meter individual medley.

Carl Robie, Philadelphia high school boy who bettered the 200-meter butterfly world record, said he was too worn out to compete, and the same news came from Indian's Chet Jastremski, who captured the 100-meter and 200-meter breaststroke.

Tom Stock of Indiana, who lowered world standards for the 100-meter and 200-meter backstroke, said he will be at Chicago, but because of the inevitable let down after "the big one" he is not optimistic about his prospects.

"You can't get up for a meet twice in a row," observed the husky, blond youth.

Olympic veteran Murray Rose is an Australian, although he swam under the Los Angeles Athletic Club's colors here, and he will not be on the U.S. team at Chicago.

The 23-year-old Rose, who was in such a slump a few months ago he reportedly considered retiring from competition, won two events, setting American records in both.

Along the comeback trail, he gave Roy Saari, the schoolboy sensation from El Segundo, Calif., a lesson Sunday, streaking home half a pool length ahead to win the grueling 1,500-meter freestyle. Rose's victories in the 1,500 and 400-meter freestyle reversed the script of the National Indoor Meet last spring, when the 17-year-old Sarri whipped Rose in three events.

The Indianapolis Athletic Club, which is the summer home of the Indiana University swim stars, gave a good demonstration of the Americans depth when it captured first and third places in the 400-meter medley relay, setting a world record in the bargain.

The Hoosiers far outdistanced the rest of the field in team points with 124, compared with 35½ for Santa Clara, Calif. This does not include results of the diving events which were conducted in Philadelphia. Japan had 29 points and West Germany 12.

Bastrop, Forest Claim Northeast Playoff Openers

BASTROP, La. (Special) — Bastrop defeated Bonita, 2 to 1, and Forest blasted Kilbourne, 19 to 7, in the opening games of the Northeast Louisiana Baseball League's semi - final playoffs Sunday. The league plays only weekend games.

Cook and Roan was the winning battery for Bastrop.

Gammill and Vining, sharing the Forest pitching, delivered three home runs, Vining getting two of them.

Game Cancelled

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Patriots and New York Titans of the American Football League have cancelled their scheduled exhibition game at Atlanta on Aug. 25 because of poor attendance in the Georgia City.

PUTTER MAY COOL

Palmer Taking 5 Weeks' Rest

AKRON, Ohio (UPI)—Arnold Palmer, golf's golden boy, has his putter working again, but his fellow pros won't have to worry about it for the next five weeks.

"I've decided to lay off tournaments until Seattle five weeks from now," Palmer said today. "Perhaps it's a mistake because I am putting better now than I have at any time since 1960."

That was the year he set the all - time money winning record for a season with a total of $75,262.85.

He surpassed that Sunday, "with my putter doing magic again," when he won the $9,000 top money in the $50,000 American Golf Classic to run his 1962 earnings to $80,198.

While his next tournament appearance will not be until Seattle in September he, meanwhile, will play some half dozen exhibition matches and then return here at the Firestone Country Club for the "World Series" of golf on Sept. 8 and 9. In that one, Palmer, the Masters and British Open champion, will meet U.S. Open champion Jack Nicklaus and PGA champion Gary Player with first prize money of $50,000.

"I'd like to win it," Palmer said, "and if I can keep on putting like I did in the classic I could."

He had 30 putts Sunday as he matched Firestone's par 70 with four bogeys and four birdies. That gave him a total of 116 putts for the 72 holes as he wound up with a total of 276, four-under-par for the 7,165-yard course.

That 276 was five strokes better than runner - up Mason Rudolph, who had a final round 31-35—66 for a total of 281 and second place money of $4,600.

Eight strokes back at 284—and worth $2,500 each — came Billy Maxwell, Al Geiberger, Don January and Nicklaus. Tied for seventh place — 11 strokes back of Palmer, came Frank Stranahan and former U.S. Open champion Gene Littler.

GOALBY FADES BADLY

Then it was Bob Goalby, who soared to a final round six-over-par 76, and Fred Hawkins, tied at 288. A stroke back of them came Julius Boros, Phil Rodgers, Jackie Burke, George Knudson, Mac Main and defending champion Jay Hebert. Player and Mike Souchak were at 290 with Art Wall, Dow Finsterwald, Doug Ford and Paul Harney at 291.

Sam Snead, golf's all - time money winner, could do no better than 297—23 strokes behind Palmer, who one of these days will supplant the West Virginian as golf's biggest money man.

While Palmer failed to achieve his golfing objective this year—a sweep of the Masters, U.S. and British Opens and PGA championships—he did establish a new all-time money winning record. his official total does not include the $3,125 he picked up in bonus money here by leading the field at the end of the first, second and third rounds — worth $1,000 each—and picking up $125 for being one of four golfers who had the best second round

Rookie Racer Dies In Roll On Speedway

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (UPI) — Rookie race driver Jackson Hagemeyer of Indianapolis, Ind., was killed in qualifications at a sprint car race here Sunday as his 9-year-old son looked on, unaware he had just seen his father die.

Hagemeyer was killed when he lost control of the car on the first turn on the dirt track at the Vigo County Fairgrounds.

Witnesses said his car skidded across the track after hitting a rut and then leaped into the air where it rolled over several times before hitting the ground upside down.

The 28-year-old driver was apparently killed instantly. He was dead on arrival at St. Anthony's Hospital in Terre Haute.

Hagemeyer was the second driver to die of injuries in a crash at the track this season. Stan Bowman of Covington, Ky., died last June after an accident here.

Louisiana Club Defending Title

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Ponchatoula, La., will defend its 1961 title when the national nonpro baseball tournament opens here Friday night. Also competing in the double-elimination tourney are last year's runnerup, Grand Rapids, Mich., and the third place finisher, Hollandale, Miss. The favorite is Cherokee, Okla., which won its fifth straight state title and has a 24-0 record.

Penn State's 1947 Cotton Bowl football team limited the opposition to 17 yards per game along the ground.

Turley Reported In Last Season On Active List

NEW YORK (AP)—Bob Turley, once the ace of the New York Yankee pitching staff, is in his last year as an active player, the New York Mirror said Monday.

The 31-year-old right-hander will manage San Juan in the Puerto Rico winter league as the first step toward becoming a coach or manager in the Yankee minor league system, the newspaper said.

Turley and the Yankees left immediately after their 2-0 victory over Detroit Sunday and neither the pitcher nor Yankee officials were immediately available for comment.

Turley's best season was in 1958 when he won 21 games and was voted the Cy Young trophy as the outstanding pitcher in the majors.

ALTHOUGH DISAPPOINTING

Detroit Policies To Go Unchanged

DETROIT (AP)—John E. Fetzer, the man who signs the checks and pays the bill, is sharply disappointed with his Detroit Tigers now staggering along in seventh place in the American League.

But there is no panic at the top in Tiger Stadium.

Fetzer insists the Tigers will not change their policies, will not undergo a shakeup in the higher echelons because they have failed to challenge for the pennant many baseball men thought they could win after being so close a year ago.

It is nearly two years since Fetzer became sole owner of a club that had just finished sixth.

In October 1960, the front office was in chaos and the club was without a manager. Joe Gordon had just quit. Bill DeWitt, the president and general manager, was deposed in one of Fetzer's first moves. Bob Scheffing was hired as manager. Rick Ferrell, a vice president, again assumed the general manager's duties DeWitt had taken away.

Just before flying to New York, where his team lost three of four in a weekend series with the first-place Yankees, Fetzer discussed the perennial question, "What's wrong with the Tigers?"

Question—What has been the most disappointing thing about the club?

Answer—"I've been disappointed naturally. There was reason to think we'd be better off. But there was no foreseeing our reverses. We've had a streak of bad luck. Injuries, like those to Frank Lary and Al Kaline, were part of it. After a while I began to wonder about being snakebit. We started losing, things got worse and the problems mounted."

Q—What do you think is wrong with the team? Why isn't it winning?

A—"We lost a fellow like Lary, who is a bellwether. When he's in there producing, we're winning. Even on days when he's not pitching but just on the bench, he helps the club and gives it a lift. This is a psychological factor and you can't assess it. I don't know how much sophomoritis enters into it. Last year we had several good first-year players (Jake Wood, Steve Boros) who haven't done as well this year."

"I felt all the time when Kaline was out maybe we were placing too much emphasis on the fact he wasn't there. Maybe we could have picked ourselves up anyway. There's no doubt about it, lack of hitting has hurt us. We're last in hitting after being way up ahead last year. Our defense has been leaky and we're last in making double plays.

"I think all of this illustrates a state of mind. I place a lot of importance on how a club thinks. It's good when it's thinking right, bad when it is not thinking right. A man at bat is not going to get a hit when he is thinking he will not get a hit.

Q—What about the managing? Are you satisfied with this season?

A—"Yes, I'm absolutely satisfied with the managing. Scheffing can't do the hitting for the players. He can't do the pitching. Bob has the nerve and courage to go with youth.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain — without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another,"very striking improvement" was reported and verified by a doctor's observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all — this improvement was maintained in cases where a doctor's observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®) — the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H®. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug counters.

Muslim Leader Asks Partition

By IRWIN FRANK

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — The leader of the Black Muslim movement repeated Sunday his request that part of the United States be given to the Negro people as their own homeland.

Elijah Muhammad, 64, a Georgia Negro, told a crowd at Kiel Auditorium the United States should say, "I'll give you a nice place to live and I will help you get started."

Police Capt. John McGovern estimated the crowd at 3,500 in the city convention hall, which McGovern said will hold 14,000. About 100 persons attending the talk were whites. They were seated together. Everyone was searched once or twice for weapons before being allowed in the main auditorium.

Muhammad, speaking to whites in the nation, said, "Don't keep us just to beat on."

He said that if the Negro people were given part of the nation as their own, "maybe God might have mercy on your soul."

Most of his two-hour talk was devoted to his interpretation of the Bible and the Islamic religion. His talk was interrupted frequently by applause.

Muhammad, who changed his name from Elijah Poole, said, "The white man is not stopping you from listening to the truth. You are frightened to death like rabbits."

He said he disagreed with Negroes opposed to "black supremacy."

"If they never lived under black supremacy, how do they know they won't like it?" he asked.

Membership in the organization was placed at far greater than 100,000 by John Shabazz, leader of the sect in Los Angeles who was in St. Louis last week.

He said Muslim leaders have no way of knowing the size of their membership.

The movement, known as the Nation of Islam, dates back to 1930 and has headquarters in Chicago. It has been under the leadership of Muhammad since 1933.

Muhammad and his followers dislike the word Negro and prefer the term black.

Long's Flame Blaze Starr Hits Vice Raid

BALTIMORE (AP) — "If Louisiana had a governor who liked strippers, things would be different" on Bourbon Street, according to stripper Blaze Starr, a friend of the late Gov. Earl K. Long.

Miss Starr, now performing in Baltimore, said news of a crackdown on vice in New Orleans' French Quarter — particularly along Bourbon Street — indicates "it must be election time in Louisiana.

"Earl Long wouldn't have let this happen. He used to step in and protect us. Bourbon Street is clean, no matter what they think.

"Some of the clubs are dimly lit—but that's just atmosphere," she said. "But I can stand the bright lights. I don't have to hide in the dark. That's for has-been strippers."

Miss Starr, who hasn't performed in New Orleans for the past year, says she thinks investigations are good for business.

"People read about it in the newspaper, become curious, and visit the night spots for the first time to see what's going on," she said.

SUNDAY NIGHT

Times Now Uses New Facilities

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — The Shreveport Times published its first edition Sunday night on brand-new high speed presses in its new multi-million dollar building.

The afternoon Shreveport Journal, which is separately owned but combines with the Times for production facilities under Newspaper Production Co., puts out its first edition in the new structure Monday.

Involved in the move Sunday to the new structure were the Times, the Journal, Newspaper Production Co., and Shreveport Engraving Co.

The new building, located some seven blocks from the former Shreveport Times building, is owned by the morning Times. It makes space available to the Journal and the jointly-owned Newspaper Production Co.

Robert Ewing Jr., chairman of the board of the Times, said the move was a "day long anticipated in the Ewing Family . . . we hope these magnificent buildings and facilities serve their purpose of being used to make the people of the Ark-La-Tex the best informed in the country."

Ewing's father, the late Col. Robert Ewing, acquired the Shreveport Times 54 years ago this weekend.

The new building, costing more than $3 million, including new presses, has 100,000 square feet of space. It is located on a 4.1 acre plot in downtown Shreveport. The land also contains a separate newsprint warehouse, garages, shops and unloading dock.

The new press is owned by the Times, but dedicated to the of Newspaper Production which handles advertising, duction and distribution for newspapers.'

New Designers Create Fashion Excitement

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

As off - Broadway is to Broadway, so the new crop of young designers is to Seventh Avenue. All over New York today, both within and without the garment district, off - beat fashion creators are challenging the "play-it-safe" creed of modern fashion.

Uptown there are the little designing shops, such A La Carte, where Joan Morse designs little nothing dresses in fabulous fabrics. On Fifty - Seventh Street, Greek - born designer George Stravropoulos shows beautiful evening clothes of classic origins in his tiny salon showroom.

Down in Greenwich Village the desigining shops practically crowd out the coffee houses. And on the middle East Side, every other loft seems to have a designer turning out "something special" for midtown department stores.

On Seventh Avenue itself, young designers battle the established giants. Newest are Robert Steele of Miss Winston and Eric Lund. Both go in for simple, but bold lines, off - beat fabrics, such individualist trims as lots of Norwegian blue fox.

Out in California, Maggie Reese, Bud Kilpatrick, Gustave Tassell and Rudi Gernreich go in for ideas like a suit in vinyl patent cloth, costumes in Spanish blanket cloth, suits for evening in cellophane cloth, evening jackets of black snakeskin.

IMPROVEMENTS ON GELATIN

Latest improvement for gelatin recipes is a ring mold made of plastic in a contoured design.

Advantages are moderate price, light weight, less noisy than metal, and a choice of kitchen colors white, turquoise, pink, and yellow. Of course, it's safely washable in hot suds.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My mother died three years ago and my father remarried last month. Nobody could ever take my mother's place, but I was told I was getting a "new" mother. I not only didn't get a "new" mother, I lost my father, too. His new wife set up all sorts of rules and regulations to help me grow up "right". And my father is on her side. So, Dear Abby, if you want to give young people helpful advice when they get a "new" mother or father, tell them the sooner they start thinking of themselves as orphans the better off they'll be.

FOURTEEN AND FED UP

DEAR FOURTEEN: Your problem is a familiar one. When a child loses a parent, the remaining parent frequently eases up on discipline out of sympathy. When "rules and regulations" are suddenly imposed again, resentment follows. Your "new" mother will never take the place of the one you lost, but she is doing her best to raise you "right." Give her a chance.

DEAR ABBY: A nephew of mine is being married soon. My husband and I were not invited to the wedding because of a family fight that took place two years ago. The wedding is being held in the church we belong to. I say there is no reason why we can't go to that church and see the wedding. If they don't like it, let them try to throw us out. (Of course, we wouldn't go to the reception.) My husband says we should not go to the church. I don't see why we should stay away since it's OUR church. What do you think?

INVITED NOT INVITED

DEAR NOT: If you want to go to your church to see the wedding — go. And if your husband wants to stay home — go without him.

DEAR ABBY: While cleaning my son's room I came across a letter he had written to you, Dear Abby. He signed himself 'STILL IN LOVE." I think you should know that "STILL IN LOVE" was born December 9, 1950. What is the matter with children nowadays?

"STILL IN LOVE'S" MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Don't be alarmed. Your little boy is merely borrowing the romantic jargon of modern times. "Noweday's" children are not much different from yesterday's. Don't ridicule him.

Unload your problem on Abby. For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, care of this paper.

PAR TIME 22 MIN.

Voice Of Broadway

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

William Holden and his wife, Ardis, ought to be quite accustomed to every kind of rumor after 20-odd years of matrimony accompanied by fame and success, but perhaps the wire services might check their reactions to the latest and most elaborate report on their private life. The source is a French magazine, Cine-Tele-Revue, which comes right out and says Bill "has lost his head in Paris" and is "preparing for a divorce." According to the magazine, the American star has flipped over Madame Paula Fishbaker-Heaton, the international millionairess, whom he encountered one day in a boutique.

The 26 - year - old beauty (she's been married to Freddie McAvoy of the old Errol Flynn gang as well as to a wealthy Swiss chap) is said to have become equally enamored of Bill "in just 20 minutes," and is supposed to be waiting for him to get his freedom—which might turn into one of the longest waits since Griselda became famous for hanging around.

Okay, Bill. If this turns out to be the plot for your next movie script I want my cut!

But they've got to change the heroine's name. Madame Fishbaker - Heaton, indeed.

Carole Burnett will play 'Calamity Jane" on a CBS-TV "special". She's also very much in the running for the lead role in the Broadway musical version of the life of Fannie Brice . . Shelly Winters is being quiet about her newest romance, and perhaps it's the smart thing to do. He's a popular male model, and Shelley's going to have her hands full trying to keep him away from the rest of the Girl Pack . .Vince ("Ben Casey") Edwards will be the big attraction at the Las Vegas Riviera in December, with Keely Smith sharing the bill. (Wonder what Vince does for an encore —an appendectomy?)

Rudolf Noureev, the Russian ballet star who leaped over to our side in a news - making defection in Paris last year, has been living it up like a true capitalist in Monte Carolo, usually with the cute ballerina Bejobzasova (Sorry, Mr. Typesetter; it won't happen again) helping him spend his time and money. Rudolf candidly admits he's tossing around the francs with happy abandon because he expects to make a fortune when he tours the U. S. in November . . . Today's real estate note: Pavolova's old home in England is up for sale.

Robert Wagner, making a picture in Rome, explained the break up of his marriage to Natalie Wood in these words to a London reporter: "The odds against a happy marriage in Hollywood are quite tremendous. Enough competition exists between men and women without them being in the same profession. And how can you tell your wife she can't have a new mink coat when she's earning $25,000 a year?"

Best Booking Of the Year Award should go to Le Bistro, an Atlantic City night spot that advertises "Dinner show for the entire family." Its entertainers over the Labor Day weekend, to lure those vacationing families, will be Lenny Bruce and Beverly Aadland . . . Only four members of the big band that toured Russia with Benny Goodman decided to stay on with BG for his U. S. concert dates. (Well, that's show biz. How're you gonna get them to Pittsburgh now that they've seen Leingrad?)

TO COMBAT SCREWWORM

State Cattlemen Provide Funds

Louisiana cattlement have turned more than $33,000 to the Southwest Animal Health Research Foundation for screwworm eradication work.

Oscar Evans of White Castle, president of the Louisiana Cattlemen's Association, made the presentation recently of a check totaling $33,851.26 to a trustee of the foundation, Dolph Briscoe of Uvalde, Texas. The check represented the first payment from Louisiana's cattle industry; Evans pointed out that some parishes have not yet contributed.

Evans said. "When a voluntary fund of this size has been raised to help solve one of the agricultural problems of Louisiana, it is certainly unique and different. In the eyes of Texas, this may not seem to be a large sum of money, but it must be remembered that the screwworm in Louisiana is not our number one problem. Many parishes have not been bothered with this problem for several years.

PREVENTION

"We are correcting a problem before it becomes one — which in itself is very unusual: to get farmers to do something to help themselves before the lightning strikes.

"I may be corrected, but I do not know of any other agricultural commodity in the state of Louisiana having taken such action," Evans concluded.

The Cattlemen's Association took the lead in raising the money for screwworm eradication. However, Evans praised four parishes 'which made contributions to this program without the help of the Cattlemen's Association." These were Webster, St. John, Sabine and Vernon Parishes.

Louisiana's money will be added to that raised in Texas, and additional funds now being donated in New Mexico and Oklahoma. The money will pay for the establishment of a facility near Mission, Texas, which currently is producing 30 million sterile screwworm flies a week. By the end of the month, this plant will be producing at full capacity—75 million flies per week.

FLIES RELEASED

These flies are being released in southern Texas and New Mexico. They interrupt the breeding cycle of the screwworm, and eventually will wipe out this menace to the cattle industry in the Southwest.

Parishes making contributions during the initial phase of the program were: Acadia $1,520, Allen $550, Ascension $800, Avoyelles $181, Beauregard $212, Claiborne $400, Caddo-Bossier $3,471.45, Calcasieu $2,060, Concordia $4,400, DeSoto $3,311.50, East Baton Rouge $827.

East Carroll $1,421, Evangeline, $45, Franklin $885.25, Grant $300, Iberville-West Baton Rouge $2,140, Lafayette $528.50, Lafourche $100, Lincoln $263.26, Morehouse $75.

Natchitoches $4,069.67, Ouachita $576.25, Pointe Coupee $677.50, Rapides $322.50, Red River $1,191.16, Richland $725.50, St. Charles $874.50, St. James $320, St. Landry $1,048.70, St. Martin $858.68.

St. Tammany $175, Tensas $800, Vermilion $537.50, Webster $413.50, West Carroll $150, Vernon $141, St. John $358.84, Sabine $120.

VIEWING AGRICULTURE

Dry Beans, Peas May Be Stored

By J. J. JOYCE JR.
Ouachita Parish County Agent

Many people throughout the area with a surplus of dry beans and peas they would like to store for eating in the winter, may do so.

One of the big problems that we have in storing beans and peas is to protect them from weevils. They can be stored in an air - tight container such as 50-pound lard can, leaving about four inches clearance of the top between the beans and peas. This gives clearance so that we can fumigate the beans and peas very easily. One of the easiest ways to fumigate is with some granular fumigants that are on the market for this purpose.

Among the most common ones is carbon tetrachloride and ethylent dibromide in combination.

IN CONTAINER

This is placed in a flat container on top of the beans and peas so that the fumigation can go down. After about the third day the fumigation has been applied the grain should be empited out and aired for an hour or two and placed back in the air - tight container for safe keeping.

Checks should be made fairly regular to see the beans and peas are still free of insects.

NEW CLOVER

A new crimson clover has been developed by the USDA and the Mississippi Experiment Station. This clover is intended to fill a need on pasture grazing during the winter. Research people have been busy with low cost methods of how to use systemic insecticide for livestock parasites. The systemic insecticide works by being absorbed in the blood streams and will control certain types of internal and external parasistes.

This has been a little expensive in the past, but they are experimenting upon spraying with a low concentration more often. The results this year have shown that it is very effective against horn flies and cattle grubs, and it is shown to reduce the number of internal parasites.

Weekly Markets

COTTON

Spot cotton prices drifted downward during last week, as harvest progressed in the early producing sections of the south-central area, reports the Agricultural Marketing Service.

First bales were received at a number of points and ginning spread to central Louisiana, south Mississippi and early Mississippi Delta areas.

Quotations were lowered or a number of qualities on the New Orleans, Little Rock and Greenwood markets last week. Spot middling 1-1-16 inch declined $1.25 a bale at these points, closing on August 9 at 34.50 cents a pound at New Orleans, 35.50 at Greenwood, 35.75 at Little Rock and 36.40 cents at Memphis.

Thursday's average price of 33.51 cents a pound or middling one-inch cotton in the 15 spot markets of the nation was the lowest in over 10 months. This is the sixth successive week prices have moved downward.

Trading was more active on the Memphis and Greenwood Markets last week, but remained dull on the New Orleans and Little Rock markets. Demand was generally or strict low middling and higher white grades of medium staple lengths. Farmers sold new crop cotton on a crop-lot basis at 33 to 33.25 cents a pound.

Domestic mill interest strengthened, with demand centering around the white grades. Some shippers reported sales of middling and lower white grades of new-crop cotton or October and forward delivery.

Foreign mill inquiries were less numerous than during the preceding week. Movement of the Mexican crop is well underway and is attracting considerable attention in world markets.

LOUISIANA POULTRY AND EGGS

FRYERS: The broiler and fryer market was steady from a week ago, closing steady. Ready to cook demand last week was mostly fair to good. Live supplies were generally adequate though occasional shortages were noted on desired weight birds. Plants reported slaughtering of 822,800 head last week in comparison to 901,000 the previous week and 706,500 head the same week last year. Prices paid or 2 ¾-3 ½-lbs ranged 14 ½-15.3c-99 per cent at 14½, 1 percent at 14.9-15.3c. In comparision to the same week last year, prices were: 23 per cent at 12c; 3 per cent at 12½c; 2 per cent at 12.7-12.8c; 57 percent at 13c, less than 1 per cent at 13.2c; 2 per cent undetermined; 13 per cent overweights at 12½c.

HENS: Market steady last week; supplies adequate or present needs. Heavy type F.O.B plant 5.100 head at 15c, 700 head at 15½c; 1.200 had at 16c, at the arm 4.500 head at 15c. Light type F.O.B plant none; at the arm 5.000 head at 7 c.

EGGS: Market slightly stronger in comparison to the previous week; supplies short on large, about adequate on medium and small. Demand fair to good. Prices paid regular producers, prior agreements delivered to door of wholesaler, 80 per cent grade A or better, cases exchanged, loose: Large 29-34c; Medium 25-29c; Small 15-18c. For farm pickup, discount from delivered price.

LOUISIANA LIVESTOCK

Cattle receipts were continuing to run moderate to large last week with 12 markets reporting sales of 8,001 head or the three-day markting period ending Thursday, August 9. This total has 3 per cent more cattle than were marketed the previous week, but 32 per cent more cattle than were marketed the same week a year ago at these same markets. The market or all classes of cattle was uneven.

A PUMP MOVES water from an irrigation ditch on farmland of W. A. Calloway near Bosco to be released through gated pipes to rows of cotton. The water comes from the Ouachia River. (Farm Front Photo)

Dry Spots Watered To Increase Yields

In the area around Bosco this summer, some farms have gone through extended periods of dryness, while others have had occasional showers.

On some of the land farmed by W. A. Calloway, where cotton was getting quite dry several days ago, irrigation was brought into use.

Water pumped from the Ouachita River was channeled to cotton rows through gated pipes. On the first wetting, water was released to every other row. Later the other rows were watered.

OUTLOOK

Workers on the Calloway farm estimated that application of water to the cotton would add at least one-half bale an acre to the yield. They estimated that cotton there would average one and one-half bales an acre or more.

About 500 acres of cotton was under irrigation.

Where gated pipe is used, it replaces the supply ditches which bring water by the end of a field so it can be released into the row. This eliminates the problem of water sogged ditches at harvest time, which may bog equipment.

PLANNING

Personnel of the Ouachita Parish Soil Conservation Service have worked with Calloway in planning extension of irrigation systems.

Water is brought to the vicinity of the fields to be irrigated through a supply ditch, and at a central point a pump lifts it into the gated pipe system.

When various rows are sufficiently watered holes in the gated pipe are plugged.

S. R. Aycock, work unit conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service in Ouachita Parish, said that where irrigation is planned land should be levelled to allow more uniform flow of water and more effective wetting of land.

INDUSTRY ROLE

Farm Products Promotion Issue

WASHINGTON (AP)—The question of whether promotion and advertisement of farm products should be handled by industry or government has bobbed up again—this time in the meat industry.

Opponents of federal government entry into a field which usually involves checkoffs or deductions from farm sales have been successful in the past—except in the case of wool and lambs.

A meat promotion campaign is being carried on by the National Live Stock and Meat Board, a private organization located at Chicago. It is composed of representatives of the meat packing industry, livestock producers, farm organizations, livestock marketing agencies, retailers and the restaurant industry.

FUNDS

It obtains funds through a small deduction from receipts of sales of livestock. The system is a purely voluntary and cooperative one.

Recently, the Agriculture Department proposed to amend the Packers and Stockyards Act under which the meat board deductions are made. It would require the marketing agencies collecting the checkoffs to make similar deductions for other livestock promotion organizations if the selling farmer so authorizes.

A number of influential industry, farm and livestock organizations oppose the amendment. They include the American Farm Bureau Federation, the National Grange and the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives, as well as some national and regional livestock organizations.

They say they fear that the amendment would destroy the Livestock and Meat Board and the whole voluntary checkoff system. The result, they contend, would be collapse of present promotional and research work being carried on by the industry.

The result, they argue, might well be demands for federal entry into the field with a mandatory deduction system operated not by the industry but by a bureaucracy controlled by politics.

The Livestock and Meat Board now spends more than $1 million a year on its activities. Funds are collected from producers by participating market agencies at the rate of 2 cents a head on cattle, 2-3 cents on calves and hogs and 2-5 cent on sheep and lambs. Participating packers match contributions of producers and additional funds are provided by livestock associations and the American Meat Institute, a meat industry organization.

Farmers do not have to contribute. They can avoid doing this either by selling through market agencies not participating in the program or by applying for refund.

Opponents of the department proposal contend that if the deduction system were opened up to any group able to get producer signatures, the result would place an administrative burden which most market agencies would be unwilling to accept. As a consequence, little or no money would be collected for the present meat board and it would face the prospect of going out of business.

The department contends, on the other hand, that if a checkoff system is operated for one group, it should be operated for others properly designated by livestock producers.

The Livestock and Meat Board has been operating for 40 years. It has become recognized as a particularly effective agency for research on care, cooking and serving of meats. It has cooperated with land grant colleges and farm clubs in its work. Many newspaper, radio and television food editors use its materials.

The present move to broaden the deduction field has arisen out of complaints that the board centers its work on all meats, whereas some producers of various species—such as beef, pork, lamb and mutton—want individual promotion programs.

Those opposing government entry into this field cite the wool and lamb program. Under it, the government makes deductions from incentive payments it makes to producers of wool and lamb. Once the deduction is approved by at least two-thirds of the producers, all must contribute.

POTS 'N PANS PUSH

NEW YORK (UPI) — Housewives' purchases add up — to the billions. The National Housewares Manufacturers Association said that population growth and the projected record establishment of new homes should push retail sales to $10 million by 1970.

Cotton Types Discussed At Area Meetings

The necessity of cotton farmers and cotton ginners working together to produce the kind of cotton the fabric mills want to buy was stressed at a series of workshops held recently by the Louisiana State University Agricultural Extension Service.

Purpose of the meetings was to familiarize ginners with the latest findings and newest trends in the industry. The day - long workshops were held in Winnsboro, Alexandria and Opelousas.

Billy J. Baker, cotton specialist with the LSU Cooperative Extension Service, told the ginners tht market conditions are such that farmers and ginners "must" work together.

POINT

"One of the things we often forget," Baker said, "is that we are producing cotton for very particular customers and must produce the kind of cotton they will buy."

He discussed several measuring devices which are being used by buyers to determine certain quality aspects. The two main ones are for determining fiber fineness and fiber strength.

Baker also told of practices that effect cotton quality and urged the ginners to work with the farmers for better quality and uniformity in the cotton being produced in Louisiana.

Charles E. Severance, an agricultural engineer with Extension Service, discussed some of the technical aspects of ginning and told what latest research findings showed were the best methods of ginning.

VALUES

He pointed out that the price spead between the different grades of cotton has narrowed this year and it would pay the ginners and farmers more to gin for bale value rather than grade.

Joseph L. Smilie, another agricultural engineer with the Extion Service, said ginners could help educate farmers to the need for harvesting cotton that does not contain too much moisture and keeping trash out.

He said both these things present problems to ginners and mills and much could be done on the farms to raise the quality of cotton and make it more desirable to the buyers.

Dr James F. Hudson, associate professor of agricultural economics at LSU, told of developments affecting Louisiana cotton markets as revealed by a study of mills on the East Coast.

He said buyers are tending to want cotton that has not undergone much processing. Over processing, he explained, causes the fibers to lose their natural characteristics and makes them harder to spin.

Dr Hudson said makers of synthetic fibers are continuing to take over some of the markets formerly held by cotton growers.

BASIC CHANGES

New Television Shows Unusual

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — We're in for some rather unusual television entertainment this coming season, shows notable for omissions rather than excesses.

One new series, "Going My Way," is built around two Roman Catholic priests. The program will scrupulously avoid religious themes.

"The Virginian," has the usual cast of characters — the ranch-owner, the daughter, the foreman and his cowboy buddies. But the basic conflict will be the old West against the new, instead of the good guys against the bad ones.

"Combat" and "The Gallant Men," both about fighting men in World War II, will de-emphasize shot, shell and enemy action and, instead, explore personal relationships under foxhole conditions.

"Mr. Smith goes to Washington," concerns the adventures of a United States senator. But it will avoid all political themes. The hero's party affiliation will never be revealed nor will his state of origin.

If you think these typical examples indicate a very bland diet of escape entertainment, be assured that this is exactly what network television has been hoping for.

This is the logical reaction to the lambasting the multimillion-dollar industry took from many quarters last season.

It was called a "vast wasteland" by a top administration official, followed by talk of stricter regulation of the public's air. There were Senate subcommittee hearings that produced headlines about concentration on television of unnecessary quantities of violence. There were complaints about controversial themes and stereotyping minorities, some accompanied by lawsuits, threats of boycott and, upon occasion, withdrawal of sponsors.

Although it was a profitable season, it was also a worrisome one. Now television, like a spanked child, is trying awfully hard to avoid more punishment.

The non-controversial, non-violent approach of the entertainment shows, together with an extra number of public affairs, current events and cultural programs may indeed take off some of the heat. Whether they will prove interesting to the millions who turn to television more for relaxation and amusement than for raising their sights—is another matter.

One of the nicest bits of news concerns the return to television of Marlin Perkins, the naturalist who too long ago went off the air with his "Zoo Parade." NBC will return him in a Sunday afternoon spot starting in January.

Summer television is such a mass of reruns that Tuesday's one-man, one-hour show starring Shelly Berman makes a viewer downright suspicious. How come ABC's putting on a brand new, special show in mid-August?

Plane Lands—But In Wrong Air Field

PORTLAND Ore. (AP) —A DC8 jet plane with 88 persons aboard came in for a landing at Portland and bumped along to an abrupt halt at 4 a.m. Sunday.

A voice came over the plane's loudspeaker: "Ladies and gentlemen, we have inadvertently landed at the Troutdale field by mistake."

Troutdale Field's single runway which is used by light aircraft, is only 4,641 feet long. The big plane, en route from Chicago to Seattle, Wash., was supposed to have landed 10 miles west on International Airport's 8,800-foot runway.

A United Airlines spokesman said the pilot, Capt. S. R. Whipple of Chicago, apparently got the airports mixed up.

Eight hours later, a United crew flew the empty plane off the short runway.
